FETE TO RETAIN '81 SURRENDER OF CORNWALLIS

U.S. Commission Decides in Favor of Scene at Yorktown.

OPPONENT OF PLAN EXPLAINS HIS VIEW

Is Not Fearful of Offending British, but Says Army Ethics Are Involved.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Yorktown, Va., Aug. 12.—The surrender of Lord Cornwallis will be reenacted here this fall, after all.

Representative S Otis Bland, secretary of the United States Yorktown Sesquicentennial Commission, made announcement to the effect today, and the announcement was hailed with delight by most of tidewater Virginia.

Had the surrender scene been left out of the celebration of the 150th anniversary of Cornwallis' capitulation, say some here, it would have been like a production of Shakespeare's Hamlet without Hamlet.

There were three groups involved in the controversy as to whether the surrender of Lord Cornwallis should be included in the pageant that is to be given here on October 16-19. They were the United States Yorktown Sesquicentennial Commission, the Virginia-Yorktown Sesquicentennial Commission, and the Yorktown Sesquicentennial Association.

Responsibility Not Fixed.

Just who was responsible for tentatively calling off the surrender scene is not clear. Some say the State commission was responsible, while others say the Yorktown Association decreed the veto. At any rate there was a lot of buck passing and finally Representative Bland decided to take a poll of the members of the United States commission and let them bear the responsibility.

Meanwhile Tidewater Virginia squirmed under the critical lash of nearly all the newspapers in the United States. Moreover, Great Britain poked fun at those who were so delicate as to think that the British would be offended by the reenactment of a factual piece of history.

However, three distinguished Virginians braved the criticism and insisted that the surrender scene be omitted. They are Representative Bland, Dr. W. A. R. Goodwin, president of the Yorktown Sesquicentennial Association, and Louis Jester, Newport News publisher, and secretary of the Yorktown Association.

Cooperation Pledged.

"I am a Southerner," Mr. Jester said tonight. "Now, suppose the Federal Government should put on a pageant depicting the surrender of Robert E. Lee to Gen. Grant, how do you think we would feel? Well, that's the way I look at this Cornwallis surrender. However, so long as the Federal Commission has decided in favor of the surrender scene, we will go along and cooperate 100 per cent."

Mr. Jester is too much of a town booster to admit any such thing, but one gathered that he was perfectly thrilled by the publicity that the row has precipitated.

As a result of this publicity, a crowd twice the size of the one originally anticipated is expected to gather here.

This expectation is not based upon the fact that the Cornwallis surrender scene is to be included in the pageant but on the fact that President Hoover and other celebrities are to deliver speeches here.

Petain to Be a Visitor.

Among those who have promised to attend are Marshal Petain, of France; Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams, Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, and Lady Astor.

It is expected that the York River will be crowded with ships from October 16 to October 19. Newspaper men and cameramen will be quartered on the French liner DeGrasse.

The hotels in Newport News and Old Point Comfort already are being deluged with reservations. In announcing tonight the surrender scene would be included in the Yorktown pageant, Representative Bland said:

"The statement given out by Mr. Bland follows:

"Upon a poll of the United States Yorktown Sesquicentennial Commis-

Garay Expected To Land Today

Honduran Flier, Rescued at Sea, Should Reach Port in Forenoon.

Savannah, Ga., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Capt. Lisandro Garay, Honduran flier, wrecked in an attempted nonstop flight from New York to Honduras and rescued yesterday by the American-Brazil steamer Biboco off Cape Lookout, N. C., is not expected to reach Savannah until tomorrow morning, latest advices from the steamer indicated today.

Probability is that the Biboco will reach Tybee Roads at the mouth of the Savannah River late tonight and remain outside until daylight.

Capt. Garay will disembark here and receive treatment for his injuries which include a fractured jaw and bruises and cuts about the body. He fell into the sea Sunday midnight and was picked up by the Biboco Tuesday.

Man Seen With Party Sought in Burning of 4

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—New clews in the fire murder of two young couples, whose automobile was their funeral pyre, sent officers on fresh trails today, but nightfall found them without a solution.

Two suspects still were held, but each new clew apparently pointed in another direction. The most important clews of the day were the finding of a purse, identified as the property of Vivian Gold, 15 years old, one of the slain girls, and the discovery of a witness who saw the four young people in the company of a third man about two hours before their bodies were found in the burning automobile.

An intensive search was begun for the fifth member of the party, described by a waiter in a Milan, Mich., restaurant as about 30 years old and wearing a solid brown cap and a sweater. The waiter, Norman England, said that the man was with Miss Gold, Anna May Harrison, 16; Thomas Wheatley, 17, and Harry Lore, 16, the other victims, between 2 and 3 a. m. Tuesday.

Milan is about 10 miles from the place where the bodies were found. England's story was the first evidence of the movements of the couples after 8 p. m. Monday. The boys living in the neighborhood and the girls, visitors from Cleveland, were in Ypsilanti, a short distance from the scene of the tragedy, at that time.

Another development late today was the organization of the investigation under the direction of Harry Toy, attorney of Wayne County (Detroit). The road on which the bodies were found is the boundary line between Washtenaw County and Wayne, and officers of both counties had been engaged in the investigation, without a single directing head. Paul W. Voorhis, State attorney general, after a conference with officials of the two counties, announced that the case was placed in the hands of Mr.

COURT DISMISSES CANNON'S PETITION

Rules Nye Committee Has Not Exceeded Authority in Virginia Quiz.

(Associated Press.)

The legal obstacle that Bishop James Cannon, jr., recently placed in the way of the Senate campaign fund committee's inquiry into complaints he violated the Federal corrupt practices act in 1928, was removed yesterday.

Justice Cox in the District of Columbia Supreme Court dismissed the Southern Methodist churchman's petition for an order restraining the committee from further investigation into his political activities.

Unless some action is taken against Bishop Cannon soon, he can not be prosecuted on charges of violating election laws in 1928, when he threw all his influence against Alfred E. Smith, Democratic nominee. The statute of limitations expires in September, although there is some question of the exact date.

In the absence of the bishop, who sailed several weeks ago for Europe, his attorneys, R. H. McNeill and H. W. Winburn, argued yesterday that the Senate investigation was a persecution and that the committee was attempting to assume the functions of a grand jury.

Elisha Hanson, representing the committee headed by Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota, moved to dismiss Bishop Cannon's bill on the ground it did not state cause of action.

After listening to several hours of argument, Justice Cox said the petition failed to show that the committee's inquiry into the Virginia campaign exceeded its authority.

Two Senate committees have questioned Bishop Cannon or those associated with him in 1928 about the Virginia campaign. Queries have been directed largely toward the churchman's disposition of some $47,000 sent him by E. C. Jameson of New York to use against Smith.

Representative Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts, who made the complaint upon which the Senate committee is acting, said in a speech in the House in 1930 that until Bishop Cannon accounted satisfactorily for the money that he would "stand convicted in the eyes of all honest men" of converting it to his own uses.

Later, Tinkham repeated some of the assertions in a statement to the press. Bishop Cannon recently sued him for $500,000, charging libel.

Chairman Nye said recently that he planned an early hearing on the Cannon case.

SHOALS BOARD ASKS 135 CONCERNS TO BID

Offers for Private Leasing and Operating of Project Must Be In by Sept. 1.

(Associated Press.)

Bids for private leasing and operating of Muscle Shoals were invited yesterday from 135 leading chemical, farm, industrial and power enterprises by the Muscle Shoals Commission. They are to be submitted by September 1.

Among those from whom offers were asked were the Ford Motor Co., the Allied Chemical & Dye Co., the General Electric Co., and three farm organizations, including the National Grange, the Farmers Educational and Cooperative Union of America, and the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Col. Joseph I. McMullen, one of the three Army officers appointed by President Hoover on the commission, said any bid which promised to devote the Muscle Shoals project to agriculture in the most effective way would be the most acceptable to the commission.

McMullen indicated that in event none of the bids was satisfactory to the commission for recommendation to President Hoover and ultimately to Congress, an effort would be made by the commission to effect a compromise.

In this way, he said, a satisfactory arrangement might be worked out for disposing of the project. He added that anyone aside from those from whom bids were solicited might submit a proposal.

The requested proposals were expected to take in the entire project, including up-river and down-river developments.

Mother and Girl Held in Fatal Raid

Husband and Father Dies With Deputy in Battle Over Still Hunt.

Tazewell, Tenn., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Mrs. Amanda Brooks, 45, and her 15-year-old daughter, Minnie, were held in jail here tonight on murder charges in connection with a shooting fray during a raid on their home by deputy sheriffs in search of a "moonshine" still that cost the lives of two men and left another seriously wounded.

Their husband and father, Cline Brooks, alleged operator of the illicit still, and Deputy W. S. Thompson were wounded fatally in the gun battle. Deputy Carl Chadwell lies critically wounded in Middlesboro, Ky., hospital.

Sheriff Frank Riley said Brooks' young daughter, Minnie, was named as Thompson's slayer in a death-bed statement by the deputy. She is alleged to have given him his death wound with a shotgun handed her by her father.

Money for Midshipmen's Entertainment Withheld

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Uncle Sam's midshipmen who arrive here tomorrow after their annual summer cruise to Europe, will do no joy riding and dancing at the expense of the city, if City Treasurer B. Gray Tunstall has his way.

"I am unwilling to be a party to giving away other people's money, if it be for the purpose of entertaining midshipmen forward-shipmen or aft-shipmen," he asserted in a letter to the city council today.

The letter announced his refusal to sign a check for $750 appropriated by the council for entertaining the 1,000 Annapolis midshipmen.

"They will make no whoopee on the city's money this year if I can stop it," Tunstall declared.

The visit of the midshipmen here each summer is a gala event for Norfolk. The Chamber of Commerce and the city usually provide the money for public entertainment of the men in a body.

But things are likely to be different this year. Only a court order can force City Treasurer Tunstall to sign the check, as he is elected by popular vote and is not controlled by the council.

In his letter to the city council, he said: "I realize I am inviting mandamus proceedings by refusing to sign a check for funds you have appropriated, and this welcome in order that the courts may determine once and for all just how far the city council may go in appropriating the taxpayers' money to give dances and joy rides, first for one purpose and then another.

"It seems to me the proper way to raise this money, if at all, would be by popular subscription. I am willing to contribute $25 personally to the cause if 30 other citizens will do likewise, but I am unwilling to be a party to giving away other people's money, whether it be for the purpose of entertaining midshipmen, forward-shipmen, or aft-shipmen."

NORMAN DEATH LAID TO TRIVIAL ROW OVER AUTO

REVENGE IN SLAPPING INDICATED AS MOTIVE

A trivial dispute over parking had a tragic aftermath yesterday when Capt. William Frank Norman, former Special Assistant Attorney General, was shot to death by a colored doorman in front of fashionable Wardman Park Hotel.

Joseph Henry Diggs, 31, 1826 M street northwest, surrendered afterwards to a hotel detective. He was charged with murder at the Fourteenth precinct, when police failed to uncover any deeper motive for the act than a quarrel last Saturday over parking space.

Detective Sergt. James Springman, new chief of the headquarters homicide squad, said the man admits the shooting, but claims he was provoked to defend himself by Capt. Norman. Sergt. Springman questioned Diggs at headquarters.

Bullets Fired In Back.

Sergt. George Darnell, who, with Sergt. John Flaherty, went to the hotel, said there apparently were no words between the two before the act. Witnesses, he said, charge Diggs advanced upon the lawyer behind his back.

Four bullets were fired by Diggs, two of them taking effect under the left shoulder and one in the left jaw. Two of the bullets were removed by Deputy Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald at an autopsy at the District Morgue, but he failed to dislodge a third slug lodged in the attorney's backbone. An inquest will be held in the shooting at 11:30 o'clock this morning.

Although Diggs claimed to have purchased the .32-caliber revolver two years ago, paying $1 for it to a white man whom he casually met on the street, Sergt Springman, at work on his first murder case since his recent elevation, said he had definite knowledge the gun was purchased for Diggs Tuesday by a colored man, who paid $6 for it.

Norman Slapped Doorman.

The dispute leading up to yesterday's shooting occurred last Saturday, when Diggs warned Enoch Craig, Capt. Norman's colored chauffeur, that he could not park his employer's car in a restricted area behind the taxicab stand in front of the hotel.

Craig was said to have replied that he took orders only from Capt. Norman, whereupon Diggs reported the incident at the hotel office. Capt. Norman, according to police, later confronted Diggs, told him it was none of his business where he parked his car, and slapped him twice.

Police believe that Diggs, who has been employed at the hotel fourteen months in capacities varying from bellhop to doorman, had been brooding over the slapping ever since.

"I knew I'd get you," witnesses declared he shouted as he started shooting at the attorney. Capt. Norman was said to have pled "Don't shoot me any more," as the doorman continued firing.

According to Craig, who was sitting in his employer's car parked nearby, nothing was said before Diggs opened fire. The man fired twice, he said, and as Capt Norman grabbed at an awning support in an effort to pull himself up, fired twice again.

The attorney was placed in a taxicab operated by William Pearson, 3016 Q street northwest. Pearson drove him to Emergency Hospital, where he died on the operating table. Dr. Howard Smith made a futile effort to save his life.

Secretary Was Fiance.

Meantime Diggs calmly removed the empty shells from his gun and reentered the hotel.

"I've just shot a man out there," he told House Detective H. L. Daugherty, who was said to be the man who removed the pistol from Jess Smith's hand after he committed suicide at the hotel several years ago.

Diggs was taken to the Fourteenth Precinct by Detective M. K. Reading. Later he was taken to headquarters for questioning by Sergts. Springman, Darnell and Flaherty.

Police notified Miss Beryl Roberts, Capt. Norman's secretary. Published

Paraguay Warned Of Bolivian Attack

Troops Being Massed for Invasion in Gran Chaco Area, Paper Says.

Asuncion, Paraguay, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Bolivian troops have massed on the Paraguayan Chaco frontier for an invasion of Paraguay, the newspaper Liberal charged today in warning the population to arm for war.

Reviving the long-standing dispute bteween Paraguay and Bolivia over the boundary line in the Gran Chaco territory, the newspaper said Bolivia was prepared to carry out an attack similar to "the one that failed in 1930 because of discovery of the scheme."

The Bolivian troops plan to invade Paraguay as far as the Paraguay River, El Liberal charged.

REBELS SUFFER MAJOR DEFEAT, CUBANS REPORT

14 Slain, 26 Captured in Federal Invasion of Pinar Del Rio.

MENOCAL'S CAPTURE BELIEVED IMMINENT

Fierce Fighting Is Reported as Continuing in Santa Clara.

Havana, Cuba, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—A smashing federal victory in a battle with rebels at Ceja del Negro, in Pinar del Rio Province, was announced tonight by army headquarters.

Fourteen rebels were killed and 26 others captured. Guns and ammunition were seized. Capt. Arany Retana led 200 federals in the attack on rebels, commanded by Capt. Justo Luis Poso, former congressman.

Gen. Maria Menocal, once known as the "tyrant" president of the republic and now the fugitive leader of the revolution, was surrounded by government soldiers at Mantua, in Pinar del Rio Province, Capt. Leopoldo Arana informed President Gerardo Machado. The message said Menocal was accompanied by only ten men and that his capture was a matter of a few hours.

Leaders Shot Down.

Other prominent rebel leaders were shot down by government troops as fighting spread in various parts of the island. The toll of casualties mounted steadily, with rebels suffering losses estimated at 50 dead, more than three score wounded and 176 captured by the army, and many rifles and large supplies of ammunition seized.

Fierce fighting was reported under way in Santa Clara, where 29 Federals were reported killed Monday, and in Cienfuegos, near Santa Clara, some 180 miles east of the capital. Communication lines in that region were cut.

Two of the rebel leaders who were killed were Gen. Francisco Peraza, one of the outstanding insurgent chiefs, and Celestino Bayzan, former governor of Havana.

Headquarters Surrounded.

Gen. Peraza, aged military leader, lost his life when Federal troops commanded by Capt Rodolfo Chipi, surrounded his headquarters near Los Palacios, where mobilization of insurgent forces was halted by a determined government attack.

The dead also included Capt. Mendez, his aid, a student named Jose Hidalgo, and six other rebels. Dr. Mario Fernandez Trevejo, an attorney, and three other unidentified persons were wounded and believed dying. Eleven prisoners and a large amount of arms and ammunition were taken in the fighting, which lasted for an hour.

Celestino Bayzan was reported killed in fighting at Candelaria, also in Pinar del Rio. Lieut. Diaz led the Federal troops in the attack, killing at least nine men and wounding eighteen. Bombing planes aided the government forces in the Pinar del Rio campaign, acting as observation machines for the most part, but occasionally dropping explosives.

Santa Clara Battle Center.

Santa Clara continued to be the center of the most serious operations, but communication with that point was difficult. Fighting was reported severe, however, and news was awaited with considerable anxiety. On Monday night rebels were reported to have killed 29 soldiers and captured 25 others in a fight at Santa Clara City, but were driven off by Federals after a prolonged engagement.

Gen. Alberto Herrera, chief of staff, told the United Press that the army

Plane Rushes Man To Army Hospital

National Guard Soldier Is Brought From Camp at Harrisburg.

For the second time within a few weeks the airplane again brought an emergency patient to Walter Reed Hospital for treatment. John K. Bauer, of the Pennsylvania National Guard, thrown from a horse yesterday morning at Harrisburg, Pa., was brought to Washington in a Bolling Field ambulance plane within three hours after receiving the injury.

The first spectacular emergency airplane trip to Walter Reed took place about a month ago, when a soldier who had swallowed his teeth at an Army post in Texas was rushed here in an airplane ambulance, only to die after surgeons had attempted to remove the teeth from his esophagus.

Shortly after the accident occurred a message was sent from Harrisburg to rush a plane there to carry the man back to the Army Medical Center. Within a few minutes after receipt of the message Lieut. C. F. Pugh took off from Bolling, making the up-trip in 50 minutes. The return was made in 45 minutes, and an ambulance from the hospital met the plane to rush the man to medical attention. Bauer stood the trip well. At the hospital last night attending surgeons said the man was resting easily, and that there was a chance he would recover.

DESTRUCTION OF THIRD OF COTTON IS ADVISED; LEGGE TO AID IN DRIVE

First Farm Board Chief Recalled to Service in Emergency.

MAGNATE IS ELECTED AS COTTON DIRECTOR

Department of Agriculture Replies to Critics of Crop Reporting.

(United Press.)

Alexander Legge, tall, lanky harvester magnate, who launched the Farm Board on its stormy career, was named yesterday to help the Government try to do something about cotton, its worst farm problem.

Meanwhile Government farm relief met an added obstacle when the Agriculture Department announced this year's carryover of wheat as of July 1 was 319,089,000 bushels, indicating an increase in the domestic supply of 28,529,000 bushels.

This wheat, which is largely made up of the Government's own stabilization holdings, is in addition to this year's surplus over domestic consumption, and indicates that the Farm Board will have to go harder if the price-depressing surplus which overhangs the market is to be cut down.

Legge Is Drafted.

Legge's new position is as director of the Cotton Stabilization Corporation, Farm Board subsidiary which controls the 1,300,000 bales of surplus cotton purchased in 1929 in an effort to stabilize prices. He will be a "director-at-large." He was drafted for the job.

Officials said the greatly increased prospective cotton crop reported by the Agriculture Department last week had nothing to do with his selection. He will receive no salary. But Legge is independently wealthy from his private business, the International Harvester Co.

Legge headed the Farm Board from its inception more than a year, and as chairman directed the expenditure of most of the $500,000 which Congress voted to it. It was under his direction that the 1929 cotton carryover by cooperative associations was purchased.

Funds Are Exhausted.

Now, however, the Farm Board's funds are about exhausted, and the board has entirely discontinued its purchase of crops in an effort to peg prices. Legge retired last March, but, apparently interested in the farm situation, has since spent much time in Washington watching the operations.

Meanwhile the Agriculture Department issued a defense of its crop-reporting methods, as a reply to criticism of its estimate that the cotton crop will be more than 15,000,000 bales. This estimate sent cotton to the lowest price levels since 1899.

The Farm Board also announced in a letter to Chairman David A. Brown of the China Famine Relief Committee it would be glad to entertain any proposals for purchase of surplus wheat to feed Chinese. Brown suggested that such a sale might be possible. The board referred the question to President George S. Milnor of the Grain Stablization Corporation.

Foreign Markets Shrinking

Legge, in acting in an advisory capacity on cotton questions as they arise, will face the question of trying to dispose of the board's cotton surplus, and also the problem of trying to dispose of the huge crop this year.

The crop in normal years is far over domestic needs, and the foreign markets, which have heretofore absorbed most of the surplus, are shrinking in the world-wide depression.

E. T. Creekmore, president and general manager, and other officials of the Stabilization Corporation and the American Cotton Cooperative Association are meeting here to map out a program of activities, financed by Federal loans, to try to meet the situation. He said yesterday that amounts loaned to the growers on the market value of their crop probably would be less than the 90 per cent granted last year.

Armed Guard Is Posted At Canadian Gold Find

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—A dispatch from Sioux Lookout to the Winnipeg Tribune today reported discovery of a gold vein so rich that armed guards have been posted on the property. The discovery was made by J. A. Munroe on an island, 14 miles long and 2 miles wide, north of the Howey Mine, the dispatch says.

One-Third Cotton Crop Usually $500,000,000

(United Press.)

A third of a cotton crop is usually worth around $500,000,000, but by urging destruction of this portion of the yield the Farm Board seeks to raise prices, now at the lowest level since 1899, to a point where farmers can make a living from the remainder.

The cash value of cotton, according to the Agriculture Department's five-year average, is $1,460,107,000 a year, but the tremendous price drop created a situation in which a far smaller amount of return was in sight.

Early cotton is now being picked in Texas and the crop will be approaching the harvest in, other areas in the next few weeks. While cotton picking extends until the first frost, usually about November 15, the board was anxious for an immediate response in order to strengthen market prices.

GOVERNORS DIVIDED ON CROP DESTROYING

Comment Runs Gamut From Praise to Questioning of Motives.

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Gov. Theodore G. Bilbo of Mississippi tonight enthusiastically endorsed the Federal Farm Board proposal to hold the 1,300,000 bales of stabilization-bought cotton for a second year if cotton farmers would agree to destroy one-third of the present crop.

"The plan, if carried out, would be ideal," he said.

"This is the greatest thing the board has done for the cotton farmer since saving our market with their purchase in 1930.

"I sincerely hope that our farmers will see that this is the only apparent means of averting a near crisis in the cotton States this winter."

Oklahoma City, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—"Good cotton always is needed in the world, but if the Federal Farm Board would destroy all boll-eaten crops and the poorer grades, the plan sounds all right," said Gov. W. H. Murray tonight when questioned regarding the board's plan to plough under one-third of the United States' excessive crop.

"If the board would destroy 7,000,000 bales of short bolled cotton, there would be no congestion," Murray said.

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—The State of North Carolina will do everything possible to cooperate with the Federal Farm Board in its efforts to save the price of cotton, Gov. O. Max Gardner said tonight over long-distance telephone from his home at Shelby, when informed by

Philadelphia Sheriff, G. O. P. Leader, Is Sick

Sheriff Thomas Cunningham, Republican leader of Philadelphia, yesterday was reported to be in a critical condition in an Atlantic City hospital, following a heart attack. His son, Thomas W. Cunningham, jr., was at his beside.

Sheriff Cunningham admitted before a Senate investigating committee last year that he gave $50,000 to the Republican senatorial campaign fund when William S. Vare, of Philadelphia, was elected. He refused to disclose where he obtained the money and charges of contempt of the Senate were brought. The charges were dismissed by the Federal District Court of Philadelphia. The Supreme Court later reversed the decision.

200 Strikers Ousted From Hoover Dam Area

Las Vegas, Nev., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Ordered from the Government reservation embracing the Hoover Dam site and Boulder City, 200 striking workmen moved their camp today 5 miles west of the city into the desert hills. Many decided to come to Las Vegas, however, and it seemed likely that few would be left at the camp by tomorrow.

There has been no violence, but Federal, county and city officers were vigilant.

Farm Board Telegrams Ask Cooperation of 14 Governors.

HOLDING OF SURPLUS PROMISED AS TRADE

At Least 7,000,000 Bales Would Be Affected, Is Estimate.

(Associated Press.)

The Farm Board yesterday called upon Southern planters to destroy one-third of their crop now under cultivation, promising in return to hold stabilization surplus stocks from the market for one year.

Telegrams were dispatched to the governors of fourteen cotton producing States, urging them to enlist the cooperation of every available agency, including farmers and bankers, in this step to increase the low price of cotton.

They were signed by Chairman Stone, who conferred yesterday with directors of the cotton stabilization corporation and the American Cotton Cooperative Association. Stone said if growers promised to plow under every third row of cotton now growing, the cotton cooperative would be asked also to withhold the 2,000,000 bales it owns from trade channels.

7,000,000 Bales Affected.

"This program," he asserted, "if fully carried out by Southern farmers as well as by ourselves will mean reduction of total supply by at least 4,000,000 bales and withholding from this year's market of 3,000,000 bales more."

The action followed a few days after a Government crop forecast in which the 1931 cotton harvest was estimated at 15,584,000 bales, more than 1,500,000 above last year. Cotton prices on every exchange immediately dropped.

A few hours before the telegrams were sent, it was announced Alexander Legge, former chairman of the Farm Board, had been elected a director at large of the Stabilization Corporation. Wheat and cotton stabilization operations with the board's $500,000,000 revolving fund were initiated under his chairmanship and he has been in close touch with all details.

Bilbo Gets Credit.

The proposal to plow under every third row of cotton was advanced yesterday by Gov. Bilbo of Mississippi.

Stone, in his telegrams to the Governors of Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, and Texas, estimated the probable carry-over a year from now under present conditions would be about 11,000,000 bales.

The suggestion was regarded here as the board's most important move since stabilization operations were attempted in 1929. At that time 1,300,000 bales of cotton were bought at an average price of $85 a bale in an effort to steady sagging prices.

Text of Telegram.

The Farm Board's telegram follows in full:

"Government cotton report of 15,584,000 bales, if realized, provides total crop and carry-over supply of American cotton of more than 26,500,000 bales, against probable world consumption of American cotton this fiscal year of 13,000,000 or possibly 14,000,000 bales, leaving probable carry over one year hence of around 11,000,000 bales.

"This condition occurs in spite of 10 per cent reduction of acreage last spring. It has already resulted in drastic declines in cotton prices which, if allowed to continue, may bring direct disaster to cotton-producing States and indirect distress to the Nation.

"Through serious world depression of last two years Federal Farm Board has steadfastly attempted to protect cotton farmers and all who deal with them from price declines such as have affected all industries, first, by 16 per cent loans to cotton cooperatives; second, by removal from market by Cotton Stabilization Corporation of 1,300,000 bales; third, by 90 per cent loans to cooperatives last year. These efforts had some measure of success, but have been outweighed by

Two Additional Destroyers To Be Made Target Vessels

(Associated Press).

Two more destroyers are to be converted by the Navy into radio-controlled target ships.

Navy Department officials said yesterday the work would be done at the Mare Island, Calif., Navy Yard, where the destroyer Stoddert was converted.

Although the exact date for starting the work has not been decided, the department planned to have at least one of the ships available for target use in 1932.

They will be equipped with radio apparatus similar to that on the Stoddert, which has proved highly satisfactory in tests off Santiago.

Eventually the Navy expects to have three or more destroyers racing through the water abreast without a man on board, turning and maneuvering in unison in answer to the same radio signals.

To avoid premature destruction of the target ships, they will be attacked with semi-shells. Bombs for the fire upon them will be offset to strike harmlessly at a stated distance away instead of directly upon them.

While the Navy has not yet announced which destroyers have been selected it was said they would be two of several which have been decommissioned and are laid up at Mare Island and Santiago.

CHESTS PLEDGE AID TO AMERICA'S IDLE

Hoover Is Told 227 Cities Will Assume Task of Relieving Jobless.

(Associated Press.)

Community Chest organizations in 227 cities have expressed their complete confidence that they, in cooperation with municipalities, will be able to undertake the task of unemployment relief during the coming winter

President Hoover was so informed yesterday by Allen T. Burns, executive director of the Association of Community Chests and Councils. Other cities, Mr. Burns told the President, are being heard from daily, and plans are going forward actively.

A statement issued at the White House said:

"Allen T. Burns, the executive director of the Association of Community Chests and Councils, has advised the President that their organizations in 227 cities, which have so far been heard from, report their complete confidence that they, in cooperation with municipalities and other local agencies, will be able wholly to undertake the unemployment relief situation during the forthcoming winter. The plans in these cities are going forward actively, and more cities are being heard from daily."

The President yesterday conferred at length with Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., on the subject of business conditions and unemployment.

This discussion took place at the breakfast table, and was the second such conference within a week. The President did not get to his office until nearly 10 o'clock. He usually comes to work before 8.

The meeting was regarded by observers here as of unusual significance since Gifford's company is one of the largest in the world, and its fact-finding organization is regarded by President Hoover as extremely efficient.

For three weeks the President has been devoting most of his time to consideration of business conditions and unemployment. He hopes to have a program of unemployment relief for the coming winter ready by September 1 and in laying tentative plans he has consulted with a number of business leaders other than Gifford.

Silas Strawn, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, after talking with President Hoover last week, said the chamber would present a plan soon based on facts gathered through local chambers of commerce.

In addition to seeking means of preventing suffering among the unemployed next winter, Mr. Hoover also is giving thought to the predicament of those who will find their jobs permanently eliminated by the depression.

Depressed business conditions have demonstrated to many industries that certain types of employes previously thought to be indispensable can be laid off permanently without loss of efficiency. These workers will have no jobs when business recovers.

New industries, heretofore, have absorbed the surplus of labor which always results from business depressions. President Hoover hopes that the radio, airplane and other younger businesses will do the same this time.

Senator Fess (Republican), of Ohio, said yesterday that President Hoover would have a definite and comprehensive program of legislation to lay before Congress in December on the subject of the business depression and its resultant unemployment.

Mr. Hoover has been unequivocally opposed to direct Federal aid for the unemployed. He has said repeatedly that the burden should be borne by the communities and the States, with the Federal Government acting in an advisory capacity.

He consulted with Senator Hebert (Republican), Rhode Island, over the week-end at the Rapidan camp on unemployment insurance. Mr. Hebert is chairman of a special Senate committee appointed to investigate the subject. Upon returning to Washington he issued a statement in which he said that he was opposed to Federal employment insurance because he believed it would lead the country into the establishment of a dole.

EXTRA MAN IS SOUGHT IN AUTO FIRE MURDER

Toy, who established headquarters here.

Several suspects were brought in during the day but only the two brothers, Paul and Lawrence Keene, who were arrested last night, continued to be held.

The evidence regarding the man in the brown cap and the fact that Miss Gold's purse was found 9 miles from the place where the bodies were found were regarded by officers as favorable to the Keenes, who have no automobile.

Rewards for the arrest and conviction of the slayers grew today to $3,000, offered in equal amounts by two Detroit newspapers and the Wayne County Board of Supervisors. Another Detroit paper was offering $2,000 for exclusive information leading to arrest and conviction.

Waiter's Story Confirmed.

The waiter's story of the visit to the restaurant was given added credence by the fact that the autopsy showed substances in the digestive tracts of the victims which checked with his account of the food consumed by them. England said Lore appeared to be ill at the restaurant.

The principal basis for suspicion against the Keene brothers was the finding of clothing and clubs, believed to be bloodstained, in their shack on wheels within 2 miles of the place where the bodies were found burned in the Lore car. Dr. Herbert W. Emerson, director of the Pasteur Institute at University of Michigan, reported this afternoon that he had found human blood on one of the clubs. He was making further tests of spots found on the Keene brothers' clothing.

The inquest into the quadruple slaying, called by Coroner Edwin C. Ganzhorn this afternoon, was adjourned after a few minutes on request of investigators.

IMPEACHING URGED OF CARL WILLIAMS

Farm Board Cotton Member Included in Legislative Charges in Texas.

Austin, Tex. Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Charges of misfeasance, deceit, deception and incompetency against Lynn Stokes, president, and Harry Williams, secretary-treasurer and general manager, of the Texas Cotton Cooperative Association, were made before the House of Representatives today by Representative Lawrence Westbrook, of Waco.

In a prepared statement read to the house, Westbrook also charged Carl Williams, cotton member of the Federal Farm Board, with failure to carry out the provisions of the agricultural marketing act.

"He (Carl Williams) has pursued a policy of deceit and subterfuge in carrying out the duties of his high office, leaving the affairs of the cooperatives in the hands of the gang of agricultural racketeers who got him his job, and he ought to be impeached and removed. He undoubtedly will be when Congress meets in December," the statement read.

Details of Westbrook Charges.

The House passed a motion authorizing a legislative investigating committee to cooperate with the attorney in making an investigation of the charges.

Westbrook charged Stokes and Harry Williams "had, in 1929, used over $400,000 of money due to members for cotton in gambling on cotton purchased outright by the Farm Bureau Gin Co. and that they had lost this money and could not have paid it back if they had not been able to borrow from the Farm Board. This, I think, is both misfeasance and malfeasance."

Westbrook formerly was the Texas representative of the American Cotton Cooperative Association. He resigned from office last spring.

"Correction Was Promised."

Westbrook said he had planned to make the charges last March, but that E. F. Creekmore, general manager of the National Cooperative Association, promised to correct conditions. The conditions have not been remedied, Westbrook stated, and he felt it his duty to inform the Legislature and the members of the association of the situation in the Texas organization.

The statement further charged "that Lynn Stokes, Harry Williams and other members and officers of the executive committee had loaned themselves large sums of money from the funds of the organization without authority.

"I do not know all the details of these transactions * * * but Mr. Creekmore admitted after my statement last March that $84,000 borrowed by four officers and directors, including Mr. Stokes and Mr. Williams, was probably uncollectable."

(Associated Press.)

Lynn Stokes, president of the Texas Cotton Cooperative Association, last night was silent upon action of the Texas Legislature in authorizing an investigation of charges of mismanagement brought against him.

Stokes said he expected to leave Washington soon for his home at Dallas and added he did not want to answer accusations made by State Representative Lawrence Westbrook until then.

E. F. Creekmore, vice president and general manager of the American Cotton Cooperative Association, with which the Texas Cooperative is affiliated, said, "I don't see how, on the face of the statement I've seen, it's up to me to say anything."

Solving Job Problem Will Win Gold Medal

Here's a chance to win a gold medal without risking your life by jumping in a river to rescue a drowning person.

All that is necessary is to solve the unemployment problem in the District or at least offer the best solution to George J. Adams, Jr., executive secretary of the District Committee on Employment, who is to donate the medal.

Plans must be in writing and may be of any length. Any contestant may submit as many proposals as he desires. The idea or ideas will be utilized by the committee in its job-hunting campaign this winter.

Hist! Let's Forget Both Farmers and Railroads

By JOHN J. DALY

FOR Sale: A Farm.

For Sale: A Railroad.

The farm is for sale because the farmer, having shouldered his burden incident to changed economic conditions, can not stand an increase of 15 per cent in freight rates asked by the railroads.

The railroad is for sale because the president and board of directors, having reduced wages to the minimum, and unable to declare a dividend, can not carry on unless the farmer pays more for hauling his produce to market.

The farmer can not pay more for hauling his produce to market, where he gets less for it than it costs to produce. The railroad can not haul the products of the farm unless it gets an increase in freight rates.

If the railroad doesn't get an increase in freight rates it will operate at a loss, and if it operates at a loss the public will lose its railroad service and everybody will have to walk to and from San Francisco. Flivvers and buses will not serve, because when railroads disappear the gasoline and bus trusts will bust the public.

HERE is a pretty situation—the vicious circle—a dog chasing his tail.

What to do?

The solution is "Back to the Farm:" but the farmer already has his back to the farm.

All right, the city folks must go back to the farm. Somebody besides the politicians has to mend the fences.

If the farm is deserted the city folk will starve.

"Let 'em starve," says the farmer, "I'm tired of feeding the hand that bites me."

"What do we care for the farmer?" say the city folks. "Why does he stay on the farm, when he can see all the country-side he wants in the pictures?

The reason why the farmer stays on the farm is simple: He can not pay the railroad fare to town.

If they increase the freight rates, and drive the farmer off the farm, they'll have to decrease the passenger rates to get him to the city.

Worse, and more of it!

* * * *

BUT hist! Here's an idea:

Gardens must be cultivated—truck gardens, industrial gardens, kitchen gardens—any kind that will produce foodstuffs. The consumer growing his own vegetation cuts out the middleman and abolishes both the farmer and the railroad.

An hour in the garden before going to work, and a city man gets as much exercise as he could get on the golf links in an 18-hole match.

An hour in the garden after coming home from the office and the city man will be so worn out he'll go to bed and sleep the sleep of the just—just too bad for the city man.

The farmer relieved of his arduous duties, can go to the city and enjoy life—the cinema, the bright lights, the supper clubs, the whoopee parlors.

The railroad will be saved, carrying the commuters—the Back to the Farm city folks who cultivate gardens and still keep their feet under office desks in skyscrapers.

A new era dawns on the horizon, and yet one tinged with history, repeating itself

Adam and Eve were the first to turn their back on the farm, and the world ever since has been sorry they put up the sign:

For Sale: A Farm.

It brought about the other sign:

For Sale: A Railroad!

Chile Turns Down Debt Payment Cut

Plan to Pay Only Half External Obligations Till 1936 Defeated.

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—The government today faced the problem of meeting the budget deficit, which, it was estimated, will total about $19,000,000 at the end of the fiscal year in 1932 and slightly less in 1933.

Following a statement of financial conditions, the treasury declared that no recommendation had been made to congress referring to payment of the external debt other than the estimation of the deficit which could be made up by total suspension of external debt payments.

The Chamber of Deputies today rejected a proposal that only 50 per cent of external obligations be paid during the next five years.

Further economies in salaries and other government expenses must be made, the treasury statement said.

Mexico Charges Dredge Fraud.

Mexico City, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—The contract of the Mexican government with the Mexican Products Co. for purchase of four dredges is considered null and void by the administration, Secretary of Communications Juan Almazan announced today. He charges that a fraud was committed and said the government would seek to recover $1,200,000 already paid for two dredges. Lionel Dalkowitz, of San Antonio, Tex., who negotiated the sale, was expelled from Mexico recently.

Brother Succeeds Drug Firm's Chief

H. M. Bradbury Is Named by Director as New Exchange Head.

Howard M. Bradbury, assistant manager of the Washington Wholesale Drug Exchange, 459 C street northwest, has been appointed manager of the company by its board of directors.

He succeeds his brother, Wymond H. Bradbury, who died recently following a heart attack. He has been connected with the exchange since its organization in 1899, with exception of the first four months of its existence, and was its first regular employe.

He is a graduate of the National College of Pharmacy, which lately became a part of George Washington University, and after his graduation taught there as assistant professor of chemistry and later became professor of analytical chemistry in addition to his duties at the drug exchange. He also taught at George Washington University until 1917, when the pharmacy school was closed.

Strike Near in Panama.

Panama City, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—A general strike of union workers here will occur Friday unless the walkout of several hundred furniture factory workers is settled before then, union leaders said tonight. The striking furniture workers are asking to be allowed to classify their own members for a sliding wage scale and factory owners threaten to lock out the workers for a month unless they return immediately.

Report Discloses Criminals Seldom Leave Fingerprints

Fingerprints may be an infallible means of identification of criminals, but good prints are hard to find.

However conveniently tell-tale fingerprints may be found at scenes of crimes in fiction, a true detective story written by Inspector William S. Shelby, assistant superintendent of police, discloses that not one out of three criminals leaves a fingerprint that will help the police in making arrests.

Trained experts examined 555 scenes of crimes in the District in the last fiscal year for fingerprints but could find prints which meant anything only in 166 places, the inspector said in his annual report, as former chief of the Detective Bureau.

But those tell-tale marks are on file and some day those who made them may fall into the hands of the law and the records will speak their bit. There were 70,502 fingerprints on file in the Bureau of Identification at the close of the fiscal year, the report said. In the course of the year there were 705 identifications made by the United States Bureau of Fingerprints from prints previously sent there by the District police; 355 additional prints were sent last year, and 5,715 new prints were added to the District police files.

FOES OF RATE RAISE MEET WITH SETBACK

Motion Holding Carriers Have Not Made Case Laid Aside by I. C. C.

(Associated Press.)

Efforts to bring immediate defeat to the railroads in their move for a general 15 per cent increase in freight rates failed yesterday before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

A motion supported by six Middle Western State regulatory commissions asserting the carriers had failed to make a case justifying the proposed advance in charges was laid aside by the Federal group for consideration later.

At the same time, it was indicated that the present hearings, designed to obtain the evidence of Eastern opponents of the increase might end much sooner than had been expected.

Authority Challenged.

The Western motion, filed on behalf of the railroad commissions of North and South Dakota, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota and Nebraska, challenged the authority of the Federal group to grant the increase. It asserted a financial emergency alone was not sufficient basis for its approval.

Commissioner Meyer, presiding, ruled the hearings would continue and the motion of the Westerners would be disposed of when oral argument is reached in late September or early October.

L. D. Snow, of Cambridge, Mass., general traffic manager for a large soap company, told the commission his firm was planning to move all of its business by truck if rates are advanced.

Henry W. Lockwood, Suffolk, Va., crate manufacturer; J. B. Jones, Danville, Va., traffic expert; E. R. Clark and H. F. Hasman, of New York, representing waste material dealers; W. F. Everidge, Berlin, H., paper company representative; Daniel Weinhold, Lancaster, Pa., Manufacturers Association; W. R. Moore, New York, National Confectionery Manufacturers Association, and D. A. Dashiell, Norfolk, Va.; F. G. Moore, Baltimore, and A. D. Whittemore, Niagara Falls, representing fertilizer interests, joined Snow in predicting traffic losses for the railroads if the increase is granted.

Misstatement Corrected.

J. W. Roberts, Chicago consulting accountant, testified under cross-examination at the Interstate Commerce Commission's hearing upon proposed railroad rate increases that the carriers' indicated net operating income for 1931 was little more than half what his figures showed for 1930.

He did not testify, as erroneously reported by the Associated Press in covering the hearing, that indicated net operating income for 1930 was little more than half what his figures showed for that year, and the correctness of the 1930 earnings as shown by his exhibit was unchallenged.

The Associated Press is glad to make this correction.

DEBENTURE AND FEE PLANS ARE COUPLED

Farm Aid Discussion Turns to Combining Ideas in Next Congress.

A renewed discussion of farm relief yesterday centered upon possibility of efforts to amend the agricultural marketing act in the next Congress to include both the equalization fee and export debenture plans.

Under such an amendment, the Farm Board would be empowered to use its discretion in employing either of these provisions in meeting an agricultural surplus emergency.

Farm leaders throughout the country have been debating adequacy of present legislation with intensified interest in the last several months since new bumper crops have added to the complexity of the agricultural situation.

Federation Plans Support.

The McNary-Haugen bill, containing the equalization fee, was twice vetoed by President Coolidge. The American Farm Bureau Federation yesterday announced it would again actively support it, deeming existing law insufficient to deal with the farmers' troubles.

The export debenture was last defeated in the House a little more than a year ago when the Norris amendment to the tariff bill was lost by 70 votes after it had been adopted in the Senate. President Hoover has declared himself opposed to the debenture, but has not spoken on the fee plan. Chairman Stone, of the Farm Board, also is on record against the debenture.

When the Norris amendment was defeated, the House had a Republican majority of more than 100. It has been cut down to a close division with control still in the balance. What fate this plan as well as the equalization fee will meet in view of this circumstance, remains to be determined when and if the whole farm relief controversy, which has raged intermittently since 1920 is reopened.

House Origin Predicted.

If these proposals are reintroduced, they probably will originate in the House to obviate any doubts of constitutionality in view of expressions that they are revenue measures.

Representative Jones, (Democrat), Texas, ranking minority member on the House agriculture committee, has sponsored several debenture bills. Another debenture supporter on the House committee is Representative Ketcham, (Republican), Michigan, while Representative Haugen, (Republican), Iowa, chairman of the committee, was co-author of the bills vetoed by Mr. Coolidge.

The Western Progressive group in the Senate, including Senators Borah, Norris, Nye, and Brookhart, all Republicans, is sympathetic toward the debenture and may press for enactment.

SURRENDER SCENE RETAINED IN COMING FETE AT YORKTOWN

sion, the surrender scene has been ordered to be inserted as part of the pageants at the Yorktown sesquicentennial celebration.

"The commission is much gratified at the great interest shown in the celebration and welcomes the cooperation of all citizens. It is desired that this event shall be celebrated not only at Yorktown, but by patriotic societies, military and naval units, and in every city, village and hamlet in the United States and its dependencies, and in all schools, churches, lodge rooms and other centers where patriotic citizens gather."

The United States commission is made up of Senators Claude A. Swanson, Virginia, chairman; David A. Reed, Pennsylvania; John G. Townsend, Delaware; Hiram Bingham, Connecticut; Robert F. Wagner, New York, and Representatives George R. Stobbs, Massachusetts; Robert L. Bacon, New York; Roy L. Fitzgerald, Ohio; Joseph W. Byrns, Tennessee; and Charles R. Crisp, Georgia.

The decision of the Federal commission, however, does not entirely end the difficulties of those who are running the pageant.

If reports here are correct, the first man to oppose the surrender scene was Brig. Gen. Stanley B. Embich, commandant of Fort Monroe, whose soldiers are to take part in the pageant.

Ethical Question Raised.

Gen. Embich, as well as many other officers, is said to feel that it is contrary to good military ethics to depict a victory over a fallen foe.

Thus Gen. Embich or somebody over him will have to say the word before the Fort Monroe soldiers go out on the historic stage at Yorktown.

Dr. Goodwin, the most outspoken enemy of the surrender scene, and consequently the man against whom most of the criticism has been leveled in the last month, issued a statement today in which he charged that his reasons for opposing the scene had been distorted.

Dr. Goodwin, who is president of the Yorktown Association, said in part: "With reference to the surrender scene, the personal conviction which I hold in the matter, and which was expressed before the United States commission, is that it would be both undignified and unnecessary to present the surrender scene in the Yorktown pageant. This conviction is held for reasons entirely removed from any thought or fear of offending the British, and with no desire to obscure the facts of history, but rather with the view of emphasizing the facts of major importance and of vital and perennial value.

"We do not obscure the facts of history by revealing some measure of dignified self-restraint and conforming to the high ethical standards of the American army and to an international code of courtesy. We have no fear of offending the British. We do not, however, care to offend ourselves.

Situation Has Its Humor.

"The British are good sports. We hope that they have not been slow to see the humor of this false issue controversy and have smiled over the absurdity of the assumption that they would be offended by being reminded that America won the Revolution and that Lord Cornwallis surrendered by proxy at Yorktown. The English, however, would doubtless appreciate the delicacy of our national self-restraint even though they would not be offended by this form of national self-expression. The British are as glad as Americans are that we won the Revolution. A former Ambassador of Great Britain to the United States publicly said that Yorktown was the greatest victory of the English as it vindicated the rights guaranteed to all Englishmen under Magna Charta. He also said, in effect, that without the victory at Yorktown the establishment of the British Empire upon the basis of colonial accord would have been either impossible or long delayed.

"The cultured Britisher also knows that the sympathy of the leading thinkers of England at the time of the Revolution was with the Americans as against the misguided tyrannies of a Hanoverian king.

National Dignity Involved.

"If it was proposed to present an emasculated surrender scene in a local community pageant it would be an entirely different matter. The celebration at Yorktown is, however, to be a national celebration and should be in harmony with national dignity and international courtesy. If the surrender scene is to be presented, it should be presented completely and accurately. Such presentation is impossible under existing conditions, with the funds available, unless the Army of the United States should be commanded to masquerade this scene. The Army will, of course, do this if commanded to do so. It is, however, distinctly contrary to the ethical standards of the patriotic sentiment of many of the high officers of the Army, who have expressed their personal opinions in this matter. Shall the Nation ask or require its Army to satisfy a public demand at the cost of what many believe is the national dignity?

"We are not assuming the existence of this feeling on the part of many of those high in command in the Army. We have in our hand letters from active and honorably retired Army officers of high rank which we have consent to use, expressing pronounced personal objection to having the American Army act the surrender scene. We also have the written protest of the only surviving member of the staff of Robert E. Lee. We refrain from publishing or quoting these letters as we have no desire to draw these officers into the controversy, or to make the American Army 'the goat' in this battle of words.

"The surrender scene, if fully presented, would from the surrender point of view tend to steal away the sharpness of any sense of humiliation which a sensitive Britisher might perhaps feel. It would show, if it could, the ships of Admiral Comte DeGrasse securely blockading the entrance to Chesapeake Bay, thus cutting the British off from supplies and reinforcements. It would show 7,000 French soldiers lined up on one side of the road leading from Yorktown to the surrender field and 8,500 Americans lined up on the other side and would show 7,491 British soldiers marching, with colors cased, between the lines of French and American soldiers, numbering 15,500 and throwing down their arms on the surrender field as the band played "The World Turned Upside Down."

"We feel that the celebration itself is an adequate recognition and a dignified commemoration of the victory whereby our national independence was achieved, and that the presence of the President of the United States and his address at Yorktown on October 19, the sesquicentennial anniversary of the culminating victory of the Revolution, is an appropriate, dignified and adequate recognition and expression of the national desire to gratefully commemorate this day which marked the achievement of our national liberty."

continual excess production and continually increasing surplus.

"The board believes that the time has now come when cotton producers themselves must be called upon for immediate and drastic action. Agricultural marketing act, section 1, paragraph 4, directs board to aid 'in preventing and controlling surpluses and in orderly marketing and distribution so as to prevent such surpluses from causing undue or excess fluctuations or depressions in price for the commodities.' Section 5, paragraph 4, 'the board is authorized and directed to investigate conditions of overproduction of agricultural commodities and advise as to the prevention of such overproduction.'

All Agencies Listed.

"In line with above mandate from Congress and in view of existing situation board suggests that you immediately mobilize every interested and available agency in your State, including farmers, bankers, merchants, landowners and all agricultural educational forces to induce immediate plowing under of every third row of cotton now growing. Without question at present low prices there will be considerable abandonment late in the season, but this will not improve prices during heavy marketing. Problem to be solved is to secure abandonment in an organized and orderly fashion which will give farmers a better return on the remainder.

"Board is convinced that such organized reduction immediately done will be more than repaid by increased price received by growers on this and future crops entirely aside from savings by reason of no picking and ginning costs on that part of crop plowed under.

"Board recognizes that this suggestion calls for drastic remedy for serious emergency but commends to you the thought that major operation of this kind rather than attempts at lesser measures is now needed.

To Start September 1.

"Board earnestly hopes this proposal, which is being sent governors of all cotton-producing States, will be approved by you and the people of the South and that necessary steps will be immediately taken to put it into effect on basis which will begin reduction throughout the South not later than September 1 and complete program not later than September 15.

"If the ten largest cotton producing States accept and carry out this program this board will do all in its power to support the program and will pledge itself to permit no sales by the cotton stabilization corporation of its present holdings before July 31, 1932, and will urge upon the cotton cooperatives financed by the board the desirability of similar action by them on their stocks of 1930 cotton now held.

"This program if fully carried out by Southern farmers as well as by ourselves will mean reduction of total supply by at least 4,000,000 bales and withholding from this year's market of 3,000,000 bales more. You will appreciate necessity for very prompt action if this plan is to effectively benefit farmers this fall and you are therefore urged to immediately advise us your attitude toward cooperation on it. Board will promptly convey to you reactions from other States as received.

"Federal Farm Board,
"JAMES C. STONE, Chairman."

Senator Advances Plan To Bar Cotton Planting

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—A proposal that the Farm Board purchase surplus cotton of farmers, to be resold to them a year later at the same price plus a reasonable interest charge and insurance, provided they signed legally enforceable contracts to plant no cotton on land owned or controlled by them, was advanced today by Senator E. D. Smith, of South Carolina, ranking Democratic member of the Senate agriculture committee.

Senator Smith said the plan had been put to the Farm Board last year, but it was not adopted. "The conditions are now more urgent for such a plan then they were a year ago," he said.

The contract, Senator Smith added, would not permit the producer or land owner to have allocated to him by the board any more cotton than he actually produced.

Berlin Sees End to Plan To Buy Cotton and Wheat

Berlin, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—The United States project for extending long-term credits to finance German imports of cotton and wheat from America was believed tonight to have collapsed.

It was learned that President Hoover had advised Ambassador Frederic M. Sackett, who communicated the plan to the German Government, to abandon the negotiations rather than indulge in haggling over the price to be paid for imports.

The United States Farm Board previously had rejected the German offer to buy 600,000 bales of cotton and received a similar offer regarding wheat without enthusiasm.

GOVERNORS DIVIDED ON CROP DESTRUCTION PLAN OF BOARD

the United Press of Chairman Stone's proposal.

Gov. Gardner made no direct statement regarding Mr. Stone's provision that cotton-growing States destroy a third of their crop, declaring he needed time for study and conference before commenting on that question.

North Carolina claims to have led all cotton-growing States in acreage reduction—28 per cent under that of the 1929 crop.

Tallahassee, Fla., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Storage of part of the now maturing cotton crop for a stated time was suggested tonight by Gov. Doyle E. Carton of Florida is a counterproposal to the Federal Farm Board's plan for destruction of one-third of the crop.

Gov. Carlton agrees with the Farm Board that the cotton supply must be reduced in some way, but does not think it wise to destroy even a part of the crop.

"It would be better," he said, "to secure an agreement of the cotton States to store one-third of the now maturing crop for a stated time, and reduce the acreage next year, rather than destroy one-third as suggested by the Farm Board.

"The supply will have to be reduced in some way, but I think it better to preserve what we have and use the land for something else in the future."

Austin, Tex., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Gov. Ross Sterling intimated tonight that he agreed with the Farm Board in its contention that every third row of cotton should be plowed under as a means of solving overproduction. He gave credit for the plan, however, to Gov. Theodore G. Bilbo of Mississippi and T. W. Graham, of New Albany.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Eugene Talmadge, Georgia commissioner of agriculture, said today the proposal of the Federal Farm Board to hold off the market its stabilization cotton for one year, provided the ten largest cotton growing States in the South would destroy one-third of the 1931 crop was "nothing more than a bluff on the part of the board."

He said he did not believe "the Farm Board has one-third of the cotton on hand they claim to be holding," and that "Congress ought to name a special committee to investigate the board and find out whether it has this cotton on hand. The plan to destroy one-third of the crop is nonsense."

Governor Russel said he would withhold comment on the proposal until he had received a telegram from Chairman Stone, which was said to have been sent today.

Baton Rouge, La., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Gov. Huey P. Long of Louisiana, tonight asked his opinion of the Farm Board plan to hold the 1931 stabilization cotton until 1932 if one-third of the present crop were destroyed, said:

"It sounds pretty good," he said, "but whether Louisiana farmers will plow up or throw away that much of their cotton, I'm not sure.

"They ought to get more for their crop than the present price. Something has got to be done, but damned if I know what it'll be."

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Tennessee's commissioner of agriculture and its largest cotton grower tonight expressed the opinion that the Federal Farm Board's plan to plow up every third row of cotton would be either inoperative or undesirable.

"It would be a good thing if farmers would cooperate," said Commissioner J. W. Pitts, "but they will figure about that like they do a public sale on a rainy day.

"'No one will be there,' they conclude. The result is, the place is jammed."

A. E. Markham, of Tiptonville, holder of 2,400 bales from his plantations, said, "I don't believe in such plans. What we need is national legislation requiring farmers not to put the same acreage in cotton any two successive years."

Nanking Plans Big Loan To Help Flood Victims

New York, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The Kuo Min News Agency today announced receipt of a dispatch from Nanking saying the National Government had decided to float a $20,000,000 loan for the relief of flood victims. The treasury has granted $2,000,000 to the general relief committee for emergency cases, the dispatch said.

Property and crop damage resulting from the floods throughout China were estimated at more than $248,000,000, with 23,260,000 persons reported in distress. The floods were caused by excessive rainfall.

PITTSBURGH ITALIAN CONSULATE BOMBED

State Department Asks Blast Report; Ambassador Is Seeking Details.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The Italian Vice Consulate Building was badly damaged by a bomb explosion here early today.

The front porch of the three-story brick structure was demolished, plaster was torn loose in several rooms, furnishings were wrecked and windows shattered.

The explosion shook buildings three blocks from the scene and broke windows. Dr. Giovanni Guirato, the Consul, was alone in the building at the time.

City detectives said Dr. Guirato told them he believed foes of the Mussolini government were responsible for the bombing. He said he knew of no enemies here.

The damaged building was under police guard today, while detectives combed the underworld for clues. Damage was estimated by firemen at $4,000.

(Associated Press.)

State Department officials said yesterday they would ask Pittsburgh authorities for a report on the explosion, which damaged the Italian Vice Consulate.

Ambassador de Martino, of Italy, also will inquire into the matter.

The Italian Ambassador asked the State Department for a report on the explosion.

Acting Secretary Castle, of the Department, said he would seek a Justice Department investigation.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 12

"SHORT HAULS," as described in street car company reports of the present day, were unknown when this picture was taken, for one glance at this car is sufficient to inform the reader that a ride was a ride at that time.

Apparently when the strap hanger paid his nickel he was in for an all-day journey. The only places to which the car went were the B. & O. passenger and freight stations on New York avenue, the K street market, Convention Hall, Eckington, Soldiers' Home, Catholic University and Brookland.

Uniforms for motormen and conductors, it seems, were not the vogue at that time, and street cars did not carry so many passengers, for it will be noticed that only five seats are available on each side of the vehicle. An old-fashioned bumper and the single truck, with four wheels, are other marks of antiquity.

SMASHING VICTORY CLAIMED BY CUBAN LOYALIST FORCE

had been loyal in virtually all instances.

Various clashes, many of which continued as Federals pursued insurgent groups or attacked outlying strongholds, were reported to headquarters, including the following:

Rebels attacked the telegraph station at Sierra Morena, on the border of Matanzas and Santa Clara, destroying the building by fire after looting it. The small settlement nearby was held by rebels.

Rebels under command of Dr. Garrigo clashed with troops under Corpl. Herrera near Arimao, Cienfuegos, with severe casualties on both sides.

Federal troops drove back insurgents at Casajal, but suffered two wounded men. Rebel losses uncertain.

Government forces crushed rebel groups at Vina and Santo Spiritus, where Gen. Menocal was believed to be directing a general insurgent mobilization.

Four were reported dead and several wounded in a clash near Loma del Toro, Province of Pinar del Rio.

Santiago de Cuba was reported quiet, but there were several minor clashes near Havana.

Former Envoy Predicts Victory by Cuban Rebels

Confidence in the continued progress of the revolutionary movement in Cuba was expressed yesterday by Cosme De La Torriente, Nationalist leader, who arrived here to study the antiadministration movement from the scene of his former service as ambassador.

De La Torriente, who was Cuba's first ambassador to the United States, from 1923 to the middle of 1925, said that "in my opinion the public opinion throughout the island is so great against the oligarchy in power that I am confident the movement will increase constantly."

He said he had left Havana when he knew the arrest of antiadministration leaders was contemplated and had come here "awaiting developments." He conferred Tuesday with colleagues in New York.

De La Torriente said he would study conditions and would ask for the moral support of people in the United States in behalf of the insurgents.

He gave no indication, however, that he contemplated any definite organization at this time of the Nationalists in this country, or any formal moves in opposition to United States' intervention, although the anti-Machado representatives here repeatedly have declaimed against any United States interference in Cuban affairs.

The Nationalist leader said the change in the Cuban constitution in 1927 brought about the troubles in Cuba, "as all liberties have been suppressed."

TARIFF ACT BLAMED FOR ECONOMIC ILLS

Politics Institute Is Told That Law Makes Exporting More Difficult.

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Prolongation of the present depression was attributed to the Smoot-Hawley tariff act by Jacob Viner, professor of economics of the University of Chicago, at the Institute of Politics today. Prof. Viner told members of the Round Table Conference on International Problems of Commercial and Financial Policy that there are excellent grounds for the belief that tariff prolonged the depression and is still prolonging it.

The "flexible clause in the Smoot-Hawley tariff act does not make for important reductions in the duties levied, he said, and even if it did, the Tariff Commission, "heavily loaded with its high-tariff men," would never invoke it to lower tariffs.

He labeled the Smoot-Hawley tariff act as "economically inexpedient," asserting it makes exporting more difficult by raising the general price level of labor and raw materials.

The gain in employment in the home consumption industries is more than offset by the loss of employment in the export industry, he found.

In the General Conference on the Future of the British Commonwealth, Charles A. Leneveu, president of Union Coloniale Francaise, discussed the foreign policy of the British Empire, and the empire free trade question as those affected France. He pointed to the advocacy in England of empire free trade and a closer economic union of Great Britain and its dominions.

Dr. Arthur N. Holcombe, professor of government of Harvard University, said it was reasonable to suppose the transfer of control of Canadian-American diplomacy from British to Canadian hands would prove advantageous to Canada and not unsatisfactory to the United States.

Custody of Winkler Asked by Four States

St. Joseph, Mich., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—While three States prepared to claim custody of Gus Winkler, wanted for numerous bank robberies, physicians at Mercy Hospital said tonight that Winkler, injured in an automobile accident last week, will not be able to be removed for several days.

The contest of Illinois, Wisconsin and Nebraska for possession of the prisoner is expected by local officers to come to a head Friday or Saturday, with presentation of claims to the Governor of Michigan. Warrants for bank robbery in Yorkville, Ill., and Jefferson, Wis., already are here, and at Lincoln, Nebr., extradition papers were being prepared on a charge of participation in the $2,500,000 robbery of the Lincoln National Bank & Trust Co., last September.

Boy, 12, Kills Brother, Aged 8, With Rifle Shot

Chicago, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—William Carl, 12, shot and killed his 8-year-old brother, Darrel, today, using a rifle he had just purchased from another boy for 40 cents, apparently without any particular reason. Darrel was pumping a bicycle tire when William came into the Carl back yard and inquired of his 6-year-old sister, Mary: "Shall I shoot him?"

The GIRL About Town

I WENT up to Capitol Hill to see William Tyler Page, Clerk of the House of Representatives, to ask him a question for a paper I am going to read before my literary club. He is the author of "The American's Creed" and an authority on the history of Congress. Committee hearings will begin shortly. Then the playboys of the Senate will get in full swing tossing the debt holiday and the wheat situation back and forth. Mr. Page says it is impossible to tell whether the Republicans or Democrats will organize the House. A deadlock over the Speakership might waste two months, as it has done several times.

I hear that Secretary Charles Francis Adams is having a special yachting uniform made for the naval pageant when he is to sail the frigate "Old Ironsides" into Yorktown Harbor at the sesquicentennial celebration.

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot is in town for a day or two on business connected with the Pinchot mansion on Rhode Island avenue. Her hair is as red as ever, and she is just as peppy. She would not say that she really intended to run for Congress, and she would not deny it. She has brains, they need them in the House of Representatives; so I think she will run.

I like democracy. I never felt so democratic as at a dinner given by Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson in London during the naval parley, when at the same table were marine privates from the guard, the wife of an embassy attache, an American woman trying to have her daughters presented to court, a stenographer, two clerks and the wife of a foreign Minister to the Court of St. James.

DIAMOND VALUES
Are Constantly Increasing

"Distress-selling" on the part of a few jewelers does not mean that Diamonds are fluctuating in value. Aside from the fact that the demand for FINEST QUALITY DIAMONDS exceeds the supply, three other factors definitely assure the steady advance of Diamond prices. These are: the declining yield at the mines, the ever-increasing cost to recover from the earth and the ever-growing cost to cut and polish. When you purchase a diamond at R. BOMB TEST FIZZLES AS PLANES FLY WIDE

The Mt. Shasta Still Floats After Aircraft Fail to Spot Her at Sea.

Aboard Coast Guard Cutter Mascontin, off Fort Monroe, Va., Aug. 12. Back in 1921 when the Army Air Corps was getting ready to bomb the German battleships Frankfurt and Ostfriesland, Josephus Daniels, with a contemptuous snort, offered to stand on the poop deck of either vessel with his head bared. Like many others at the time, Daniels had little faith in the ability of the airmen to destroy the German war prizes. Fortunately, Daniels did not take a position on either of the Germans, and, so, today the Raleigh News and Observer continues to carry his trenchant editorials.

The Frankfurt and the Ostfriesland both were sent to the bottom of the Atlantic off the Virginia capes, and the Army Air Corps was jubilant. In 1923, two years later, two other battleships were buried with bombs. These were the obsolete American battleships Virginia and New Jersey and the chief executioner was Col. Billy Mitchell.

A good thing, too, that Daniels was not on the poop deck of either of these with bared head.

It's Always This Way.

However, had former Secretary of the Navy Daniels stood on the S. S Mount Shasta yesterday and defied the Army airmen's bombs, he would have survived and been able to tell about the Army's failure with great gusto.

The Mount Shasta, a war-time freighter which has been rotting in the James River for ten years, had been turned over to the Army for target purposes by the Shipping Board. In tow of the Army tug General Benjamin Schofield and the Coast Guard cutter Mascontin, the Mount Shasta was taken 50 miles off the coast and put on the spot for the bombers of Langley Field.

Both the Schofield and the Mascontin carried reporters and cameramen. We had been told that the bombers would arrive at 11 o'clock. At that hour the Mount Shasta was cut adrift, the cameramen trained their lenses on her and the reporters got ready to record their impressions.

Broadcaster Overworked.

Meanwhile, on the Schofield, Ted Husing, the announcer of the Columbia Broadcasting Co., began telling an invisible audience of the spectacle that was about to come.

Husing talked for an hour and 40 minutes, promising all the time that the Mount Shasta soon would be blown to oblivion. In the end, however, he had to call off the funeral.

The reason was that the executioners, the bombing planes from Langley Field, had failed to show up. The clouds were low, there was some haze and fog and the bombers were unable to locate the condemned vessel.

A group of observation planes and a blimp, which had taken off earlier, located the Mount Shasta according to schedule, but the nine bombers evidently went too far north.

Planes and Blimp Give Up.

The observation planes and the blimp flew around overhead for about two hours and then went back to shore. Then arose the problem of what to do about the Mount Shasta. Drifting around as she was, the constituted a real menace to navigation. Consequently Capt. Kiernan, able skipper of the Mascontin, decided to stand by her all night.

The Schofield, however, headed back for Old Point Comfort. Late last night, while the ocean was churning with huge whitecaps and while half of the reporters and cameramen were trying to fight off seasickness, the Mascontin received a radio flash to the effect that the Schofield was in distress. Whereupon the cutter went to the rescue. She found the Army tug about 19 miles from the coast with her engine crippled and towed her into Old Point Comfort.

Tonight, the Mount Shasta, granted a reprieve by the weather, swings around like a ghost ship about 30 miles off Currituck Light. It is estimated that she has drifted 20 miles since 11 o'clock yesterday. Friday, between 11 and 12, the Army bombers of Langley Field will make another attempt to sink the Mount Shasta and, if the weather is good, it is an easy 5-to-1 bet that they will succeed.

Delay Points a Lesson.

No doubt military and naval men will talk for some time about the lessons that may be derived from the Mount Shasta's escape. This much certainly is clear, even to a layman—Army bombers can not go out to do battle against an enemy ship in bad weather. A local writer, visualizing the Mount Shasta as an enemy troopship or an enemy raider, declares that the breathing space given her by the bombers would have permitted her to land troops or to have raised havoc with American shipping.

Such an observation, however, fails to take into account two things. No matter how bad the weather, Navy vessels would set out after an invading ship known to be approaching the coast. If by any chance the enemy ship should escape the Navy vessels, she would still have to escape the guns of Fort Monroe, the Army coast defense post at Old Point Comfort, which guards Chesapeake Bay and the Potomac River, and consequently the National Capital.

And even if an enemy ship should escape the guns it is hardly likely that she would escape the mines that would be planted in the bay in war times.

Radio Plane Returns After 4 Hours Over Sea

A radio plane which accompanied the bombers on yesterday's frustrated expedition made a forced landing at Virginia Beach, after circling the target for four hours awaiting the arrival of the major bombing group. Upon landing the six men aboard found that they had been thought lost at sea.

While over the sea the ship's gasoline tanks ran low, and the pilot dropped sand ballast. In landing the plane narrowly escaped ground-looping because of an excessively light tail. Only 20 gallons of fuel remained of the 700-gallon load which was aboard when the ship set out. Lieut. Guy Henderson, pilot; Lieut. George Halloman and John Mayo, Columbia System radio announcer, were among those on the flight.

Louis Norman, a brother, had been visiting with him at the hotel, but yesterday was en route to his home in Akron, Ohio.

Capt. Norman, a guest at the hotel for five years, came to Washington in April, 1920, to accept a post as special assistant to the Attorney General. He held the position until July, 1921, and has since been active in the practice of law here.

Meteorite Show Hidden by Clouds

Clearing Weather Would Permit Viewing From Dark Tonight.

Mother Nature's much-exploited meteoric show proved a disappointment last night, because the brilliant display was hidden behind a cloudy, overcast sky.

With clearer weather tonight, the performance may be witnessed if you are in a dark spot, preferably a country field, and not near bright artificial lights. If there is no show tonight either, the amateur observer will have to wait until this time next year for another chance, according to the Naval Observatory.

'Pep Talks' Given Blame For Slump by Roosevelt

Silver Bay, N. Y., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, addressing representatives of small industries from every section of the United States at a conference here today, blamed "pep talks and red fire" for overproduction and the industrial depression.

The governor laid down what was believed to be one of the principles he would offer for economic relief in event he becomes the Democratic candidate next year. "What has been lacking is planning, the kind of planning which will prevent and not stimulate overproduction," the governor said.

Osage Oil Council Meets Tomorrow

Leaseholders to Appeal for Royalty Reduction at Hearing Here.

(Associated Press.)

The Osage Indian Council has been summoned to Washington to hear the appeals of natural gas operators holding leases on their Oklahoma lands for reduction in royalty payments and minimum production requirements.

The operators, who have insisted that the royalty of one-sixth of the value of the gas at the well is too high, will address their appeal to the council tomorrow.

Police Drop 'Kidnaping' As Gambler Returns

Gary, Ind., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Police dropped their investigation into the five-day kidnaping of William Flanigan shortly after the gambler returned home safely today. Flanigan, showing lack of sleep and care of his personal appearance, said he had been treated well, although he had not had much sleep and that no ransom had been paid for his release. He told police he had no complaint to make.

The kidnapers demanded $100,000 at first, reduced it to $50,000 and then to $5,000. Flanigan's attorney said he tricked the gang into releasing his client when he proved he knew where Flanigan was held.

LINDBERGHS TO QUIT ALASKAN SOIL TODAY

Flight of 1,000 Miles From Nome Is Scheduled to Siberian Island.

Nome, Alaska, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Nome experienced one of its greatest thrills since the 1900 gold rush by entertaining Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh with a trip today to the historic gold fields, where huge dredges are at work, and to other points of interest in the famous mining town.

The flying couple, on their way to the Orient for a vacation trip, arrived at Safety Bay, 21 miles from here, at 10:25 a. m. (4:25 p. m. E.S.T.) yesterday after a one-stop flight from Point Barrow.

They plan to take off tomorrow morning across Bering Sea for Karagin Island, off the coast of the Kamchatka Peninsula, where fuel supplies have been placed on its southwestern tip.

The hop, slightly over 1,000 miles, will take the Lindberghs over the northern and western tip of St. Lawrence Island to Cape Navarin, on the Siberian coast, and then eastward down the Kamchatka Peninsula to Karagin Island.

After refueling there they will leave for Petropavlovsk, about 450 miles away, near the end of the peninsula, and then for Tokyo, about 1,500 miles south. They probably will stop at Nemuro, about halfway between Petropavlovsk and the Japanese capital.

The vacationers' longest over water hop, between St. Lawrence Island and Cape Navarin, will be about 250 miles. From the Kamchatka Peninsula their route will carry them over the Kurile Islands, noted as a brewing place for sudden storms.

After they leave here, Mrs. Lindbergh, who has been complimented by northern radio men as an expert in handling radio equipment, will be called upon to show all her skill in maintaining contact with the St. Paul Island naval radio station in the Pribilofs, from which will be relayed all news concerning the flight down the Siberian coast.

Radio compass bearings will be given Mrs. Lindbergh while in flight by the naval radio station at St. Paul Island. Mrs. Lindbergh will be able to determine her position with the radio direction finder and turn the information over to Col. Lindbergh, who can thereby get a reliable check on his compasses which may be expected to be erratic in that latitude. The black low wing monoplane will have a full load of almost 500 gallons of gasoline when it leaves here.

Berlin Studies Plans Of Opening Exchanges

Berlin, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Problems involved in the reopening of stock exchanges were discussed today at a conference between the Prussian ministry, the managing committees of Prussian exchanges and other experts.

An agreement was reached on technical measures to be taken before business is resumed. It was decided that variable quotations, as well as quotations for futures, be prohibited until further notice, and that the settlement of pending engagements be regulated according to local needs. The actual date of reopening the exchanges will be fixed soon, it was said, after consultation with trade and industrial circles.

Cylinder Thought Clew to Cramer

Believed to Indicate Pilot Crashed in North Sea; Friend Hopes.

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—A steel cylinder found off the North Jutland coast probably was part of Parker D. Cramer's airplane equipment, Bert Hassell, the missing aviator's companion in an attempted Rockford-to-Stockholm flight, told the United Press tonight.

A similar steel cylinder was among the equipment he and Hassell had for the Stockholm attempt which failed, Hassell said. It was used to store compressed air for possible emergency use in inflating a rubber life boat, he explained.

"I'm sorry to hear that," Hassell said when he was told the news, "because it undoubtedly means that Cramer's plane has made a forced descent. I am still confident that 'Shorty' will come through, however. He may have descended in an isolated fjord or he may be aboard some small fishing boat without radio. In either event, he would be unheard from for possibly weeks."

JAPANESE TO INDICT U. S. PAIR, IS BELIEF

Army and Patriotic Groups Aroused, Action Seen Likely Today.

Tokyo, Aug. 13 (Thursday) (A.P.).—Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, jr., American aviators, reported to the public procurator at 9 o'clock this morning for further cross-examination in connection with photographs they took while flying over Japanese territory.

Authorities indicated the examination probably would be completed today and the Rengo News Agency as well as several vernacular newspapers predicted the aviators, who came here to start a non-stop flight to Seattle, would be indicted.

Officials of the foreign offices were reported to have suggested the judiciary show leniency, but the War Department was said to have adopted quite a different view of the case.

Patriotic societies and reactionary individuals were clamoring for the punishment of the fliers. Reactionaries sent a delegation to the procurator's office yesterday urging drastic punishment for the fliers.

Japanese law against the photographing of fortified areas is extremely rigid.

It provides for confiscation of the airplane and imprisonment for as long as three years.

Young Glider Pilot Aloft for Seven Hours

Elmira, N. Y., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—J. H. (Bud) Stickler, of New York City, young glider pilot, soared into the lead for the record endurance flight of the 1931 National Gliding and Soaring Meet here today by returning to the launching field nearly seven hours and a half after he took off South Mountain into a spanking wind. The official time was seven hours 28 minutes 30 seconds in flight.

Stickler missed by less than a minute and a half the mark established by Albert S. Hastings, of Los Angeles, Calif., in winning the Edward S. Evans trophy last year.

GERMAN SEEKS NEW ATLANTIC AIR ROUTE

German Aviator, in Iceland, May Continue Flight Around World.

New York, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—A new and safer North Atlantic air trail across Iceland and Greenland, and over the barren Hudson Bay country to Chicago, is the objective of Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, veteran of one transatlantic flight to New York from Germany.

Von Gronau, now at Reykjavik, Iceland, could not be reached for further details of his plans, but there was a probability today he would continue around the world from Chicago.

Hertha Seeleman-Miron, of the flying division of the Hamburg-American Lines, who acts as Von Gronau's secretary in this country, said the German airman would make an exhaustive study of ice and weather conditions while crossing Greenland.

Capt. Von Gronau, she said, "wants to be the first one to cross Greenland." When he made his first westward crossing of the North Atlantic a year ago, she explained, he merely touched at the southwestern tip of Greenland, stopping off at Ivigtut.

From the western coast of Greenland Von Gronau plans to fly over the Hudson Bay country to Chicago, arriving about August 25 or 26. He will not come to New York before proceeding westward. Gasoline supplies are being laid on the Aleutian Islands off Alaska for use if he continues around the world.

"He has permission to fly to Chicago and that's all," Miss Seeleman-Miron said. "The government (of Germany) may tell him to come back or may tell him to go on. We do not want to say it's an around-the-world flight because who can tell what may happen?"

Von Gronau is awaiting favorable weather at Reykjavik, Iceland. His companions, who accompanied him on last year's flight, are Edward Zimmer, an aviation student; Franz Hack, mechanic, and a wireless mechanic named Albrecht.

Capture May Unravel Three Hindu Slayings

Sacramento, Calif., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Renewed investigation of Hindu slayings at Sacramento a few months ago was promised today with receipt of information that Basant Singh, charged with killing Bhola Singh at Walnut Grove in February, has been located in Vancouver, B. C.

Bhola Singh was slain about the time N. Ram Dhami was shot to death on a Sacramento street and shortly before Sant Ram Pande, Hindu student of the University of California, disappeared from Marysville. Pande's decapitated body was found in the Sacramento River.

Hawks in Record Hop; Will Join Indian Tribe

Hot Springs, S. Dak., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Capt. Frank Hawks, transcontinental speed king, landed here at 2:34 p. m. (M. S. T.) today from Chicago, flying here for induction into the tribe of Sioux Indians.

Capt. Hawks left Chicago about 10:45 a. m. (C. S. T.), after clipping 13 minutes from the record for the westward flight from New York to the former city. He paused only long enough to eat a sandwich before hopping off again for Hot Springs.

Throng in Irish Free State Bars Orangemen's Session

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The countryside along the Ulster-Free State border was in ferment all today in consequence of an announcement by Orangemen that they intended to hold a meeting in the town of Cootehill. The town is in County Cavan, in Free State territory.

Today Cootehill resembled a beseiged stronghold, with roads and railways barricaded or torn up over a considerable area.

Because of the measures taken by the Republicans to prevent the meeting the Orangemen crossed the border to Aughnacloy, where they assembled undisturbed.

In the early morning thousands of members of the "Irish Republican army" which opposed the Cosgrave government, took up positions on all the main roads, to prevent the Orangemen from gaining access to Cootehill. A platform erected at the proposed meeting place was pulled down and the Orange emblems were removed.

A youth who made jeering remarks about the Republicans was badly manhandled, and a prominent citizen who intervened in his behalf met similar treatment.

A strong force of civic guards arrived at Cootehill over night, but another party was prevented from entering the town by barricades. Eventually troops from a nearby encampment got in.

In the afternoon some of the Republican leaders, armed with hurley sticks (hockey sticks), lined up on one side of a street, while the military faced them across the road and took upon themselves the directing of traffic. Inspector Neville of the civic guards, ordered a baton charge, which dispersed the Republicans. A Republican leader from County Leitrim was arrested for issuing military orders.

Gen. O'Duffy, chief commissioner of the civic guards, arrived on the scene this evening and took charge.

The Orangemen's gathering at Aughnacloy was addressed by J. C. Crossley, of Tyrone, who said that if the Free State was going to treat loyal men as they had done that day, the Ulster majority, if it so desired, could make opponents within their own borders suffer just as much as their own Free State brethren had suffered.

Spring Wheat Estimate Of 54 Issued by Canada

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The crop report issued today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimates the condition of spring wheat at 54, as compared with 100, the long-term average since records were first collected. The report is based on conditions as of July 31 last.

In a report based on conditions of June 30 the condition was placed at 56. Last year on July 31 the condition was estimated at 86. In the prairie provinces the condition as of July 31 in Manitoba for spring wheat is placed at 56; Saskatchewan at 42, and Alberta 77.

Kaye Don, Sailing, Plans New Speedboat Records

Southampton, England, Aug. 12 (U. P.).—Kaye Don, holder of world speed boat records, sailed for the United States today confident of breaking his own marks at the Detroit competition for the British international speedboat trophy in September.

"My recent experiments have resulted in a terrific increase of the speed of Miss England II," he said. "I am confident of a good showing."

KNOX AND ELLIS BUY CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Two New England Publishers Take Control of Paper Founded in 1876.

Chicago, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Two New England newspapermen, Frank Knox, president of the Manchester (N. H.) Union Leader Publishing Co., and Theodore T. Ellis, former publisher of the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram Gazette, today purchased the controlling interest in the Chicago Daily News.

Executors of the estate of Walter A. Strong, publisher of the News, who died May 10, announced the sale. The price was not revealed. Knox became publisher of the large afternoon daily and president of the Chicago Daily News, Inc. Ellis assumed the office of vice president.

Rufus C. Dawes and Joseph E. Otis, chairman of the Dawes-controlled Central Republic Bank & Trust Co., were named as new members of the board of directors.

The first regular number of the Chicago Daily News was issued January 2, 1876. It was owned by Melville E. Stone, for many years general manager of the Associated Press; Percy R. Meggy and William E. Dougherty. Victor F. Lawson bought a controlling interest in July, 1876, and published the paper until his death, August 19, 1925. Strong then became publisher.

Knox, the new publisher, was born in Boston. He served in the Spanish-American War and in the World War. In 1927, he became general manager of all the Hearst newspaper properties. He resigned the latter position last January 1.

If you can't buy a New Car

get this Increased Power in your Old Car

There's more power in that old car of yours than you realize. More life to its starting. Improved acceleration. Faster pickup. You can get an entirely new "feel" out of driving it . . . without spending a cent for overhauling!

The answer is . . . ESSO.

Esso was developed to deliver maximum performance in the newest high-compression motors. A single tankful will show you that it makes an equally great difference in the way your old car runs.

Not merely because deterioration has made your engine less responsive. But especially because carbon deposit has actually increased its compression-ratio. You need Esso in your old car to get full power . . . and to get rid of knocks . . . As the chart above shows, Esso is strikingly superior even to other leading premium fuels.

Here's a comparison of the power developed in a high compression motor—without knocking—by leading premium-priced fuels. It explains why ESSO gives what seems to be new-car performance in your old car. Note that ESSO is 3.5% more powerful than its nearest competitor . . . and 15.5% better than its poorest competing extra-priced fuel.

Its specially-refined initial base—to which Ethyl is added—is what makes it so outstanding.

A 10-day test . . . and you'll see that driving an old car doesn't mean you have to put up with "old-car performance."

THE DEBT PLAN COMPLETE.

The final technicalities necessary to make effective President Hoover's program for a year's suspension of intergovernmental payments have been completed. With the acceptance of the report of the international experts at London stipulating the terms of repayment of suspended installments, the last detail is perfected in the plan that saved the credit of the German republic and prevented financial complications that would have prolonged indefinitely the world-wide depression.

The practical effectuation of the moratorium assures to Germany a saving in outlay this year of $394,400,000. It means that, instead of sending that sum abroad, Germany can now devote it to the consolidation of its financial resources and support of its credit. Instead of meeting that heavy payment next year, Germany is allowed twelve years in which to make it up in ten yearly installments, to begin July 1, 1933.

The United States foregoes for a time the receipt of $246,000,000. It is a large sum in view of the deficit in the national budget, but a small item in comparison with the loss the Nation and private interests would have suffered in a world collapse such as would have followed a German debacle. There has been no writing off of this year's payments due from other nations, as pessimists predicted would happen. The suspended installments become unconditional obligations of the debtor governments, to be repaid over a ten-year period, as in the case of the German payments.

The prompt adoption of the protocol that coordinates the debt suspension with the Young plan must be a source of satisfaction to the President, as it is a matter of congratulation, not only to Germany, but to all nations. It brings relief to the entire world in a trying period, permitting the adjustment of national finances to the reduced incomes generally attendant upon the depression. Great Britain was in almost as perilous a condition as Germany. Now, with confidence largely restored, it has been possible for France and America to buttress British credit. The Hoover moratorium has already paved the way to restoration of world confidence.

WAGES ON DISMISSAL.

The current depression is responsible for study of conditions affecting production, labor and consumption on a scale that has never been undertaken in this country before. All interests are making determined efforts to learn the lessons that this protracted situation should teach, and this time it is realized that this must be done before a return of prosperity and business activity distracts attention. It is a most hopeful sign that labor leaders, economists and captains of industry are all equally earnest in their endeavors to find, not only remedial measures for the present, but to inaugurate for the future more systematic planning with well-informed foresight that will seek to avoid such severe dislocations.

Much has been said of the necessity for arranging a better balance between production and the possibilities of consumption offered by home and foreign markets. Not so much has been heard of the need for devising more equitable regulations for the protection of legal and moral rights of wage-earners, though there is general agreement that they must be protected against wage cuts. In this determination the great majority of industrial organizations and the Federal administration have stood firmly together.

A recent survey by the National Industrial Conference Board shows that in the matter of dismissal wages industrial management has failed to arrive at any equitable solution. Examination of practice in case of the discharge of employes among nearly 4,000 companies, employing from a few hundred to 20,000 workers, showed that only about 3 per cent had definite regulations covering such cases. The dismissal wage is something that has only recently been considered at all in this country. In several countries, particularly in Latin America, it is made compulsory by law. In Mexico three months' wages must be paid upon dismissal of an employe. In other nations it varies; in some cases payment of a month's wages for every year of employment is exacted.

The investigations of the Industrial Conference Board revealed several instances of enforced suspension in which the payment of reasonable dismissal wages had had a salutory effect in relieving distressing conditions and in the morale of the workers. The board concludes that industrial management must find a constructive solution for the more pressing social problems that affect the employes, or the matter will be taken out of their hands, as State legislatures are showing each year a growing inclination to regulate such matters. Against the objection of the uncertain cost of a dismissal wage policy in particular, it is argued that industry must consider its salutary effect on employment and utilization of labor, its undoubted benefit to displaced workers, and its contribution toward social stability.

NO MEDDLING IN CUBA.

Cuban revolutionary activity is more serious than at first appeared. The Menocal manifesto shows that the opposition movement has long been planned and is aimed directly at President Machado. If the Cuban army of 12,000 men, equipped with modern weapons and airplanes, remains faithful to Gen. Machado it will be impossible to unseat him, notwithstanding widespread discontent throughout the republic resulting from protracted economic depression and unemployment.

That the opposition leader, former President Menocal, realizes that disaffection among the government troops is necessary for his success is evidenced by his proclamation, in which he says he is sure that he "can count on a good number of the armed forces of the nation. They are going to serve Cuba, not one man or group of men." So far, however, there has been no indication that the soldiers are deserting to the rebel cause.

Censorship prevents direct communication with points in the interior, but brief reports have been issued recording minor clashes at various points and acknowledging the concentration of comparatively small bands of insurgents. The tension throughout the island, and even in Havana, has brought business to a standstill. Official and military circles seem to be satisfied that the situation is under control of government forces in all provinces.

The situation is not one that calls for action by the United States under the Platt amendment. Nothing short of a condition of anarchy would warrant American intervention. The interpretation given to the Platt amendment by Secretary Root in 1901 covers the present situation. He said:

> The intervention envisaged under the Platt amendment is not synonymous with intermeddling or interference with the affairs of the Cuban government, but the formal action of the Government of the United States based upon just and substantial grounds, for the preservation of Cuban independence and the maintenance of a government adequate for the protection of life, property and individual liberty, and adequate for the discharge of the obligations with respect to Cuba imposed by the Treaty of Paris on the United States.

In view of the constitutional changes now being prepared by the Cuban Congress, the Menocal movement loses much of its potential force. Cubans opposed to the Machado regime have seen some of their most important demands met by legislative means. The "revolution" is left without a fighting issue. This fact, together with army support of the government, may spell the early collapse of the Menocal movement.

ANOTHER GANGSTER CAUGHT.

A Kansan come to judgment! New York's most notorious gangster, Jack (Legs) Diamon, is sentenced to four years in the Atlanta Penitentiary and to pay a fine of $11,000. The sentence was imposed by Judge Richard J. Hopkins, of Kansas, sitting as guest jurist in the Federal Court.

For the first time in his long career Diamond is convicted of a major crime. His lawless acts began in his youth and as a hoodlum, gangster and racketeer he has managed to avoid punishment. His escapes from the law have been as remarkable as his immunity from death by assassins' bullets.

Diamond has appealed the case, but testimony adduced at the trial may involve him in more serious crimes than those for which he received maximum sentences. Facts brought out indicate that he is guilty also under the Jones law. Judge Hopkins instructed the district attorney to place this evidence before the grand jury. If the allegations should be proved, Diamond would become liable to longer sentences than those just imposed. Judge Hopkins said in this respect:

> I would be remiss in my duty if I did not suggest that evidence showing possession, transportation and sale in violation of the Jones act be laid before the grand jury. The defendant, if convicted of crimes brought to light through the evidence in this case, would be liable to far more severe punishment than that possible on the conspiracy count. He might be sentenced to 30 or 40 years.

Gradually, if all too slowly to satisfy the impatience of outraged communities, the archplotters against law and order are being rounded up by Federal authority. There appeared to be no irregularity in the trial that will permit Diamond and his associate, who was sentenced to two years, to escape through appeal.

Respectable citizens everywhere will agree with Judge Hopkins in his statement from the bench to the effect that "if we are going to have organized government here instead of anarchy, men found to have violated the law must suffer the full penalty."

BOMBING AT SEA.

The Army Air Corps' bombing tests that will be made tomorrow on the old wartime steamer, Mount Shasta, off the Virginia capes, will emphasize the practical manner in which an efficient sky-line defense is being built up. This exhibition of marksmanship ought to be as illuminating as the air maneuvers last May, when the entire flying force of the Army conducted operations notable for their freedom from accident and their demonstration of the actual requirements in connection with mobilization.

The Friday trial will not be staged with a view to making it spectacular. It is target practice for the bombing squadrons, to test the advance that has been made in marksmanship in the last three years. Army airmen would be the last to claim that sinking the Mount Shasta, defenseless and unprotected by decks designed to resist aircraft attack, is comparable to a battle with a modern war vessel. It does offer, however, opportunity to note the effects of 100 and 300 pound bombs, and whether phosphorous bombs can be placed to fire the vessel.

No less important is the practice to be secured in locating the vessel, 50 miles at sea, and in proving the efficiency of the radio equipment for use in directing maneuvers. All such technical matters are worked out thoroughly in theory and practice on land, but actual attack upon a vessel in an unknown location at sea much more nearly approximates actual combat conditions.

The precision with which the fliers find the Mount Shasta will determine the progress made in scouting technique. The ship when found will seem an easy mark, but it must be borne in mind that larger bombs and more of them could be used in actual warfare. The tests will be under the immediate command of Maj. Dargue, of the bombing group. They will be witnessed by Gen. MacArthur, Chief of Staff of the Army, and Maj. Gen. Fechet, Chief of the Air Corps, as well as by several officers acting as observers for the Navy. An interesting feature of the bombing will be the broadcasting of the event, both from the observation vessel carrying newspaper correspondents and from an airplane circling above the scene.

The Empire Building has been struck by lightning again, and Al Smith has hopes.

FORESTALLING LIGHTNING.

From the New York Sun.

Lightning is responsible for more forest fires in the northern Rocky Mountain region than all other causes combined. Over a ten-year period the annual average was 824 fires started by lightning against 379 started by smokers, campers, brush burners, logging operations and railroads. In one year, 1926, lightning started fires which burned over more than 311,000 acres of forest land in Idaho and Montana, destroying timber valued at more than $3,500,000. On July 12, 1926, lightning started 150 forest fires in the 600,000 acres of the Kaniksu National Forest. How can a protective organization, working on the principle of attacking forest fires before they spread, handle such a problem?

For five years the Northern Rocky Mountain Forest Experiment Station has been studying electrical storms in that region in the hope that something might be discovered which could be used to advantage against this menace to the forests. At the end of the calendar year 1928, when these workers studied their records, they found one fact that went contrary to meteorological tables for the region. William H. Alexander's study of the distribution of thunderstorms in the United States, published in 1924, gives 10 to 30 thunderstorm days a year for that region as the normal. The study undertaken from 1924 to 1928, inclusive, gave for the region as a whole an average of 88 thunderstorm days a year. Local thunderstorms, capable of starting forest fires but not usually observed from the regular weather stations, are believed to account for most of the difference.

Weather observers have long characterized certain thunderstorms as "safe" or "dangerous," in accordance with a rough practical rule. The difficulty has been that the character of the storms was determined only after they had done whatever damage they were going to do; the knowledge came too late to be of much use. The study conducted by the experiment station reveals certain characteristics of the safe storm and the dangerous storm which may be recognized by lookouts and rangers.

On the basis of more than 9,500 observations of storms, it was found that rain falls on a particular section for about twelve minutes before lightning strikes in that section or flashes above it. From these same observations it was found that the rain that follows the last flash of lightning in any particular region can be counted on to last approximately 37 minutes. The rain that precedes and the rain that follows the lightning are factors, respectively, in preventing the start of a forest fire and in keeping it from spreading, once started. The station's study, as reported in the Monthly Weather Review, discloses that in the dangerous storms the so-called "scud rain" that comes in advance of the lightning lasts only about six minutes and that the secondary rain that follows the lightning lasts only 30 minutes. Over a period of five years repeated observation of safe and dangerous storms gave the same finding. The dangerous storm was the one in which both scud rain and secondary rain were cut shorter than usual.

One thunderstorm in every three that occurs in this region starts a forest fire, but the characteristics of the storm rather than any law of probabilities determine whether it is going to start a fire. The lookout or the ranger, observing the storm, can report its path, the amount of precipitation before, during and after its passage and the percentage of lightning confined to the clouds and striking the ground. It may be possible because of the differences in characteristics of the safe and dangerous storms for a lookout to classify a storm as probably dangerous hours before the smoke from a fire can warn him that lightning has struck and to mobilize the fire-fighting forces that much earlier. That, at least, is the hope of those at the experiment station who have been studying thunderstorms for five years and are keeping on with the job, striving to produce a Bertillon system for the electrical storms of the Rockies.

RECKLESS DRIVING LAW.

The State of Michigan has lost patience with drivers who are a menace to public safety, according to the Kansas City Star. In a new statute it has decreed that "every person who drives any vehicle upon a highway carelessly and heedlessly, in willful and wanton disregard of the rights or safety of others and at a speed or in a manner so as to endanger any person or property and thereby injure so as to cripple any person, but not cause death," shall be brought to trial under criminal charges. Maximum punishment is fixed at two years' imprisonment or a fine of $1,000, or both. That ought to catch not only the drunken driver, but the fellow who acts very much like him on a public thoroughfare.

The Manager of a Fighter Must Render Any Service That Will Help to Win Fights

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE "mother instinct" attributed to girls and women is largely imaginary.

Little girls have no more instinctive desire to play mother than small boys have to play father.

They play with dolls, as boys play with stick horses or marbles, because dolls are provided for their entertainment; and their apparent aptitude for motherhood indicates nothing more than a natural tendency to mimic their elders.

A few years ago the normal girl's "instinctive motherhood" was accepted as an established fact because there was no evidence to the contrary.

She mothered her doll as she saw women mothering their babies, and when her doll days were over she mothered her brothers or her father in imitation of her mother's example.

Custom made motherhood her career, and example taught her to mother—that is, to pamper, pet and wait upon—the man who gave her a home.

If her conduct had been instinctive, the modern girl would be like her, for instinct isn't forgotten in one generation.

But the modern girl inherits the knack of motherhood no more than she inherits the knack of baking pies.

Her one inheritance is self-interest, and in that legacy she is joint heir with her brother.

In the hard school of experience she learns to look out for herself and herself only.

She becomes a good stenographer, a good clerk, a good teacher, because she must achieve proficiency to hold a job; but nothing in her training prepares her to be a good mother or a good wife.

That explains the disappointment of the young man who leads her to the altar.

He expects his wife to be much like his mother. He expects her to mother him—to be anxious about his buttons, to worry about his cough, to be a kind of sublimated valet and nurse.

When she goes her independent, self-reliant way and leaves him to care for himself as he did as a bachelor, he feels cheated. He wonders what return he gets for the money he spends to support a wife.

As a matter of fact, he is cheated.

Marriage is a partnership. Each partner must contribute a fair share of service. If the wife doesn't help to earn the living, she must render some service of equal value.

If love doesn't prompt service, fair play requires it. Mothering a man requires no sacrifice of pride. The farmer grooms and pets his plow-horse because such service enables the horse to do better work.

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Nick Longworth's Seat.

Cleveland Plain Dealer.

President Hoover approves the candidacy of John Hollister, Republican, who seeks the place vacated by the death of Nicholas Longworth.

Hollister, it is plain, has a fight on his hands. Even the popular Speaker of the House could muster but a scant plurality in 1930. The trend since then has not been noticeably toward Republicans. A Democrat in Longworth's seat would be something for the country to talk about.

State Senator David Lorbach is Hollister's opponent and the man whose defeat in November Mr. Hoover thinks important to the country. What the First District thinks remains to be recorded.

It would be a sight worth recording for posterity were Senator Fess, driest of the drys, and chairman of the national committee, to go to Cincinnati next fall and argue as he alone knows how to argue for the election of a wet member to the House. But if the White House says go, our last suspender button is bet on the proposition that he goes.

The recent session of the National Education Association again adopted a demand for a Federal department of education, headed by "a secretary with a place in the President's Cabinet."

But Dr. Cooper, United States commissioner of education, has strongly protested against this movement as a scheme to eventually set up political control of the public school systems of the Nation. He is opposed to involving the great national interest in education in the drift toward the centralization of authority and power in the Federal Government. He agrees with those who believe that a Federal department of education would be a great political patronage machine and invite a constant scramble by politicians to get jobs for their friends and supporters.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Jeremiah Johnson Tells What He Would Do if He Were Legislatures or a Politician.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If I were the Legislatures of the great and glorious States, I would pass laws against men working after the age of 50, if they have plenty of money and are not geniuses like Edison. They would either go to the fields to study the stars, birds and flowers, or go to jail. The States have all power not granted to the United States and can do all sorts of stunts—make hotels use nine-foot bed quilts and everybody stand on their heads before breakfast.

If there are 5,000,000 men out of work, 1,000,000 may be crooks whom employers cannot trust, another 1,000,000 are lazy and don't want work and still another 1,000,000 want to pick their jobs. Then there are about 2,000,000 work hogs over 50 who have competencies but no conception of life and leisure. They deprive young men of jobs. John D. Rockefeller seems to be the only business man in the country who has the right idea. He retired 40 years ago.

If I were a politician I would stop talking about tariff reductions, while in the same breath mentioning the Russian Soviet dumping on our shores—candy, matches, gasoline and other articles of manufacture. Our home market amounts to about $90,000,000,000 a year, beside which the export market is a bagatelle. We should take care of ourselves first and then help the rest of the world.

Mass production hogs who seek machines, not men, to do their work got mad at Hoover because he signed the tariff bill, and on the 17th day of June, 1930, the day he signed the bill, they threw an avalanche of stocks on the market, demoralizing it. It has been demoralized ever since, and investors have lost more than $50,000,000,000. If I were a Wall Street magnate I would not allow my spleen to control by intellect.

Pedestrian Cheers for More Traffic Lights as Safeguard of His Life and Rights.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: My congratulations to The Post and to Traffic Director Van Duzer for a sensible stand on the traffic light situation in Washington. As both a motorist and a pedestrian, I regard the traffic lights as an unqualified blessing and utterly indispensable to street safety in Washington.

It is encouraging to see that one newspaper has the intelligence and the courage to speak for unprivileged pedestrians, whose rights usually consist of what is left over after the privileged have had their grab.

Stick to the fight. It is high time that the pedestrian was recognized as part of Washington's traffic and a large part of it. He has rights, and traffic lights are the best assurance that he will be able to exercise them with safety to himself.

Washington needs more rather than fewer light controlled intersections, and here is hoping that Mr. Van Duzer installs them when and where they are required by a pedestrian need that can not be otherwise solved.

Native of St. Thomas Discusses Bob Smythe's Strange Discoveries and Wonders If He Didn't Visit the Wrong Islands.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your special correspondent, Robert B. Smythe, writes rather interestingly on the Virgin Islands. However, I am puzzled as to his objective. Does he merely seek to entertain rather than to enlighten your readers?

In your issue of Sunday, August 9, under heading of "Subsea Pipe Line Supplies Liquor to Virgin Islands," Mr. Symthe, in my opinion, is indulging in irony, both with respect to his descriptions of various kinds of liquors and of the strange animals inhabiting the islands.

When one reads of Mr. Smythe's laughing lizards, mongooses, rats and land crabs, with their peculiar feats, one wonders what has happened to the Virgin Islands. Can it be that Mr. Smythe visited some other group entirely?

As a native of St. Thomas I may write of the islands as I know them.

TO A GOLFER IN A SLUMP.

Sit and tell me about it.
I am sure I'll understand.
Spill your story. I'll not doubt it.
Has the cunning left your hand?
For a week have you been getting
All the cuppy lies and ruts
And, what's even more upsetting,
Are you missing easy putts?

Sad of face and oh, so weary,
Every night you seem to be!
You who were so blithe and cheery
When you shot that eighty-three.
As I've watched you I have wondered
Daily for a week or more
Is your score again a hundred?
Are you slicing as before?

Can it be that you are tailing
Brassie shots and don't know why?
Is that faithful iron failing,
Howsoever fair the lie?
Surely all the cares of banking
Couldn't make you look so glum!
Possibly a fit of shanking
Unexpectedly has come?

Cheer up, sad and dismal brother,
There is nothing you can do,
Though it's maddening drives to smother,
Not alone in grief are you.
You are in a slump and vain it
Is on skill or strength to call,
And no golfer can explain it,
But it happens to us all.

ENGLISH PLANNING $600,000,000 CUT

Deficit Is Discussed by Cabinet Leaders; Talk of Coalition.

London, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Great Britain's "battle of the budget" was carried on today at No. 10 Downing street. Here Prime Minister MacDonald and members of the cabinet subcommittee on economy held a three-hour session to find ways of meeting an apparent deficit through cutting off some £120,000,000 (about $600,000,000), from next year's expenditures.

It was understood no definite decisions were arrived at, but various phases of the May economy report were discussed and suggestions were offered which, it was hoped, might bring a happy ending to what is referred to as "the present grave situation."

The cabinet's "big five" was said to be generally agreed on the necessity of adjusting national finances in such a way as to cause the fewest possible number of persons to suffer and to insure economic stability

The session will be resumed tomorrow morning. Then reports from various government departments will be scanned carefully for spots that can be operated on without the use of anesthetics.

It is uncertain whether the discussion can be concluded tomorrow to allow Mr. MacDonald, Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden, Dominions Secretary J. H. Thomas, Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson and William Graham, secretary of the Board of Trade, to resume their interrupted vacations.

In view of the possibility that Mr. MacDonald may invite the leaders of the Liberal and Conservative parties to participate in a general conference on the budget problem it was reported that Neville Chamberlain, acting head of the Conservatives, intended to return to London soon.

Storms Indicated At Santo Domingo

Barometer Reading Fails to Fix Exact Location or Extent.

Miami, Fla., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Richard W. Gray, of the Miami Weather Bureau, today said a tropical disturbance has been definitely located south of Santo Domingo, but he added its intensity and distance from the island were not indicated from that area. One report from Port au Prince, Haiti, indicated an afternoon barometer reading of 29.88, a slight fall since noon. The wind was described as blowing 35 miles an hour from the east.

Another report from Santo Domingo City said the barometer registered 30. The wind was decreasing, indicating, Gray said, that the storm progressed westward from its position earlier today.

"The position is definitely placed south of Santo Domingo, but how far south it is we do not know," Gray stated. "We have been unable to get reports from near its center, and consequently have no notion as to its intensity." Santo Domingo was virtually destroyed by a tropical hurricane last fall.

Secret Data Case Lost by Du Ponts

Company Claimed Man Sought Information on Rayon Making.

Waynesboro, Va., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—A verdict acquitting John H. Brooks, of Petersburg, of charges of attempting to obtain information concerning a secret manufacturing process of the Du Pont Rayon Co., was announced today by Trial Justice A. C. Kimler, before whom a hearing was held Monday.

Under Virginia law the prosecution can not appeal the case from the trial justice court.

Testimony at the hearing chiefly concerned a list of questions which witnesses said was handed out by Brooks, a former employe of the Tubize Artificial Silk Co., of Hopewell. The questions, it was testified, related to the secret manufacturing process of the Du Pont Co., but their exact nature was not revealed. No defense witness testified.

Minister Ratshesky Is in America on Brief Vacation.

In Washington for a brief 36 hours, yesterday, Mr. Abraham C. Ratshesky, Minister to Czechoslovakia, spent most of his time at the State Department and was received by President Hoover. He left last night for Beverly, Mass., where Mrs. Ratshesky has been staying the past week at their summer home since their arrival in this country a short time ago.

Mr. Ratshesky's faith in the eastern republic is contagious.

"For," he says, "it is a delightful place to live and Mrs. Ratshesky and I have fallen in love with its people and its customs. The reaction of the people to President Hoover's debt moratorium was a delightful inspiration to an American for their friendship to this country is one of extreme loyalty and endurance."

The minister was accompanied to the Capital by his nephew, Mr. John Morse, of Boston. The minister, with Mrs. Ratshesky, will sail on the Leviathan on September 5, and go directly to his post in Prague.

Lieut. W. A. Tattersall, of Norfolk, Va., is at the Powhatan.

AFFORD MODERN HEATING

Modern heating—automatic, constant, effortless—can add more to the comfort and ease of life than any other single convenience. A broad statement? You'll agree to it, as thousands of users do, once you experience its joys.

Just what is Automatic Heating?

There are many so-called automatic heating systems but only one which is really automatic in the full sense of the word—and that is gas. Only gas can burn. Every fuel—wood, coal, oil—has to be turned into gas before it can produce heat. Why not let your Gas Company do that for you?

Only automatic gas heating is entirely clean and quiet. Only gas heating has no complicated machinery to break down or wear out. Only a gas heating system orders and delivers its own fuel—silently, without attention on your part.

Of course, in addition, automatic gas heating gives you everything you expect of a modern system—it keeps your house steadily warm all winter, it turns itself on or off to meet changing weather, it does away forever with all furnace work, it makes your home cleaner and your basement usable.

These, with all the special advantages that gas alone can give you—all for a trifling 75 cents or so a week more than the old nuisance method of heat. Just figure 75 cents times 52 weeks in the year for the average 6 or 7 room brick row house. And you'll see how little the added cost really is. Any family with a modern standard of living can afford automatic gas heating—cost simply doesn't enter into it when its priceless advantages are considered.

Now is the time to investigate. We will survey your home free, and tell you exactly what gas heating would cost you. With comfort, untold convenience, better health and a cleaner home as your reward, isn't this survey information something you owe your family and yourself? Phone NAt. 8280 today or ask any Certified Heating Contractor.

A warning
against substitutes for genuine Kotex

YES, some substitutes are cleverly made to look like Kotex. But that doesn't make them the same.
Are they clean, like Kotex? Scientifically made in surroundings of hospital cleanliness? Have modern methods been used, so that hands have never touched them?
These questions remain unanswered, when you accept a substitute of whose makers you know nothing. But these are questions of vital importance, because they are directly related to your health.
Accept no substitute of whose origin you are uncertain. Demand Kotex—the genuine. Hospitals use Kotex. It fully meets their requirements.
Kotex is supremely comfortable. Shaped to fit. Adjustable. Disposable. Stays soft for hours.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

A NEW policy in the handling of religious broadcasts will be put into effect shortly by the Columbia Broadcasting System. A "Church of the Air" over a national network—in which the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths will be represented—will be started on Sunday, September 13.

Under the new plan the facilities will be donated with no return whatsoever, and whenever necessary, the musical setting for a complete service will be furnished.

In announcing the abolition of religious broadcasting on a commercial basis, William S. Paley said:

"In adopting the new plan of religious broadcasting, we have uppermost in mind freeing ourselves from the responsibility which we are not qualified to assume of allotting time on a commercial basis to different religions and different preachers. So long as we view this question solely in the light of business practice, we are likely to fail to give to the radio audience the balanced religious broadcasting it is entitled to. We feel that religious broadcasting is a public service which should be administered as far as possible under the guidance of persons closely associated with religious endeavor."

ALLOTMENT of time among the various faiths and sects is being worked out on the basis of the relative numerical strength of the principal religious organizations of America.

Two half-hour periods each Sunday are contemplated in the plan. Each period will be a complete service so far as the customs of the church in charge permit.

The Protestant Hour will be 10 a. m., E. S. T., and the Catholic and Jewish services are to be heard in the afternoon.

A contractual obligation with the Rev. Dr. Donald Gray Barnhouse, of Philadelphia, for several weeks' broadcasting next fall will be fulfilled, but all other hours heard last year will be dropped.

Beginning with "The Alabama," a mile and a quarter race for 3-year-olds, WMAL will inaugurate the Saratoga races broadcast program tomorrow afternoon, 3:15 o'clock.

EXPERIMENTS expected to lead to a regular daily radio fascimile service of weather maps and news items to ships at sea are being conducted successfully over a short-wave station at Schenectady, which sends out impulses for reception on the liners America and Minnekahda. The Schenectady sending station operates every night between 9 and 11 o'clock in cooperation with the Radiomarine Corporation, which for a considerable time has been engaged in intensive research work in the new field.

The apparatus in use was developed by Charles J. Young, engineer of the RCA-Victor Company. The tests are expected to reveal the full practicability of sending weather maps to all masters of vessels on the high seas, according to Charles J. Pannell, vice-president of the Radiomarine Corporation.

The last of this season's outdoor concerts by Edwin Franko Goldman and his band will be heard from the campus of New York University (WRC, 8:30 p. m.)

The program of all-American music which was to have been played last Monday at Lewisohn Stadium, and postponed because of rain, will be presented tonight, weather permitting.

The American program includes George Gershwin as soloist in his "Rhapsody in Blue," Deems Taylor conducting his "Through the Looking Glass" suite, Allan Lincoln Langley conducting the premiere of his "Pastorale," and several other features (WMAL, 8:30 p. m.)

THE first American woman to display American designed clothes abroad, Elizabeth Hawes will be heard in a talk on "Paris, the Traditional and the Actual" (WRC, 1:30 p. m. tomorrow).

The bombing of the Mt. Shasta by the Army Air Corps, postponed from Tuesday because of a heavy fog, will be attempted tomorrow morning, weather permitting. WMAL will broadcast the event.

The first sight-and-sound boxing match—three ruonds between Benny Leonard and Jimmie Martin—will be televised tonight by W2XAB, New York City.

One of the longest contracts ever entered into by an orchestra leader, if not the longest, bears the signatures of Bert Lown and the management of a New York hotel. It is for ten years, and Bert is now in his second year.

WHEN Ray Knight's Station KUKU opened a vaudeville engagement in Flushing, Long Island, recently, it was necessary to obtain a police escort to clear traffic so the cast could reach the studios in time for the regular Saturday night Cuckoo broadcast.

As the motorcade flashed past another fast-moving car at about 60 miles an hour, some one remarked:

"Those people must be cuckoo, traveling at that speed."

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me something of the culture of hollyhocks. With what they should be sprayed?
L. A. S.

Hollyhocks require a deeply dug, well-drained soil made up of equal portions of good loam and leafmold. Well-decayed manure is good to mix with the soil. They demand plenty of water in dry weather. As the seed ripens in August it should be sown on light soil. Dust the plants with lime sulphur, which must be blown up through the foliage so that it reaches both sides of the leaves, or spray with Bordeaux mixture.

Mary K.—Leaves were from a mock orange bush (syringa). Better spray it in the late fall and again before growth starts in the spring with Bordeaux mixture.

Please tell me the treatment to give a dracaena in summer. Should an air plant from Bermuda be set outside in summer or be allowed to rest?
MISS F. P. G.

Keep your dracaena on the porch in summer. Permit it to have morning sunshine. Water it daily. I am sorry, but I am not familiar with the Bermuda air plant.

Please tell me what to do for ants and insects on peony buds. My peonies were ruined this May with insects. When shall I remove and when shall I replant tulip and hyacinth bulbs? Do you believe in signs when planting flowers?

Please tell me of the name of the plant from which the inclosed leaf was taken. Also the care of the plant at this time.
MRS. EVA M.

Leaf is from an African violet. Keep the plant in a sunny place on your porch and water it daily. Keep the surface soil in the pot quite loose.

I have two peonies from a reliable nursery, which do not bloom. Both plants are strong and healthy and both get plenty of sun and water.
MRS. A. W. F.

Peonies rarely bloom the first or second year after setting out. They may bloom the second year sparsely, but the third season they should bloom profusely.

Ann Interprets the Mode

Pale rose crepe de chine and rose cellophane fringe combine to make this graceful and unusual evening gown and accompanying scarf. (Courtesy of Maggy Rouff, Paris.)

New York, August 12.

LINGERIE, my deahs, goes right on getting delectable and more delectable—'n' a heart would have to be stout indeed to resist the early autumn, 1931, version of undergarments! Lace and loveliness—handwork and charm—beautiful materials and novel attractiveness—all much lovelier and charming and attractive than before. 'N' why? Because of the dressmaker touch, my dahr-lings!

You know your favorite frock these days is a little "dressmaker" frock, depending for its chic upon individual little touches of loveliness that would be impossible to achieve in standardized, job-lot clothes. And so it is with lingeries today—and especially with nightgowns.

I've told you all about the open-tummie models before and how beautifully different they are. But they are still a bit too advanced for some of the more conservative among us, and their place is taken by nighties that cover that midportion of miladi's epidermis to satisfy her modesty, yet which are exquisitely beautiful, too. A pale azure blue seems to be the leading favorite for autumn nighties, and it's especially lovely when it is trimmed with fine lace, dyed to a very pale maize shade. And for the first in a long, long time, mauve and orchid undies are with us again, and used with deep ecru or cafe au lait lace. 'N' if you doubt the beauty of that combination, wear a nightie in these colors and see for yourself the magical allure it gives to your skin!

Most trimming emphasis is placed on collars and fichus and graceful berthas and on sashes, and that's something new! These sashes are quite wide, of the same material as the nightie, and tie snugly around miladi's slender waist, with a bow in back.

For graceful and lovely evening gowns you know how adorable fringe is! With its ceaseless, gentle swaying and shifting, it's always lovely. And when it is made of very narrow bands of cellophane—you know, that transparent, highly lustrous paper that you wrap things in—it is unusually interesting. Anyhow, that's what is used for the Maggy Rouff evening gown that I illustrate today. The stately and oddly incrusted evening gown of pale rose crepe de chine has a wrapped-around tier edged with this cellophane fringe in the same shade, and the shawl-scarf, which goes over one shoulder and under one arm, is edged with it.

Fringe is an excellent way to change an evening frock that you're just a little tired of, my deahs! You can buy fringe in silk or beaded fringe in many colors and any width you wish—and it's a marvelous way to make your evening gown into a last-minute creation.

An ostrich plume, a nodding posy, a coquettish veil, and a pretty face! And, magically, all the charm in the world, given to you—by one of the new-style hats. Yes, romance and glamour and chic 'n' everything, just by a simple little hat. A simple little hat, however, that's as new as tomorrow's dawn, and that does things to the face to which you have become pretty well accustomed to make that face a pleasant surprise even to you! A simple little hat with a trick to it—a trick which you may learn by sending your stamped, self-addressed envelope right off to the Dare department of The Washington Post for this week's leaflet that's all about the new second empire hats.

What Today Means to You

"LEO."

IF August 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:30 a. m. to 1:10 p. m., from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m. and from 9:50 p. m. to 10:45 p. m. The danger hours are from 1:30 p. m. to 3:25 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8:45 p. m.

August 13, according to its planetary aspects, will cause a mixture of conflicting influences. There is a prospect of regrettable losses. On the other hand, business, safeguarded by caution, will be good. Travel is both probable and beneficial. In the evening, serenity will prevail and optimism rule.

Children born on this August 13 will be studious, intellectual, cautious and discreet. Their minds will be both quick and keen. They will have a hankering for adventure, and will seek travel. They will also be fond of outdoor sports, and excel in them. Interested in social life, too, they nevertheless will love their home.

You, if born on August 13, cannot keep your own counsel, and are altogether too confiding. You never betray the secrets of others. You cannot, however, hide from others your innermost thoughts and premeditated actions. Excessive secrecy is an evil. Overconfidence in others is a danger, and it is one against which you should be on guard. Every one may not be as straightforward and trustworthy as you are. Love all men, trust a few!

You are intense and emotional, and it is not possible for you to hide or dissemble your feelings. You, too, are extremely optimistic, and, wisely so, you refuse to be down-hearted or dispirited. Your nature is a kindly one, and your inclinations are generous. Your outlook is a tolerant one. Even when your confidence is abused, you can always think up some excuse for those who have not given you a square deal. You are an unsuspicious, lovable sort of a person, and your only serious enemy is yourself.

If your love is spontaneous, wholesouled and pure—as it is—you need a corresponding amount of devotion "to keep the home fire burning." Unless this be forthcoming, your ideals will be shattered, and from this condition of affairs it will take you a long time to recover.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

REVALUATION OF THE HAND IN SUPPORT OF A TAKEOUT.

MANY players seem to find the question of revaluing their hands, when the best course is to support a Takeout bid by partner, beset with difficulties. This question arises whenever a player at the Contract table has made an Opening bid and partner has responded with a bid in another suit or notrump. Fundamentally the matter presents no real difficulties. In measuring the supporting value of the opponent's hand for partner's uncontested notrump Takeout, the first question to determine is whether the hand contains a Rebid in the suit originally named or has another alternative suit to offer as a possible trump. If it is decided that the hand will play better at notrump than a suit, then the Rule of Eight works with extreme accuracy in determining what should be bid. This rule can be stated as follows:

The total of defensive honor-tricks in the pack will average to produce at any bid about 8 out of the 13 tricks. Four tricks will be won with Aces and the remaining four with lower honors as valued in the Standard Table on the defensive basis. The Rule of Eight will not work with any other course of honors because it is based on the fact that the average hand, which contains one-fourth of the total share of honors, and which includes even Queens and Knaves, is worth 2 honor-tricks plus. In rare cases honors will take 9 tricks and, strictly speaking, the count of defensive honor-tricks for the four hands is not 8 but between 8-8½. Furthermore, in applying the Rule of Eight to trump bids one must remember that any honor is apt to be ruffed, and, therefore, while the maximum count of 8½ is constant the minimum may go below 8 tricks.

The fact that the total bidding value of all defensive honors around the table at any bid and regardless of how they combine is between 8-8½ honor-tricks is of decisive value in applying the process of elimination during the bidding. Through the simple use of the elimination process a player is aware at most stages of the minimum honor strength (and consequent game or penalty expectancies) held in partnership and opponents' hands.

The 4-5-5½ Count.

Combined hands holding 4-4½ honor-tricks will average to develop 3 low-card-tricks in addition. The hands should make 7 tricks or one notrump.

Combined hands containing 5½ honor-tricks will average to develop in addition 3 to 4 low-card tricks. The hands should make three notrump.

This simple 4-5-5½ rule serves as a basis for notrump Takeouts and Raises.

In revaluing hands in support of a suit Takeout, either Forcing or non-Forcing, the Opening Hand then becomes the Responding Hand. He should assume a bare minimum Takeout, but a hand that offers some possibilities on the attack. His hand in support contains some elements of strength which it would not contain if he were the Declarer. Thus he counts:

1. Trump length and honors.
2. Low cards and honor-tricks in side suits.
3. Ruffing tricks due to short suits (voids, singletons, and doubletons)—the added value.

He now deducts the values of the Opening bid previously shown by him—the balance, if any, will show his rebid values.

Take a concrete example from a recent match:

Opening Hand	Responding Hand
♠ A K J 6	♠ Q 10 3
♥ Q 7 3 2	♥ A K J 4
♦ 8	♦ Q
♣ A Q 9 3	♣ K J 8 7 5

The Opening Hand bids one spade. The Responding Hand makes a Forcing Takeout of three clubs. Now the Opening Hand revalues his cards as club support. He counts his trump length at ½ trick and adds 1½ for the Ace-Queen. He adds 2 tricks for his Ace-King of spades and ½ trick for the spade length. His singleton diamond he values at 2 tricks because of the four trumps and ½ trick value is accorded the heart length. Thus the total value of the Opening Hand in support of the Forcing Takeout sums up thus:

Trump length and honors	2
Spade honors plus length	2½
Diamond singleton	2
Heart length	½
	7 tricks

The Opening Hand, strictly speaking, has therefore three Raises over and above the values already shown by the Opening bid. But, it is always best to give a leeway to partner in case 1 trick fails to materialize. Hence, the Opening Hand bids five clubs although he has a close six-bid. The partner, with solidity of the trump suit assured and holding slight additional values in the spade Queen, which probably solidifies that suit, now bids six clubs, which was easily made.

Another example, this time of a minor suit Takeout converted into a Slam declaration, although the Takeout did not disclose Forcing strength:

Opening Hand	Responding Hand
♠ A Q 10 9	♠ K 6 3
♥ 8 4	♥ K 10 6
♦ A K Q	♦ 6
♣ A J 8 2	♣ K 10 9 7 5 4

The Opening bid was one spade. To this the response was two clubs, a minimum Takeout, as the hand counts only 1½ honor-tricks.

Trump length and Ace	1½
Spade honors and length	2
Diamond honors (attack value)	3
Heart doubleton	½
	7 tricks

This is a total of 7 supporting-tricks. It is even a little more as the Opening Hand knows first that the club suit is of at least five cards in length (the Takeout requires this for a bid of two), but he also knows that part of the required 1½ honor-tricks must be in the heart suit, or lacking a high heart honor then there must be the spade King and the club King-Queen. The Opening Hand is thus justified in raising the bid to five, which he does, and the original Responding Hand now bids six as the distribution and additional trump length justify.

The principle of revaluation really thus presents no difficulties. Granted first the essential element of trump support, the Opening Hand counts his tricks as he did originally, but adding to the honor and length tricks any short suit (ruffing) values which his holding justifies. Trump support, of course, is the first essential. This requires a minimum of Queen, three, two or four small trumps in support of either a Forcing or non-Forcing Takeout. Given this requirement, the revaluation of the hand in support of any Takeout bid is easily made once the principle is grasped. All one really needs is to know what partner already knows or assumes and then to proceed to tell him news. And, of course, a story once told is never news.

TODAY'S POINTER.
Takeout Doubles Defined.

A Double for a Takeout is: any Double of not more than one no-trump nor of more than two in a suit, provided partner has not bid.

To illustrate:

Pass — Double
DEALER

DEALER

But the following bidding situations mean a preference for penalties:

Double!

Double!
DEALER

This definition of Takeout Doubles applies equally to cases where the bidding has been opened by the Doubler himself, but his initial bid is overcalled by one of his opponents. In this case, however, there is one exception and that is where the Doubler's Opening bid is one no-trump. In this case his Double of a subsequent adverse bid is made to collect penalties in spite of the fact that partner has not bid and the Double is of a suit bid of not more than two.

JACK DIAMOND GETS 4 YEARS IN PRISON

Fine of $11,000 Also Dealt New York Racketeer; Aid Gets Two Years.

New York, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The law struck at gangdom from the front and rear today, imposing the heaviest sentence possible on Jack "Legs" Diamond and detailing crack marksmen to conduct a continuous hunt for hoodlums still at large.

The slim racketeer, who previously had "beaten the rap" 24 out of 25 times, heard a Federal judge from Kansas order him to serve four years in the Atlanta Penitentiary and pay an $11,000 fine—the maximum penalty for his conviction of beer running and distillery ownership.

Diamond's associate in his illicit enterprises in the Catskills, Paul Quattrocchi, who like Diamond was convicted of conspiring to violate the prohibition law, but who escaped conviction of a charge of owning an unregistered still, was sentenced to Atlanta Penitentiary for two years and fined $5,000.

More Trouble Ahead.

Hardly an hour elapsed before Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney transferred a squad of crack sharpshooters to the motorcycle division of the New York police under orders to patrol each of the 16 police districts with new automatic shotguns.

A still further accounting with the law lies ahead for Diamond, whose only stay in prison thus far has been a short term for burglary.

"I would be remiss in my duty if I did not suggest to the district attorney," said Federal Judge Richard J. Hopkins, "that evidence showing possession, transportation and sale in violation of the Jones act be laid before the grand jury.

"The defendants (Diamond and Quattrocchi), if convicted of crimes brought to light through the evidence in this case, would be liable to far more severe punishment than that possible on the conspiracy count. They might be sentenced to thirty or forty years."

Torture Case Not Closed.

"There's no use talking," was the comment of Diamond, former bodyguard of the slain gambler, Arnold Rothstein.

State authroities hope to bring Diamond to trial on a series of charges remaining from the alleged torturing of a Cairo, N. Y., cider truckman, carrying bullets from an attempt to assassinate him. Diamond went into court in Troy, N. Y., recently and was acquitted of an assault charge arising from the truckman's case, but kidnaping and other indictments still are pending.

Both Diamond and Quattrocchi moved today to appeal their convictions in Federal Court and a futile plea for leniency was made for Quattrocchi, a first offender.

Bail of $15,000 and $7,500, respectively, was posted for Diamond and Quattrocchi.

Child, 3, Lost 38 Hours, Fails in Hunt for Bears

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Three-year-old Benjamin Saul was safely home tonight, after 38 hours of wandering alone through the wilderness of Jarre Canyon, but he was disappointed not to have found any "kitties" or "dogs."

"Kitties" to Benjamin meant mountain lions, and "dogs" beant bears. His expedition in search of these animals started when he strolled away from the Saul's mountain cabin Monday.

TEXAS PASSES LAW CURBING OIL OUTPUT

Threat of Governor to Declare Martial Law Spurs Action by Legislature.

Austin, Tex., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Acting under the spur of Gov. Ross S. Sterling's threat to declare martial law and halt oil production if legislation curbing the prolific East Texas field was not enacted, the Texas Legislature late today adopted a conservation bill by an overwhelming vote.

A few hours later the State executive signed the measure, which automatically became law with his signature.

The new tremendously rich East Texas field generally is credited in oil circles with major responsibility for overproduction which has hammered Midcontinent crude prices down to a top of 52 cents a barrel.

Coincident with the passage of the conservation bill, termed "satisfactory" by Gov. Sterling's advisers, came the first definite sign of success in the fight of Gov. W. H. Murray of Oklahoma for a price of $1 a barrel in that State.

Eight days after Gov. Murray declared martial law and closed flush wells in Oklahoma, a refinery company said it was in need of crude and would pay $1 a barrel to obtain it from the clamped-down wells. Rex H. Winget, general manager of the Cushing Refining & Gasoline Co., made the offer at Oklahoma City.

Nurse, 30, Is Slain In Office Shooting

Doctor Found Wounded in His Suite; Tragedy Is Mystery.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—A 30-year-old nurse was killed and a prominent Brooklyn physician was wounded, perhaps fatally, in a mysterious shooting tonight.

The dead girl was Miss Agnes Birdseye, daughter of Louis E. Birdseye, assistant superintendent of the Jewish Hospital. Her body was found in the offices of Dr. Milton Thomashefsky, 34, son of Boris and Bessie Thomashefsky, Jewish stage celebrities, with a bullet through the head. Nearby lay Dr. Thomashefsky, shot through the head.

The doctor occupied a suite of rooms in the building, an apartment house in the center of a wealthy residential section, together with two other physicians. The other occupants were not in at the time of the shooting.

Closed Bank Requests Moratorium of 3 Years

Bucharest, Roumania, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The Berkowitz Bank, which failed to open its doors yesterday, today asked for a moratorium of three years upon its creditors, offering to pay its engagements in full at the end of that time with 4 per cent interest.

It offered to undertake to guarantee all its engagements with the personal property of its administrators. The assets of the banks are estimated at approximately $55,000,000 and its liabilities at approximately $45,000,000.

2 HOSPITAL DEATHS FOUND ACCIDENTAL

Coroner's Jury Exonerates Attaches of Institutions in Fatal Plunges.

Accident verdicts were given yesterday by a coroner's jury in the cases of two persons who died in plunges from hospital windows—Mrs. Isabelle Walden, 56, 1006 Otis street northeast, who fell and suffered fatal injuries at Sibley Hospital, and Henry Bowman, 45-year-old war veteran, who died in Walter Reed Hospital after a somewhat similar accident at Mount Alto Hospital, a Government institution.

Police records show that Mrs. Walden attempted to lower herself by an improvised rope from a third-story window when she heard "several people had been killed" in the room she occupied at Sibley while being treated for an ailment. She slipped and fell, it was testified, before attendants could rescue her and died later of injuries thus sustained. After testimony by hospital attaches and doctors the accident verdict was brought.

Bowman was said by Mount Alto Hospital authorities to have been under treatment for a mental disorder when he plunged from a second story balcony at the institution, sustaining injuries for which he was treated at Walter Reed Hospital, where he later died. No evidence of negligence by attendants could be found in the death of Bowman and the jury again handed down a verdict of accident.

'Baby Stars' Named By Hollywood Club

Wampas Society Selects 13 Young Actresses as Screen Possibilities.

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—An old Hollywood custom of naming thirteen young women as "baby stars" from among the countless hundreds of hopefuls who flock to the film capitol was revived tonight. For the first time in four years, the Wampas, an organization of publicity men, selected thirteen young actresses whom it thinks are destined for screen stardom.

The girls honored are from all sections of the United States, and one hails from Trinidad Island.

They are: Joan Blondell, New York; Constance Cummings, Seattle; Frances Dee, Los Angeles; Sidney Fox, New York; Rochelle Hudson, Claremont, Okla.; Anita Louise, New York; Marian Marsh, Trinidad Island; Karen Morley, Ottumwa, Iowa; Joan Marsh, Porterville, Calif.; Marion Shilling, Denver; Barbara Weeks, Boston; Frances Dade, Philadelphia; and Judith Wood, New York.

Hoover Asked to Speak Before Waterways Body

J. Hampton Moore, of Philadelphia, president of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association, yesterday invited President Hoover to speak before that organization at its annual meeting in Boston, October 5 to 9.

Mr. Moore said he also was going to the Republican national committee to urge that Philadelphia be considered as the convention city next year.

LABOR ASKS HOOVER TO CALL JOB PARLEY

Five-Day Week and Six-Hour Day, With Full Pay, Seen as Aids.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The executive committee of the American Federation of Labor in a statement on unemployment today accused the managers and owners of industry of "standing impotent and helpless in the midst of all the existing distress."

Expressing the opinion that the President of the United States should assemble a national conference of representatives of labor and industry, the council said such a conference could deal with the subject in a direct way.

The executive committee recommended a five-day week, a six-hour day with maintenance of the same wage scale and immediate federal and municipal construction programs to alleviate unemployment distress. The committee said no concrete plan had yet been provided by Government or industry, and cited unemployment relief legislation as the alternative to immediate action.

"In the midst of all the existing human distress, the owners and managers of industry stand impotent and helpless," the statement said. "They present neither leadership, plans nor policies. They lack initiative and they present no remedy."

WOMAN, 81, CLEARED OF RUM POSSESSION

Roomer Admits Ownership of 2 Pints Found in Prince Georges Home.

An 81-year-old woman was found not guilty yesterday of charges of violating the prohibition law in Hyattsville branch of Prince Georges County Police Court, when a roomer in her home came forward and admitted ownership of two pints of alleged liquor found by raiding county police.

The woman, Mrs. Emma Rhine, of Riggs Mill road near Metzerott road, told Judge J. Chew Sheriff that she knew nothing about the liquor found in the house, nor of a half gallon found in a tree stump near the house. The boarder told the judge that he had brought the two pints home for his own consumption and also denied knowledge of the tree stump find.

Mrs. Rhine was arrested by Sergt. Hervey G. Machen and Policeman Claude Reese, of the county police force, acting on information furnished them by another resident. Judge Sheriff dismissed the charges.

Transporting Charge Dropped.

Charges of transportation and possession of intoxicating liquor against William C. Hall, jr., of Annapolis Junction, Md., were dismissed when Attorney J. Wilson Ryon contended the man had been arrested in Howard County and brought back to Prince Georges County after threats had been made to turn him over to Federal agents if he refused to return.

Hall was arrested Sunday morning by Policeman Reese and Constable Jack Wilson, after a chase which started in Prince Georges County and ended in Howard County.

Vincent Cosumano, of Ager road near Ram's Horn road, who was charged with possession of a quantity of beer found on property next door to his home, and which formerly had been occupied by him, was released by the judge when his landlord corroborated his statement that he had given up the property and that it had been rented to another person since July 15. William R. Deane, Washington, was fined a total of $100, with an alternative of six months in jail for failure to pay the fine when he was convicted on two charges of transporting liquor.

Guilty Plea Entered.

Joe Gitings, of Takoma Park, Md., who pleaded guilty to possession of beer and said it was the first he had ever made in his life, was fined $50, and charges of operating a disorderly house were dismissed. Arthur Bladen and Norman Bonifant were fined $5 on charges of disorderly conduct and William Bonifant was fined $5 on charges of being drunk and disorderly. They were arrested in Gittings' home.

John Manoi, 1111 Fourth street southeast, was fined $200 or six months on charges of transporting 16 cases of alleged alcohol, and Edward Waters, Capitol Heights, was fined $50 on a charge of possession of intoxicants and a charge of operating a disorderly house was dismissed. He was arrested in a pool room at Capitol Heights.

John Hanrahan, of Edmonston road, was fined $5 on a charge of assault and battery preferred by his wife, Mrs. Naomi A. Hanrahan. The wife also filed suit for limited divorce in Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro, alleging desertion, nonsupport and cruelty.

Montgomery Diversions Face 1 o'Clock Closing

Montgomery County amusement places and dance halls will close at 1 o'clock in the morning if an ordinance now being prepared by Capt. Joseph C. Cissell, counsel to the county commissioners, is adopted by the board. Capt. Cissell is preparing the ordinance by direction of the board.

Under the terms of the proposed law, bowling alleys, pool rooms, dance halls and road houses will be forced to close at 1 o'clock. The fine for violation of the law will be not more than $25 for each offense and it will be at the discretion of the county commissioners to revoke the license of any establishment violating the law. The law was intended to become effective August 15 but because of failure to advertise properly the date has been moved back a month.

Radio Aids in Locating Auto Theft Suspects

The short-wave radio set in Alexandria proved its worth yesterday when, acting on information received from Washington, Policemen Jones and Townsend arrested two Negro youths in a car which they allegedly stole Tuesday night at Florida avenue and Twentieth street northwest in Washington.

The men, who were arrested on the 700 block North Washington street, gave their names as William Rice and Joseph Davis, both 17 years old, and both from Asheville, N. C. They were turned over to the Washington police.

He was a printer by trade, although at the time of his death he was proprietor of a cigar store at 311 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Survivors include his mother, Mrs. Annie C. Carroll; four brothers, Joseph, Howard, James, and Raymond, and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Dempsey and Mrs. Lillian Beers.

FLOYD M'C. THOMPSON RITES

Retired Herndon Man Will Be Buried There Today.

Funeral services for Floyd McClellan Thompson, 69 years old, who died Tuesday at his home in Herndon, Va., will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home. Services will be conducted by the Rev. Wilbur Shipley, pastor of Herndon Presbyterian Church. Interment will follow in the Chestnut Grove Cemetery, Herndon.

Mr. Thompson had lived in Herndon all his life, retiring several years ago from active work. He is survived by one son, Floyd Thompson, of Herndon, and a daughter, Mrs. Effie Thompson, of Washington, and four brothers and six sisters. The extreme heat is said to have been a cause of his death.

2 Capital Autos Wrecked Second Time They Collide

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Two Washington, D. C., automobiles were in an accident at Enola, near here, about midnight. Only slight damage was done. Two hundred yards down the road the same two machines had another accident. Both cars were then smashed up.

Mrs. Eugene Oberdick saw the reflection of the lights of the car of her friend, Mrs. James Fennicle, in her windshield. She thought they were the lights of an approaching car and veered sharply to the right, skidded, and about-faced. Mrs. Fennicle's car crashed into hers.

The cars were not badly damaged. A few minutes later the same thing happened except that both machines crashed into trees and were ruined.

The trip, upon which 2,000 miles had been covered, was continued by train.

ALEXANDRIA BARRED FROM PARADE PRIZE

Convention Denies Right of Firemen to Compete as Department.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Alexandria firemen will not be allowed to compete for prizes in the parade at the forty-fifth annual convention of the Virginia State Firemen's Association in Winchester, according to word received here yesterday.

Alexandrians sought the right to compete as a department, as in past years, instead of as separate companies, as required by the Winchester committee, but the State executive committee denied the plea. The Alexandrians, some 200 strong, will march in the parade, nevertheless.

In order to insure a uniform method of awarding prizes, the committee has prepared two resolutions which will be submitted to the convention, one permitting the entry of representatives of a town or city as a department or as companies, in their discretion, and the other placing the awards on a basis of the population of the competitors.

It is understood Alexandria will be chosen as the next convention city, the meet to be held in connection with the bicentennial celebration in 1932.

Reports on the first week's activities of Company I, First Regiment, Infantry, Virginia National Guard, in training at Camp Pollard, Virginia Beach, indicate that 84 per cent of the Alexandrians who have completed the prescribed course in range firing have qualified in either the expert rifleman, sharpshooter, or marksman grades. The grade of expert rifleman was made by Sergts. Burton E. Archer and W. E. Trainor, while those qualifying as sharpshooter were Capt. W. Cameron Roberts, Sergts. John B. Higgs and L. E. Scott and Privates Aaron and Jeffries.

Gov. John Garland Pollard will visit the two regiments in camp on Friday, and a brigade review will be held in his honor. On Saturday the final inspection will be held. The Alexandria company will probably reach home Sunday afternoon.

Suburban Residents Urge Extension of Parkway

Residents of North Takoma, Md., have prepared a petition for presentation to the mayor and council at its meeting Monday night asking them to indorse the movement for extension of the Sligo Parkway to connect the enlarged and extended parkway with North Takoma in order that the town's recreational facilities can be increased.

The town council is asked to recommend the measure to the county commissioners and to the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission and to give such moral and financial support as it is deemed necessary to achieve the accomplishment of such a project. The project will eliminate several dangerous curves on park roads, it is pointed out.

County Funds Earnings Ordered Not to Be Cut

Although county banks have promulgated a reduction of the interest on savings accounts, they will not be permitted to reduce the interest paid on county funds in their vaults and the Prince Georges County Commissioners have ordered that the banks must pay 3½ per cent interest on county funds.

County Commissioner Frank Small, jr., pointed out that a reduction of ½ per cent interest would necessitate an increase of 1 per cent per $100 in the county tax rate. The commissioners have decreed, however, that the county banks can post collateral security instead of depository bonds to safeguard the count funds and in this manner the banks save the ½ per cent necessary to carry the county funds above the usual rate.

Bids to Be Opened On 2d School Unit

Third Section of Chevy Chase Structure Is Planned in 1932.

Sealed bids for the construction of the second unit of the new Chevy Chase Elementary School will be opened Tuesday by the Montgomery County Board of Education, at its offices in Rockville, Md. The first twelve-room unit of the building is under construction and is expected to be ready for occupancy when school opens.

The second unit, like the first, will be two stories high and of modern fireproof construction. Both units are to be larger than the present Chevy Chase School. A third unit of equal size will be constructed in 1932. A total of $206,000 has been authorized for the new school.

The building has been so planned that each unit becomes part of the building when it is constructed. Provision has been made for playgrounds.

Menaced Crowds Thrill At Stolen Car Chase

Scores of persons narrowly escaped injury last night, when a stolen automobile, pursued by a traffic policeman, raced at a terrific speed over crowded sidewalks and through downtown streets at the height of the theater rush hour.

The machine, owned by Frank Ferson, of Fort Myer Heights, Va., was being driven by a colored man when it passed the stop signal of Policeman J. C. Riley, stationed at the intersection of Fourteenth street and New York avenue northwest. Riley gave chase and pursued the car for several minutes through heavy traffic. Several times the pursued machine ran up on the sidewalk, scattering pedestrians. The chase ended when the stolen car was abandoned in Potomac Park. The driver escaped.

Store Breaker Sought.

Arlington County police are seeking the person who attempted, by breaking the plate glass window of the store of Darlington Mackey at Chain Bridge, to enter the building at an early hour yesterday morning. A watchman, John Thomas, fired two shots at the burglar as he made his getaway on foot. Nothing was missing at the store.

POLICEMAN SEEKING $10,000 IN DAMAGES

Traffic Force Member Sues Cab Company, Owners and Driver.

Jack R. Milstead, traffic policeman, through Attorney Herbert S. Ward, yesterday named two corporations and eight individuals as defendants in a damage suit for $10,000.

Milstead was struck by a Diamond taxi cab May 21, of this year, at Fifteenth and F streets northwest. At the time he was mounted on a bicycle and was riding to a point where there was a slight traffic congestion. The suit asserts that a cab, driven by Ted S. Snider, of 1884 Columbia road northwest, swerved sharply from a line of cars and struck and ran over Milstead.

Named as defendants are the Diamond Cab Co., the Independent Taxi Cab Owners Association, Inc., Snider, Gustavius A. Pope, 1832 Biltmore street north west; Harry C. Davis, 489 H street northwest; Andrew W. Manger, 2114 N street northwest; Edward A Tainer, Robert B. Alexander, William L. Bean and Henry Haines, all of whom are listed at 1735 Fourteenth street northwest, and who, according to the suit, are trading either as the Independent Taxi Cab Owners Association, Inc., or as the Diamond Cab Co., or both.

Speaker at Rotary Raps Mudslingers

Slurs Upon Washington by Modern Critics Are Held Foundationless.

Condemning the modern mudslinging biographers of George Washington, Dr. L. M. Sears, professor of history at Purdue University, who has just completed four years of research study of the life of Washington, told local Rotarians yesterday at their regular luncheon at the Willard that the first President was "the gentleman par excellence of his day. It is interesting to note," he continued, "that all the slurs upon Washington's character can be traced to later rather than contemporary writers."

Past President Charles J. O'Neill presided at the meeting, the speaker of the day being introduced by William L. Radcliffe, another former head of Washington Rotary. Returning Washington delegates to the International Rotary Convention at Vienna were welcomed back. They were Samuel Prescott, Howard Wilkins, George W. Harris and John Dolph.

Arthur D. Marks, business manager of The Washington Post, and former president of the club, will conduct next Wednesday's meeting. The "Literature and Poetry" classification of the club membership is now open, due to the resignation of Strickland Gillilan, humorist, who became inactive because of the pressure of other affairs.

Watchman Badly Hurt When Struck by Auto

James C. Barry, 57, was seriously injured last night when struck by an automobile on Fourteenth street as he was leaving the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, where he is a watchman. Witnesses said that the man was running for a street car when the automobile, driven by Milton Mendelson, 18, of 3931 Fourteenth street northwest, knocked him down.

Removed to Emergency Hospital, Mr. Barry was treated for a possible skull fracture and severe lacerations and bruises. He lives at 3574 Eleventh street northwest, and has been an employe of the bureau since 1908.

Man Says Leopard Clawed Him.

A man who identified himself as Dagile Emile, 29 years old, was treated yesterday afternoon at Walter Reed Hospital for scratches on the fingers of his left hand which he said were received when he stepped too close to a leopard's cage at the zoo. Attendants at the zoological garden said they knew nothing of the incident.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IF you will skim back over the history of the cinema, you will find that successful feminine directors have been flagrantly few and far between. I can recall no time when more than one woman director has been in active harness. As a matter of fact, I am able to recall no more than two altogether.

The first was Lois Weber, whom I once tagged around her sets in Universal City all of one day in an effort to find out just what she did and how she did it; the other, Dorothy Arzner, the reformed typist who next became a film cutter, then a writer for the screen and finally was signed by Paramount as a director—in which capacity she is now serving that company.

To the prejudice of the film industry against women as directors has usually been ascribed the paucity of distaff directors. It now comes to light that no such prejudice exists and that the real reason so few women undertake this arduous calling is because so few women care that much for hard work!

It is Miss Arzner herself who makes the matter clear. "Of course, it is true that girls often lack the executive ability to manage the many workers on a studio set," says she. "To direct pictures one must be a 'regular fellow' and able to meet any emergency. However, there is no doubt that for certain subjects a woman is better equipped to direct than a man. She has a depth of feeling that comes through on the screen."

What she hasn't got, according to Miss Arzner, is the stamina to work at high pressure for four or five weeks on a picture without letting down. She believes that the modern girl looks upon such a task as merely a swell excuse for viewing with alarm!

So now you know.

From the number of handbills with which it is placarded, somebody evidently has mistaken the dramatic desk for the side of a barn!

A nice gaudy bit of daubing in red emblazons the forthcoming celebration of the forty-seventh annual grand tournament and dress ball, at Marshall Hall, Wednesday, August 19, 1931. One hundred dollars in gold, it seems, is to be divided among the prize winners of the jousting that is to begin at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, all knights tilting in appropriate uniform. The crowning of the queen and distribution of prizes will begin at 7:30 p. m.

A more modest job in plain black and white heralds the District of Columbia Association, Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, outdoor highboard diving championships in cooperation with the Crystal Pool-Glen Echo Park swimming meet, open to registered athletes, on Thursday, August 20, 1931, at 9 p. m., sharp. Open championship events for men will be 60-yard, free style; 120-yard breaststroke, and 240-yard relay. For women, 60-yard free style; 60-yard backstroke, and 240-yard relay. Junior for boys, 60-yard, free style.

Fancy diving, high board, for men and women (4 compulsory and 5 voluntary), running plain front dive, plain back dive, running forward dive with half screw and back jack dive.

And another thing—POST NO BILLS!

After approximately a week of painstaking research and indefatigable inquiry from the house staff—from each of whom I received a different answer, and I was already confused enough—I have succeeded in getting this Carr family, in the stage show at the Fox, straightened out.

Jeanne Carr, the daughter, whose name occupies all of the act's billing, has not appeared at all in Washington owing to illness that has confined her to a hospital bed for the past several days. She probably will not rejoin the unit until it plays Atlanta.

The older dancers who appear in her spot on the program are her mother and father—an old-time headline team in vaudeville, known as Kennedy & Kramer. The matronly stepper who executes the hard-shoe buck and wing is Maude Kramer, who has been a star hoofer since she was 5.

It is a great dancing act in the eyes of any old-timer as Washington has seen it—with Jeanne present to do her modern broken rhythms, it must be a knockout.

Speaking of the Fox and dancing, the Fox Theater's free dancing school opens its season on Saturday, August 15. Applications for membership have been coming in for the last three weeks and now number a total of 4,150.

It is also announced that the Misses Helen Kearney and Margaret Oulahan, in charge of the classes, will give the pupils full hour sessions this season instead of a half hour as was done last year. The classes will be held in the large studio room on the top floor of the old American National Bank Building, 1317 F street.

We have just been apprised of a change in managerial policy affecting all Fox Theaters, whereby the local manager in each community becomes the absolute autocrat of the theater under his supervision, booking pictures, stage shows, novelties and what not to meet the demands of his own clientele. Harry Crull, in charge of the Washington de luxe house, now will have absolute control over operation of the theater, even to buying supplies and necessities for the house locally. The old "centralization" idea has been tossed into the ashcan, where it has belonged all along.

Mickey Mouse, one of the screen's real stars, has been booked for the RKO-Keith Theater next week in "Mickey Steps Out." In a recent popularity contest conducted in Vienna, Mickey scored 70,000 votes to win first prize, with Emil Jannings running second with 40,000, which probably made Herr Jannings feel like a piece of cheese!

Nick Lucas, headlining next week's vaudeville bill at the Earle, is the only artist to play a second return engagement since the present policy was adopted by the Thirteenth street house.

Before it entirely slips your mind, next week's outlook for the downtown, first-run sector, is something as follows: Fox, Will Rogers and Fifi Dorsay in "Young As You Feel," and Fanchon & Marco, "Submarine" idea; Palace, Clark Gable and Madge Evans in "Sporting Blood," and Ted Claire in "Happy Feet" revue; Earle, Dorothy Mackaill in "The Reckless Hour," and Nick Lucas, in person, headlining the vaudeville; Columbia, Rerl in F. W. Murnau's "Tabu," and Laurel & Hardy in "Our Wife;" RKO-Keith's, Jack Holt, Fay Wray and Ralph Graves in "Dirigible," first time at popular prices.

And weren't you surprised when you found out it was the cold that had waked you up?

15,000 WATCH LONDOS THROW DUSEK IN 51 MINUTES

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THERE is no law against it, I suppose, but the manner in which our prize fight managers play fast and loose with the King's English, particularly the little two-letter word denoting the first person plural, is cause enough for our fighters to demand a new deal.

This guy Jack Kearns is probably the greatest offender who ever sat in the shelter of a second's stool outside the fighting zone. The newly effected firm of Kearns and Benny Leonard, dealing in assorted hooks and jabs and other implements of the prize fight industry gives Kearns (nee Kearney) another outlet for his fearless remarks.

"We" said Kearns on the date of the announcement of the comeback of Leonard (nee Leinert) under Kearns' personal direction, "bar none of the leading contenders." "We," quoth Kearns, "are ready to fight our way back to the top." "We," adds Kearns, "will go after the welterweight crown and then the middleweight title. We are still the undefeated lightweight champion of the world. We——"

Enough, enough. Whaddays mean, "We?"

Just An Old Custom

It's just an old prize fight manager's custom, I suppose. To the unsuspecting, of which there are none, this guy Kearns is the fightingest piece of humanity that ever put on a glove, to hear him tell it thus:

"We have held the world's heavyweight title with Jack Dempsey. We pulverized Jess Willard in that boiling pine cauldron at Toledo on July 1, 1919. We finished Carpentier in four rounds and we stopped Firpo in two. We were gypped by that long count for Tunney in Chicago or we'd still be the champion.

"We, Mickey Walker and I, won the welterweight crown from Jack Britton and then we took the middleweight title from Tiger Flowers. We handed Jack Sharkey the beating of his life last month and only got a draw. But we'll win that heavyweight title yet, Mickey and I.

"Benny and I are after that welterweight crown. And after we win that we'll go after the middleweight title. We're in great shape and we can lick those palookas in both divisions. They can't hurt us."

He's Half Right

He's half right anyway; they can't hurt Kearns. Not as long as he has fighters fighting for him. When Kearns gets ready to retire from the prize fight industry, this column expects to read an epic tome entitled, "My Thirty Years in the Prize Ring, by Jack Kearns." I'll retitle it, "My Thirty Years in the Prize Ring Without Throwing a Punch or Taking One."

Clever fighters like Leonard don't bear any tell-tale marks of their ring wars. That's Kearns. When he's done with the fight game, Kearns will come out unmarked. Darn clever, these managers.

Kearns won't be reeling on rounded heels when he quits. The jab that stings and the hook that paralyzes was never invented which reached out through the ropes into the second's corner. Kearns' defense is punch-proof. Any fighter leaving the ring to get at him, if he would, is automatically disqualified under the Marquis of Queensbury rules. Kearns can't lose.

The secret of Kearns' success in the prize ring is found in his specialty punch. The old wallop to the wallet. He ties his fighters up in the counting room and stands them off with a nice line of chatter in the contractual negotiations. He connects solidly at the box office and floors 'em at the pay-off. The only marks he bears are entered in his bankbook. Oh, yeah, that's where Kearns calls quits on the "we" stuff.

Television Broadcast Of Leonard Due Today

Frasier Master of Nats As White Sox Pound Four Hurlers for 11-1 Victory

Crowder, Hadley and Liska Fail to Halt 17-Hit Attack.

Special to The Washington Post.

COMISKEY PARK, Chicago, Ill., Aug. 12.—A home run by Joe Cronin for his ninth circuit clout of the season in the fourth inning was all that saved the Nationals from a whitewashing at the hands of the Chicago White Sox here today, when they suddenly came out of a hitting slump to pound four Washington pitchers for a total of seventeen hits to win the second game of a four-game series, 11 to 1.

The Nationals passed up an opportunity to gain on both the league-leading Mackmen, who lost an overtime game to the Detroit Tigers, and on the third-place Yankees, who split even against Cleveland. From the other angle, the Johnsons probably consider themselves lucky that they lost no ground by today's loss, still trailing the leaders by ten games and enjoying a four and a half-game second-place margin.

Frasier Holds Nats to Six Hits.

Jim Frasier held the Nationals to six hits, three of which came in the fourth, while "General" Al Crowder, who started for the visitors, was taken for six hits and five runs before the end of the fourth frame when, with one out and a man on base, Irving Hadley took his place.

The Sox took an early lead in the third, smacking Crowder's hurling for four hits and three runs. With two gone, the Washington pitcher walked Frasier, his opposing moundsman, and Blue singled to right to put him on third. Then Sullivan drove him in with a single to center, Blue going to second. Reynolds hit a grounder to Myer too hot to hold and this filled the bases. Fonseca then drove Blue and Sullivan home with a long single but was tagged by Myer on Bluege's relay throw, trying to stretch it into a double.

In the fourth, Cronin knocked the ball into the right field pavilion for a home run and West followed him with a single to center, but Bluege fouled out. Kuhel filed to Watwood and Spencer singled, but the ball hit West on his way to second to end the rally.

With one out in the fourth, Hadley took Crowder's place to pitch to Grube after Cissell doubled to score Watwood. Grube singled to score Cissell, but Hadley fanned Frasier and Blue fouled out to end the inning.

Fischer Comes to Relief Of Hadley.

The Chicago Club drove Hadley from the box and brought Carl Fischer into action after he had been pounded for four hits and two runs. Fischer walked Watwood to load the bases and Kerr singled, scoring Reynolds and Fonseca. After Cissell was also passed, Watwood came home after Grube filed out to Manush. Frasier, up for the second time, fanned to end the orgy.

Ad Liska, making his 1931 debut, went to the mound in place of Fischer in round 8, fanning Blue, but the Sox were not to be stopped and Sullivan ended a field day, which netted a walk and three hits, by singling to right. Singles by Reynolds and Watwood off the subway flinger netted another Sox tally.

It was not until the third that Crowder allowed the Sox a hit and then they smacked him for four bingles and three runs. The Comiskey team had collected but five hits in twenty innings prior to that frame.

Sam West, who yesterday climbed up even with Earl Webb, of the Boston Red Sox, with an average of .360, reached first twice today, but only got one single in four times at bat. In the field, however, he made the best catch of the day when he snagged Fonseca's long fly in the Sox's second that ordinarily would have gone for a double.

Tomorrow, Bob Burke, who last week pitched a no-hit, no-run game against the Red Sox, will oppose Tommy Thomas of the Sox on the mound. The Chicago pitcher showed up well against the Brown's last week, allowing the St. Louisians but five hits.

Cards Defeat Robins Twice, 5-0 and 8-5

New York, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Jess Haines and Flint Rhem outpitched four Brooklyn hurlers today and the St. Louis Cardinals started their last Eastern invasion with a twin victory over the Brooklyn Robins, 5-0 and 8-5.

By their victories the Cards maintained their 8½-game lead over Chicago, which won a double-header from Philadelphia and increased their margin to nine games over the New York Giants, who split a pair with Pittsburgh.

Haines accomplished the unusual feat of pitching an 11-hit shutout in the opener opposed to Lefty Clark for his tenth victory of the season. The "Big Three" of the Cards attack—Frisch, Bottomley and Hafey—gave Big Jess the one run in the first that he needed on three singles.

Rhem had a harder time in the second game, but the Cards launched a six-hit attack in the fourth which drove Hollis Thurston from the mound and netted five runs, and Flint coasted in. Johnny Frederick and Lefty O'Doul hit home runs for the Robins, but they only added to their batting averages.

Red Sox Beat Browns, 6-5, on Gray's Error

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Pitcher Sam Gray's wild throw to first gave the Boston Americans their second victory today in their series with the St. Louis Browns, 6-5. The teams were tied with five runs each in the ninth when Webb beat out a hit toward third. Gray threw wild to first, scoring Hal Rhyne. The Red Sox popped out six singles and with the aid of a fumble by Levey in the fifth, scored five runs.

Macks Lose To Tigers in 12th, 7-6

Koenig's Double Ends Game; Uhle Stops A's Offensive.

Earnshaw Unable to Hold 5-1 Lead But Strikes Out 9.

Special to The Washington Post.

NAVIN FIELD, Detroit, Aug. 12. Pinch-Hitter Mark Koenig's double with a man on base in the twelfth inning gave the Tigers a 7 to 6 victory here today and sent the league-leading Athletics down to their first defeat of the Western invasion. George Earnshaw, one of the Macks' big three moundsmen, thus lost his second straight start, making his record for the season read seventeen wins and eight losses.

The veteran George Uhle, who relieved Tom Bridges in the seventh inning, received credit for the triumph and justly earned the honor. All the Mackian clouters could do with Uhle's curves in the final six innings was to gather four hits and a pair of walks.

Philadelphia, with Mickey Cochrane and Bib Williams leading the way, shot into a considerable early lead, manufacturing four runs in the first two innings to one for Detroit.

The A's increased their margin to four runs in the fifth when they scored once but thereafter the Tiger attack began to show its effect. The Tigers counted two runs in the last of the fifth, dented the plate once more in the sixth and finally tied the score in the seventh by scoring two runs after the visitors had tallied one.

Cochrane and Billy Rogell, Tiger recruit shortstop, divided slugging honors, each connecting safely four times, with the Detroit youngster including a double and triple in his collection.

Ens Looks for Card Hurlers to Beat A's

New York, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Pitchers are the answer to the St. Louis Cardinals' big lead in the National League, in the opinion of Manager Jewel Ens, of the Pittsburgh Pirates. He looks for the Cards to give the world's champion Athletics a great fight, especially since the world's series starts on National League grounds this year.

"The Cards," he said today, "look like they can coast in now and be in fine shape for the A's. That will be a tremendous help, especially when you figure how tough it has been in recent years for one of our clubs to fight its way into the series."

BACK AT CHICAGO.

Both of the White Sox sore-arm pitchers, Ted Lyons and Hal McKain, were sent back to Chicago from New York last week. It was said that neither may attempt any more hurling this season.

Pegler Wants to Know Who Forced Von Elm to Spend His Time on Golf Courses

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The most pathetic story ever told of amateur sport has just been unfolded by George Von Elm, the golfer, in a copyrighted series in the Evening Post, written in protest against the cruelties imposed on the athletes by the rule of amateurism.

Von Elm is no longer an amateur, having become what he calls a business man golfer at the conclusion of last year's national amateur tournament.

Like Bobby Jones, he disowns the name of professional, and these two have composed a special classification to accommodate their taste for emoluments and their distaste for the rather sordid sound of the term "pro." However, a pro by any other name is still a pro, unless his game happens to be lawn tennis, in which case, of course, he is an amateur.

The heart-rending portion of Von Elm's story occurs when he tells of having passed up his business for three months a year in order to practice for and compete in the amateur golf tournaments in this country and abroad. He was in the insurance business, with offices in two widely separated cities and in each of these offices he had a partner who didn't play championship golf. Under no compulsion to abandon the insurance business during the golfing season, his two partners stuck to the job, and Von Elm tells, with a note of longing and a trace of self-pity, of the prosperous condition which his partner in Detroit was able to achieve while he, Von Elm, owing to his absences from the office, forfeited a degree of commercial progress and lived in comparative lack.

Seeks to Protect Future Amateurs.

He argues for a subsidy of some kind but does not get to the bold point of asking the sport of golf to make him as rich as those partners became, which would seem to be the logical demand, in view of his having pointed out the contrast. All he has the nerve to ask for, not for himself, you understand, because he is out of it now, but for generations of amateur golfers yet unborn, is a commu-

PALFREY AND JESSUP WIN AT RYE

Hold U. S. Hopes as Play Reaches Semi-final Round.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Miss Sarah Palfrey, of Boston, and Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup, of Wilmington, Del., remained tonight as the sole American defenders in the Eastern turf court women's singles championships at Westchester Country Club.

Opposed to the American women in the semifinals round tomorrow will be two British women, Mrs. Elsie Goldsack Pittman and Miss Joan Ridley. Mrs. Pittman is favored to defeat Miss Palfrey in the semifinals, and her strong attack and graceful play has made her a strong favorite to win the chmpionship. The Jessup-Ridley contest is regarded as an even match with strong likelihood of Miss Ridley making the finals an all-British competition.

Mrs. Pittman today defeated Miss Dorothy Weisel, Sacramento, Calif., 6—2, 4—6, 6—4; Miss Ridley eliminated Josephine Cruickshank, Santa Ana, Calif., 4—6, 6—4, 6—3; Mrs. Jessup beat Mrs. William V. Hester, New York, 6—1, 6—4, and Miss Palfrey defeated her sister, Mianne, 6—0, 11—9.

Stars Advance in Men's Singles.

Only four matches were played in the men's singles championship today with four stars advancing to the third round and completing the field of the last 16. Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, defending title holder, had to use all of his skill before beating Lester Stoefen, of Los Angeles, 7—5, 4—6, 6—3.

Berkeley Bell, Austin, Tex., advanced at the expense of Edward Burns, New York, 6—2, 6—1; Wilbur F. Coen, jr., Kansas City, beat Billy Reese, Atlanta, 6—3, 6—4, and David N. Jones, New York, won from Edgar Yeomans, Washington, 6—4, 6—4.

The Englishmen stars, Fred Perry and George Patrick Hughes, return to competition tomorrow with Perry opposing Bryant Grant, jr., Atlanta, and Hughes opposing Coen.

New Draw for Women's Tennis; Player Passed By

New York, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—After completing the draw for the women's national tennis championships officials of the U. S. L. T. A. discovered an oversight which left the name of Alice Marble, San Francisco star, out of the list and decided to cancel the whole thing. A new draw will be held at noon tomorrow.

Miss Marble told officials she had filed a formal entry by mail, but it was not received. It was decided she deserved a place in the tournament, which starts Monday, and after considering possible ways of revising the draw the conclusion was reached that the only arrangement fair to all players whose entries had been accepted was to hold the entire draw again.

Several weeks ago Miss Marble's name was mentioned as a prospective entry by William M. Johnston, president of the California Tennis Association, and this word was considered enough reason for accepting the entry, although formal notice was not received.

YANKEES WIN BY 18-1 BUT BOW, 17-7

Tribe Slugs 3 Pitchers to Split Burlesque Double-Header.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The New York Yankees and the Cleveland Indians were in frolicsome mood today so they split a burlesque double-header, the Yanks taking the first slugfest, 18-1, behind Lefty Gomez, and the Indians retaliating to win, 17 to 7, in the second game.

The Yankee hitters carried off the day's batting honors with 28 hits, including home runs by Earle Combs and Joe Sewell, while the poor Indians were only able to collect 20 hits, including Earl Averill's twenty-second home run of the year.

Gomez held the Indians helpless in the first while Babe Ruth and company were belting three Cleveland hurlers for 19 hits, but the Tribe gave Henry Johnson, Ed Wells and Jim Weaver some of the same medicine in the second game, climaxing the attack with an eight run rally in the seventh.

PHILS B

MATE, 3-YEAR-OLD CHAMP, BEATEN BY 10 TO 1 SHOT AT SPA

Danour Wins Feature by A Nose

Scores Upset Victory After Running Second 9 Times in Row.

Al a Carte Second, Surf Board Third; Mate Far Back.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—A big brown colt named Danour, a game, rangy fellow who had gotten into a habit of running second, awoke today to the fact that he was quite a race horse and slapped a stunning defeat on Mate, a champion among the 3-year-olds, as well as five other highly touted thoroughbreds.

Nine straight times the long-legged son of Dozier and Wilton Flanna flapped down to the wire behind the leader until he landed today in the Saranac mile, feature of the day at Saratoga, where Mate, the chestnut bullet that thrice has conquered Twenty Grand, victor in the Arlington Classic, Preakness, and American Derby, was on display before an admiring throng of fashionables.

Mate Thought to Be Out For Airing.

It was no place for Danour, the chronic second-placer, and every one knew that Mate was out for an airing, a spread-eagle choice in the field of seven, with the possibility that fellows like Surfboard, A La Carte, and Halcyon might give the A. C. Bostwick ace some sort of a workout. But it seemed that Danour hadn't been told about this.

Off to a winging start, over a rain-heavy course that was just to his liking, Danour found himself in front of the field, instead of second, and apparently he liked it there. He was carrying only 103 pounds, a feather compared to the 127 on Mate. He was fit and eager and Sammy Renick, on his back, let him go.

The amazement of the crowd that had made Mate a 9-to-10 favorite and had all but forgotten Danour at 10 to 1, the big brown colt galloped along head to head with the Flying Horse Farm's Commuter until the field hit the stretch with Mate trailing back in sixth place. Then Georgie Ellis, on Mate, let his champion go. Catrone brought A la Carte up with a rush, brought A la Carte up with a rush, Surf Board made his bid, and Danour seemed about to drop himself into another second place.

Mate Fails to Gain Inch Of Ground.

But instead of quitting, the long-legged brown colt stuck out his ears and let fly for the finish line in a ding-dong stretch battle with A la Carte, the Alton Stable 3-year-old, while Mate, struggle as he would, could not make up an inch of ground. Danour thundered under the wire a nose ahead of A la Carte, Surf Board grabbing third place away from Commuter and Barometer, the Bradley entry, parading lengths home ahead of Mate, the struggling, humiliated champion.

Mate was fully eleven lengths behind the winner and the only horse the Prince Pat colt was able to beat was C. V. Whitney's Halcyon. Surf Board, nipping Commuter at the wire, was four lengths behind Danour. The mile was run in 1:40 1-5.

The victory brought Danour's owner, David D. Moore, a purse of $8,500 and more than doubled the horse's previous earnings. As a second-place runner, Danour previously had won only $5,500.

—Hawthorne Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

HAWTHORNE RACE TRACK, Chicago, Aug. 12.—An eight-race program, which has attracted some clever sprinters, will be offered the patrons of the sport at Hawthorne tomorrow. The main attraction, a 6-furlong dash for 3-year-olds and upward, received a list of seven smart speedsters to contest the $1,600 purse. This event will be decided under allowance conditions. Although the remainder of the card is devoted to the plater variety, well made fields should produce some thrilling and interesting contests.

FIDDLER, from the stable of A. Pelleteri, has shown consistent form at this distance, and in his present condition, figures to annex the feature, fourth on the card. ULUNIU, a steady sprinter, has raced with better company and will offer the opposition. CHEERS has trained briskly and may share in the purse.

FIRST RACE—SABINA H., from the J. Lowenstein string, which scored easily in her last, is favored to show the way to her rivals. CURMUDGEON appears best of the others for the place, with ANTHONY WAYNE, a fast worker, selected for the minor award.

SECOND RACE—OUTER HARBOR showed a splendid effort in his last winning race and, with several fast trials to his credit, figures to outfoot his opponents. Chief opposition should be furnished by HAMILTON. The Swikard color bearer weakened in his last outing at this route but should improve off that effort. ST. JIM has not started in several weeks but on his best form may prove dangerous.

THIRD RACE — OSCILLATION, a highly regarded youngster from the Longridge string, should romp to an easy victory. UMA, a winner at this track, has shown steady form and must be considered the contender. FRENCH HONEY may falter in the heavy going but nevertheless should last to gain the show honors.

FIFTH RACE—PRINCESS PEGGY, on her recent efforts, is selected to annex the purse. PRINCE TOKALON and TELA should contest the remainder of the prize. ISLAM may get into the money.

SIXTH RACE—STICK AROUND did not run his race last start but is capable of taking the measure of his opponents here. THUNWIN has displayed mud running ability and against this class figures to finish in the runner-up position. ROYAL MANAGER is the show selection.

SEVENTH RACE—SUN FIRE is at the top of his form at present and under the conditions appears well suited. GREY GULL is favored to furnish stern opposition, with DEVON easily best of the others.

EIGHTH RACE — NURSERY RHYMES, which raced well in his New York campaign, appears the class and should gallop to victory. SEARINGTON will favor the mile and a quarter route and should gain the place, with GRAYDALE selected over the others for the minor award.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SWITCH, $6.84, $4.52, $3.22; ZINA, $8.36, $4.68; MY DESIRE, $5.64.

SWITCH broke well from an outer position and, racing close up in the early stages, took command in the stretch and won by a wide margin. ZINA made up ground gradually and held the others. MY DESIRE went fairly well. CELTIC WAY made up ground on the outside and was going well at finish. MUELLER and NICK D. stopped badly. GOLD TIP was away poorly.

SECOND RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For maiden 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:16. Off at 4:17. Winner, J. Marsch's dk. br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CAMP PRINCE, $11.58, $5.32, $3.66; MORPHEUS, $5.90 $3.96; DESWASEY, $3.84.

CAMP PRINCE came fast approaching the turn and, taking command in the run home, increased his advantage as he went to win easily. MORPHEUS raced close up from the start, but was allowed to swerve into the worst going in stretch. DESWASEY was also permitted to race through the worst part of the track in the final furlong and just got up to catch SUITOR in the last stride. SUITOR faltered badly after holding a short lead to the stretch turn.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:46. Off at 4:47. Winner, Mrs. A. R. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WINNIE JO, $10.52, $5.30, $3.72; BLUE LAW, $5.76, $4.28; MASTER ACE, $4.18.

WINNIE JO came fast after going a quarter and, easily passing TEA GREEN approaching the stretch turn, took a good lead and won easily. BLUE LAW, probably best, raced very wide around first turn and closed gamely to be a fast-going second. MASTER ACE also made up much ground. TEA GREEN went to the front at once and increased his lead after going half the distance, but tired badly in final quarter.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:15½. Off at 5:16. Winner, Mrs. J. A. Pink's b. g. (4), by Dunlin—Spectacular Girl. Trained by T. J. Shannon. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:25, 0:50, 1:15 3-5, 1:42, 1:56 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CAIUS, $18.90, $7.46, $3.78; RIFF RAFF, $4.24, $2.70; SHOW DOWN, $2.80.

CAIUS went to the front soon after the start and held a good lead to the stretch, where he was run out when challenged by SHOW DOWN, seriously interfering with the latter. CAIUS then drew out slightly and held RIFF RAFF to the finish. RIFF RAFF, under choking restraint for the first half mile, came gamely in the stretch, but was bothered when the leading pair were bearing out and could not get up. SHOW DOWN, close up in all stages, lost his chance to win when he was carried wide and bumped by CAIUS in the run home. BRIGHT DAY weakened in the final run. SHADY REST also tired.

U. S. RUNNERS WINNERS IN AFRICA

Berlinger Sets Record as Americans Win Ten Firsts.

QUEENSTOWN, South Africa, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The touring United States Track and Field Team, which won only eleven out of twelve events in its first contest with South African athletes at Port Elizabeth Saturday, today won all ten in which its members were entered in a track carnival with a border squad.

Barney Bellinger, the one-man track team, late of the University of Pennsylvania, again was the outstanding star of the Americans, winning three events and taking second place behind his teammate, Walter Marty, of the Olympic Club, San Francisco, in another.

Berlinger won the discus with a heave of 125 feet 5½ inches, tossed the javelin 179 feet 5¾ inches for a first place in that event and a new South African record, pole-vaulted 12 feet 6 inches and was a close second to Marty in the high jump.

Marty leaped 6 feet ¾ inch to win the high jump and put a new South African record on the books.

Hatfield Stars Over Hurdles.

The outstanding performance of the day, however, was turned in by James Hatfield, of the University of Indiana, who skimmed over the 120-yard high hurdles in the good time of 14 4-5 seconds, another South African record falling.

Vic Williams, of the Los Angeles A. C., who, last spring at Philadelphia, tied Ted Meredith's world record for the 440 of 47 2-5 seconds, won his specialty today in 50 3-5 seconds. Nate Long, of Utah, won the 220-yard dash in 22 2-5 seconds, Eddie Genung, of the Washington A. C., Seattle, won the half-mile in 1 minute 57 seconds; Frank Crowley, of the New York A. C., won the mile in 4:31 4-5, and the relay squad of Williams, Long, Hatfield and Genung, won the mile medley relay in 3 minutes 41 2-5 seconds.

The meet was run off in fine weather with a dry track and before 3,000 spectators.

Giants Divide Pair; Drop to Third Place

New York, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The Giants split a pair with the piratical Pittsburgh Pirates today, 4-6, 9-0, but the one defeat dropped them out of second place as the Chicago Cubs won two games from the Phillies and moved into the runner-up position a half-game ahead of the McGrawmen.

Ray Kremer held all the Giants except Mell Ott in check in the opener and the boy wonder's two home runs were discounted by an 11-hit attack on Carl Hubbell and Bud Parmelee.

Bill Walker let the Pirate crew down with 3 hits in the second game and shut them out, as Ott banged out another home run and led a 12-hit attack on Heine Meine and Steve Swetonic.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

IF hardship and worry produce gray hairs Julia Roberts should have been gray a hundred years ago. During her lifetime this 111-year-old pioneer has seen Texas take part in five wars and is one of three surviving persons now receiving a Texas War pension.

Mrs. Roberts has experienced almost every hardship imaginable. She has spun and woven all night through many times for soldiers, fought Indians along with her brothers and picked cotton and plowed in the hot sun. Yet today, she is strong and erect and has the appearance of a far-younger person. She is one of the few living persons who witnessed the famous Leonid shower of 1833, which sent comets and meteorites flying through the skies all night long.

America's oldest inhabited house is in Santa Fe, the oldest town occupied by whites in America. Historical records show that the first settlement made by the Spaniards was in the sixteenth century. The earliest mention is in 1605, when the Spanish town became the capital of the province. Tradition relates that the house was erected by the Pueblo Indians before the coming of the Spanish settlers.

This and similar Indian structures are built of adobe, mud bricks that are dried in the sun.

HUNT WINS AS M'LEAN LOSES IN NATIONAL BOYS' SINGLES

Both Triumph In Doubles Matches

Hunt Gains Quarter-finals by Winning 6-3 and 11-9.

McLean Is Victim of Hollywood Boy by 4-6, 7-5, 6-4.

Special to The Washington Post.

CULVER, Ind., Aug. 12.—Jock McLean, Washington boy tennis star, was upset in a third round match of the National Boys' Championships here today by Ned Russell, of Hollywood, Calif. McLean lost in three sets by a score of 4—6, 7—5, 6—4 in the closest match of the tournament thus far.

Gilbert Hunt, of Washington, seeded fifth in the boys' singles, entered the quarter-finals with a victory over Ralph Burns, Indianapolis, 6—3, 11—9. Hunt let up a bit in the second set and Burns pulled it to deuce and continued to hold his own service until it was 9-all, when Hunt broke through and then took his own service to win the set and match.

Superior Service Adds.

McLean and Russell both played beautiful tennis, and, as the scores indicate, there was little to choose between them. Russell's superior serving probably won for him ultimately, as by following it into the net, he frequently angled off McLean's returns for placements.

McLean is paired with Frankie Parker, Milwaukee sensation, in the boys' doubles and they are favorites to win that title. They won their first match this afternoon with the loss of but one game from Albert and Lipman, Dorchester, Mass., 6—0, 6—1.

Hunt is playing doubles with John Behr, New York, son of Allan Behr, the famous professional. They won their first match today with ease from Scharff and Wenstoek, Indianapolis, 6—0, 6—1.

Commerce, Repair Shop Awaiting Fair Weather

Wet grounds yesterday forced the third postponement in as many days of the second of a three-game series between Commerce and D. C. Repair Shop for the championship of the Departmental League. The game will be played today, weather permitting, at 5:15 p. m., on the East Ellipse diamond.

La Due's Homer in 10th Wins for Aircrafts

A home run by La Due with one man on base in the tenth inning gave the Aircraft Squadron nine a 4-to-2 victory over the Signal Battalion nine in the first of a three-game series for the intrapost championship of the Marine reservation at Quantico yesterday.

It was a close game, with Brown, of the winners, and Booth, who relieved Paisley for the Signal Battalion, engaging in a hurling duel. Brown shaded Booth during the five innings the latter twirled, although the Aviators were unable to score off him until the final frame.

tation of expense, although, from the tone of his complaint, I gather that he would be inclined to accept some compensation for his lack of gain. Like a gentleman in a night club waiting for another gentleman to pick up the check, Von Elm seems to be waiting for the Golf Association to make a generous suggestion as to reimbursement for business opportunities foregone during his golfing season. I am glad Von Elm has led up to the subject, anyway, and hope that the golf association is gentleman enough to take the hint, because it does seem too bad that a young man should be required to toil his summers away at golf while his partners remain to enjoy themselves, playing, insurance, and take their profits, too.

I am about to bring up the topic myself, but I didn't know just whom to take the matter up with. For a long time I have wanted to go in for competitive hammock-swinging, bathing and fishing during the months of June, July and August, but have never been able to indulge the ambition because there seems to be no athletic body with a good, substantial treasury and a liberal amateur rule to compensate me for the pay I might not receive during my absence. Other journalists, full of greed, and pleasure-mad, would stay at the office, banging out pieces day after day in an endless round of fun, and I would return at the end of my summer to find them driving new cars and pouring superior Scotch in penthouse apartments, while I would have nothing to show for my summer but some snapshots and a coat of tan.

Who Forced Von Elm To Golf?

Still, I must admit that up to now nobody has tried to force me to go away to the mountains for the months of June, July and August, and I wonder who forced Von Elm to give up the insurance business to go traveling to the tournaments.

Incidentally, while I would not care to suggest that Von Elm, himself, is less than a genius at insurance, it occurs to me that insurance and the brokerage business attract a remarkably large proportion of the famous athletes and that if a man is a famous athlete he is likely to find that these two trades are the easiest of all. In a country which has made a cult of champions, the athlete who wins a big golf or tennis title or a lot of ball games or what not in many cases discovers that insurance or stock or bond selling comes easy to him, because there is a large element of people who feel honored to deal with him. This is merely another manifestation of that pride which the man felt who said he would never wash his right hand again because that hand had shaken the hand of John L. Sullivan.

I have heard an alternative suggestion which might have solved Von Elm's problem years ago, but I present it only by way of showing an extreme, wrong viewpoint. This suggestion is: "Don't expect to be a kid all your life. When you grow up, go to work."

Miss Walker Semifinalist In Mountain Lake Net Play

Eliminates Miss De Souza; Bertrand and Welsh Victors, While Staubley Bows in Day's Hardest Fought Match.

Special to The Washington Post.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, Md., Aug. 12.—Washington district racqueters enacted feature roles as the twelfth annual western Maryland tennis championships swung through rain, mist and chill into men's and women's singles semi-finals here today.

The Capital area stars, Bartrand and Welsh, of Rockville, and Randolph Shields, of Winchester, went into the fourth round, while another, Alan Staubly, George Washington U. stylist, went down before the slashing forehand of Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, Pittsburgh Athletic Association ace, only after traveling to 11—9, 3—6, 7—5, in what was by all odds the finest match of the tournament to date.

Miss Walker Advances To Semifinals.

Frances Walker was the lone D. C. luminary to attain the feminine semi-finals, impressive victories over Ruth Lynn, Cumberland driver, 6—1, 6—1, and Maycita de Souza, likewise of Washington, landing her the distinction as the heavy courts materially aided her sharp, chopping game. Betty Cochrane, third of the Capital women's contingent, was outdriven by Rose Straub, Johnstown satellite, 6—2, 6—0 in the quarter-finals.

Welsh reached the men's semifinal through crushing Jennings Randolph, Elkins tactician, 6—1, 6—0, and Carl MacDonald, also of Elkins, 6—0, 7—5. Speed and fore court play told the tale. Shields clicked off Ed Alcorn, Pittsburgh driver, and third seeded entrant, 6—1, 7—5, in fashion similar to that of Welsh, while Staubly garnered the right to meet O'Loughlin by virture of downing the latter's teammate Jack Lauler, 9—7, 6—4, in a morning tussle.

Welsh and Shields entered the third round of men's doubles by downing Roy Jones and Martin, veteran Norfolk-Elkins pair, 6—1, 8—6.

TRIO SHARES TANK MEET HONORS

Niess, Laris and Roudabush Star; Georgetown Team Cops.

GIRLS from the Western section of the city, flying the colors of Georgetown Playground, yesterday defeated the Eastern division swimming team, Rosedale, 83 to 52. It was the second consecutive year that the Georgetown lassies have taken the coveted Municipal Playground Cup, emblematic of the city championship.

Despite the large lead that Georgetown finished with the Northeast mermaids pressed the victors all the way. All of the races were closely contested and competition for second and third places were often as hard fought as for first.

A pleasing feature of the meet to Miss Maude N. Parker, director of girls' and women's activities, who conducted the swim, was the two victories scored by Ruth Niess in the 15 and 16 year old class.

Learned to Swim in Wading Pool.

Miss Niess some years ago learned to swim in the Garfield wading pool and yesterday she captured first places in the 25-yard free style and the 25-yard side stroke. Miss Niess' victories emphasized the value of the little wading pools that are on but a few grounds.

Mary Laris, of Georgetown, and Margaret Roudabush, of Rosedale, also won two first places. Miss Laris took first in the beginners' class free style and the novelty balloon race, while Miss Roudabush was the leader in both the 25-yard free style and 25-yard side stroke for girls 17 years old and over.

Tomorrow the annual swimming championship for boys will be held in the Georgetown tank at 2:30 o'clock. Rosedale captured the Tennyson-Chapin trophy, emblematic of the city title, last year and has a strong defending squad this season, but Georgetown has improved considerably over 1930.

BEGINNERS' CLASS.

Novelty balloon race—Won by Mary Larish (Georgetown); second, Florence Lupo (Georgetown); third, Doris Hager (Rosedale).

Duplin Resigns as Coach Of Georgetown Prep Teams

FAST upon the heels of the resignation of Ty Rauber, Central High football and baseball coach, came word yesterday from Stoneham, Mass., that Ralph Duplin, who guided the grid and diamond destinies of Georgetown Prep last year, had retired from his Garrett Park post.

Duplin, who starred in football and baseball at Stoneham High, before his brilliant athletic career at Georgetown University between the years of 1926 and 1929, will be succeeded by Joe Gardner, also of Georgetown, who was his assistant last year and who provided most of the coaching in football, basketball, track and baseball while Duplin was recovering from a badly wrenched foot.

Gardner, now vacationing in Philadelphia, will assume his duties at the opening of the school term in September. He was a member of the Hilltop grid teams of 1927, 1928 and 1929, and rated the equal of Scalzi as a signal caller during his last year. Like Gardner he will also teach mathematics.

Duplin will not give up his coaching career. He has signed to direct all sports activities at Stoneham High, and will also conduct classes in physics and mathematics.

He came to Georgetown Prep last September and started the germ of a good grid team. His unfortunate accident put a quietus on his active coaching throughout the major part of the year, but he kept his hand in all sports at the Garrett Park institution.

voice in the second spot on the card as tough George Zaharias outbutted, outbiffed and outbit Son Jennings, the handsome Indian youth who has moved his wigwam to Washington. Zaharias won after 23 minutes, during which time he sent Jennings through the ropes and onto the ballyard field four times. The fans booed him throughout, and gave vent to a mighty aria from La Bronx when he refused to shake hands with Jennings after the waltz was over.

The flop that was heard round the world accrued in the third bout on the card, in which old Toots Mondt and Kola Kwariani wrestled to a listless draw. It was called a 30-minute draw but Little Sam, kindly timekeeper, punched up his clock a good 10 minutes to save the fans from further agony. Only in the stands was there agony, for in the ring the two bald-pated old boys were good only as the models for "living statues" poses.

Take Turns With Arm-Stretch.

Most of the crowd remained to see the final two bouts, but the vitality had been sapped by the main event. In the bout after the feature, Karl Pojello gave Babe Caddock a wrestling lesson which lasted 18 minutes, and ended class with a neat body slam. In the final, Doc Wilson and Lou Plummer, two reformed football players, went through 18 minutes of very bad tackling before the young sawbones was indicated the winner.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

VACCINATION AGAINST HAY FEVER.

DR. W. I. VAUGHAN has proved that the proper way to desensitize hay fever subjects is to treat them twice a month, or once a month in some cases, all the year round and for a series of years. Most physicians crowd the vaccination injections during a short space of time just before the hay fever season. Some physicians continue giving them after the attack comes on. All of these do not give injections during the remainder of the year. The plan is good as far as it goes, but it does not go far enough.

He makes a report on 20 or 21 hay fever sufferers who have been under observation for about four years. As a group they are over 90 per cent relieved of their symptoms. One, who was sensitive to feathers as well as pollen, appeared to be free from subjection to the latter but still had trouble from the former.

She had an attack of asthma in the late afternoon in spite of the fact that she had exchanged her feather pillow for one made from kapok. Upon investigation it was found that she had a lot of chickens and she spent most of her day in the chicken yard. When she came in at night she was pretty well fed up on feathers. This case caused Vaughan to lose some faith in his treatment, but his confidence was restored when he learned of the exposures of the chicken yard.

The advantage of the year-round treatment over that which is given just prior to the hay fever season is that it gives a larger percentage of cures and a more complete escape from symptoms. It increases the possibility of a permanent cure; that the sufferer may finally be able to quit treatment, stay where he is, and escape not only hay fever but ordinary bronchial asthma.

Another advantage is that it makes preventive treatment somewhat less hectic. If the treatment is being pressed there is more danger of overdoing the thing: more danger of uncomfortable reactions. The man under crowded treatment is put to considerable inconvenience. The doctor's office is crowded for several weeks and not fully occupied at other times. A man can better adjust his routine if he takes one or two treatments every month in the year.

MAY MEAN MANY THINGS.

A. E. D. writes: Could you tell me the causes, if any, for a slight puffiness of the lower lid of the eye?

REPLY.

It may mean Bright's disease or heart disease. It may mean acidity. If organic disease is the cause have the underlying disease treated. If it is due to a local acidosis change your diet and your habits. Eat more vegetables, fruits and milk and less bread, cereal and meats. Some people drink mildly alkaline waters. Get more exercise.

IT IS NETTLE RASH.

E. F. writes: What causes small welts to appear on the skin after retiring and only at irregular intervals? They are somewhat irritable, but soon disappear, leaving no marks.

REPLY.

The common name for this disorder is nettle rash. It is caused by exposure of your skin to something to which it has been sensitized. If you avoid the cause the disease will not appear.

Since it develops while you are in bed consider as possible causes bedbugs, feathers, blankets and warmth.

SLEEPING OVER WATER.

A. E. W writes:

1. Does it affect any one to sleep over water all the time? My bedroom is over the cistern.

2. I am hard of hearing and have catarrh and some pleurisy. Would these be made worse?

REPLY.

1. Not if conditions are otherwise good.

2. Probably these disorders would not be made worse.

DEPENDS ON THE GOITER.

W. E. M. writes: Is there any diet, treatment, or medicine that will cure a goiter that has not yet become troublesome, in a woman of middle age? I do not refer to an operation.

REPLY.

There are several kinds of goiter and different stages of each kind. Diet and medical care have a place in the treatment of goiter. Just what depends on the kind and the stage.

STOCKS RALLY FAILS WITH PRICE LOSSES

Rails Drag Other Groups Into Slumps; Industrials Join Declines.

New York, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Three or four attempts to carry on the Tuesday rally failed in today's stock market, and prices closed with a heavy tone, cancelling approximately half the flashy advance of the previous session.

Railroad securities imposed a drag on other groups. Rail stocks refused to extend their rise and many carrier bonds weakened, a reaction that disarmed traders who had been looking for a further retreat of the short interest. Activity was considerably above the average for the past fortnight, amounting to 1,258,780 shares, but a good bit below yesterday's volume.

Until midafternoon the market was a narrow and generally colorless affair. Around the beginning of the last hour prices were marked up with some success, U. S. Steel climbing to 90½, but this advance, like its predecessors of the earlier dealings, ran into trouble and final prices proved to be virtually the day's lows. Steel common sold off 1¼ net.

Industrial Issues Lose.

J. I. Case broke more than 4 and American Can 2¾. Westinghouse, Sears Roebuck, Johns-Manville, American Telephone, General Electric, Chrysler, Bethlehem, Montgomery Ward, International Telephone and Consolidated Gas lost 1 to 2 net.

In the rails, Atchison returned a loss of 4¼, although it had sold 3 points higher earlier, the only active member of its group to make an important advance during the day. Union Pacific was down 3½, Southern Pacific 2¼ and Pennsylvania, New York Central, Canadian Pacific and Rock Island 1 to 2.

The trend in the steel industry seems to have acquired some degree of firmness. Estimates of current operations differed, but none of the trade reviews reported a decline. Iron Age said there had been no change in the 30 per cent rate, but emphasized several important market factors that pointed to an early upturn. These included prospective resumption of activity by consumers now on vacation shutdowns, expected increases of specifications by automobile plants, farm implement makers and the building business, and better inquiry for rails.

Power Output Drops.

Not so encouraging was the decline in electric power output, representing a reversal of seasonal tendencies, nor the July jump in copper stocks to a record high, the fourth consecutive monthly rise. The persistent accumulation of red metal stores is doubtless leading to serious consideration of a complete suspension of production.

Cotton was quiet, but still a little heavy, losing 40 to 60 cents a bale on the day. Grains, however, improved, wheat moving up a cent under the stimulus of an unfavorable European harvesting report and a bullish Canadian government weather report. Corn gained ½ to ¾ net, reflecting forecasts of higher temperatures and a bullish weekly weather forecast.

There was some irregularity to the foreign exchanges, but firmness of sterling, comfortably above the gold point, creates a good impression. Cables ruled at $4.85 13-16, up 1-16. The Brazilian milreis had a sinking spell but recovered.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Corn imitated Samson today, showing remarkable strength, then weakness, and then a renewal of vigor. Trade reports that ten corn was almost 24 cheaper as fuel than coal had much to do with hoisting the corn market. As a result of increased selling on price upturns, however, temporary setbacks carried corn down to fresh bottom levels for the season, but another outburst of buying led to a brisk new advance as the market closed.

Corn closed nervous, ¼ to 1¼ cents higher than yesterday's finish, wheat ¾ to 1 advanced; oats, ¼ up, and provisions varying from 32 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

Assertions that corn was down to a fuel basis, and worth less than coal captured the attention of grain traders shortly after the market opened. Subsequently, except during a brief interval around midday, the corn-coal comparison received more notice than any other market factor, and had a striking bullish influence on all cereals. North central Iowa points reported that the value of new corn, delivered at rural elevators after being shelled, was 17 cents a bushel on the current market basis, and that coal at the same points was 48.50 a ton, making corn as fuel $3.91 a ton cheaper than corn. The messages said growers using corn as fuel would thus save shelling cost, as well as hauling of corn into town and brinking coal back to farms.

Adding force to upward swings of the corn market was a statement by a widely known expert that in Illinois the prevailing prices meant only 22 cents for corn delivered at country elevators, and that in other big corn areas where higher freight rates were charged corn was consistently worth less money, and farmers would be likely to use corn for fuel, as ear corn made an excellent fire. He said that stocks of competitive feeds such as oats and barley were unusually small, and that the situation in the Chicago delivery of corn could easily become a very bullish market factor. Significance was attached to the fact that arrivals of corn in Chicago today totaled but 47 cars, compared with 168 a year ago.

A strong undertone in wheat and oats was ascribed largely to sympathy with corn. Besides, receipts of wheat at all domestic centers were much smaller than a year ago, totaling 1,869,000 bushels against 3,224,000. Northwest advices said rains had delayed harvest operations, and that the bearish influence of the large domestic winter wheat crop bade fair to be overcome by measurements of spring wheat yields. Oats crop news continued unfavorable.

Provisions reflected weakness of hog values.

FOREIGN BONDS GAIN AS RAILS AGAIN DROP

Industrial Issues Also Rise Despite Market's Heaviness; Phones Active.

New York, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The persistent heaviness of the railroad obligations continued to impose a heavy drag on the bond market today, and the trend was irregularly lower.

The average of ten representative railroad issues again recorded a new low level for the movement, but the foreign issues, with a few exceptions, continued to recover, with some of the Latin Americans recording wide gains. Industrial liens were mixed, while utilities were generally about steady.

Gains ranging from fractions to more than 4 points were common in the Brazilian, Chilean and Government of Argentine issues. Reflecting the unsettlement of Cuba, Cuban Public Works 5½s lost a couple of points. The European dollar bonds were irregularly higher, particularly the German issues, although the German government 5½s encountered profit taking and closed ¼ of a point lower. The 7s finished a point higher.

In the rails, such issues as Baltimore & Ohio first 4s, Michigan Central 4s, and the New York Central consolidated 4s sagged 1 to 1½ points to new low prices for the year or longer. Wider losses were common among the second grade or thinly traded carrier obligations. Ann Arbor 4s appeared at 60, a loss of 13½ points since the last transaction. A few recently depressed issues recovered a little, however.

In the industrials, Bethlehem Steel refunding 5s, Remington Rand 5½s with warrants, and St. Joseph Lead 5½s were among issues up a point or so. Purity Bakeries 5s pushed up 4 points. Among convertible issues, Warner Bros. 6s rose 5 points in a large turnover, then lost half their gain.

The American Telephone issues were about steady, and fairly active. The convertible 4½s, however, advanced a point. Pennsylvania Power & Light 4½s rose fractionally in a substantial turnover.

United States Government obligations were little changed.

Music Hath Charms To Soothe Restless Cows

San Jose, Tex. (U.P.).—Even cows have a sence of musical appreciation, B. R. Stedham believes. After Stedham installed a loud speaker in his barn he noticed that cows are more contented if the radio is going.

The most belligerent cow that won't stand still for milking quiets under the soothing melody of a Strauss waltz, Stedham reports. He also reports that his milk supply has been increased from eight to ten gallons daily because of the radio. The music also affects the milkers, he says, and the work of milking is done more quickly to music.

BICENTENNIAL PLANS 10-MONTH PROGRAM OF DISTRICT EVENTS

Washington's Birthday Will Start Series to End on Thanksgiving Day.

THOUSANDS WILL SING AS DAMROSCH LEADS

Massed Band to Be Directed by Sousa at Opening Celebration Here.

An almost continual round of impressive and colorful events, lasting through a period of ten months, was announced yesterday when the chronological District program for the George Washington bicentennial celebration was made public by the District Commission.

Opening at the Washington Monument on the 200th anniversary of his birth, the program includes many celebrations commemorative of George Washington and the stirring days of colonial America, between that date and November, 1932, when the program will be climaxed with a Thanksgiving Day ceremony.

On the Monument Grounds, at the start of the celebration, thousands of persons will sing "America," led by Walter Damrosch and accompanied by massed bands under direction of John Philip Sousa.

Costume Ball Planned.

That night will be given a colonial costume ball to which 2,000 persons will be invited. A pageant depicting striking events of Washington's life is to be produced with descendants of former Presidents playing important roles.

Another high light of the program will come on Mother's Day, when the oldest native-born mother will be honored here as a guest of the Nation in ceremonies to include Gold Star Mothers and many leading women's organizations. This will take place early in May.

Topping all else in dramatic interest will be a Washington pageant in which 5,000 persons, including many of the Nation's most noted actors and actresses are to enact roles of early American characters in a living portrayal of struggling America of Washington's day. The pageant will be produced June 22, 23, 24 and 25, to be given at night on each of those dates at the base of Washington Monument.

Seek Washington Character.

In line with these celebrations, a hunt for a man to take the role of George Washington is under way by the commission, and a number of applications for the place are already on file. The commission is seeking some one who will fill both requirements as to physical resemblance to the first President, and whose character closest portrays Washington's. The search is still going on.

Throughout the summer and fall of 1932 there will be many programs expected to attract to Washington more tourists than have ever visited Washington before. On display will be a large exhibit telling of the United States Government's growth since Washington's time and how it operates today.

Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts are to play a prominent part in the celebration during the year, but they will participate in a special program May 14, when representatives from other young people's organizations will also take part. During May, also, a horse show is being planned, at which will be exhibited some of the best horses in the country.

Kruckman Lists Program.

Arnold Kruckman, of the District commission, who announced the program for the year, was principally responsible for the formation of the list. It follows in full:

Y. The one on the left is a Riley Whiting shelf clock of about 1820; center, a very fine English bracket clock of about 1790. Mr. Taylor is holding a Sharp Gothic shelf clock which was made in about 1835 by Lenz & Andrews.

EMPLOYES MAY ASK 101 SHOW RECEIVER

Stranded 'Wild West' Troupe Won't Use Violence Here, Head Cowboy Says.

Conference between pivot employes of the 101 Ranch Wild West Show and counsel, on ways and means of collecting from five to eight weeks' back salary, yesterday marked the stranded company's tenth day on the lot at Fifth street and Florida avenue northwest.

Norman B. Landreau, attorney for the showmen, said his case is "shaping up" for presentation to Justice Cox in District Supreme Court tomorrow. He will oppose at that time an attempt to enjoin employes from interfering with return of the show West. It was indicated that employes may attempt to force receivership.

Jack Brown, head cowboy, said last night that regardless of the court's ruling, the circus folk "will use no force or violence" to retain possession of the equipment and stock held at the circus grounds since Monday a week ago.

Dr. W. B. Davis, circus physician, one of the group in conference with Attorneys Landreau and Homer L. McCormick yesterday, said a wire from Ponca City, Okla., advising that a 60-day moratorium had been declared by creditors on all of the debts hanging over the 101 Ranch, was received yesterday.

Dr. Davis disclosed that his appeal to the Health Department to remedy unsanitary conditions on the lot, had resulted in Fred Olmstead, personal representative of the owner of the show, putting up sufficient funds to purchase disinfectants.

According to the circus physician, only two members of the entire troupe have deserted ranks since the show was stranded, and these two only because they had offers they could not afford to turn down.

Head Cowboy Brown said that if employes are dislodged by an injunction, only a score of the 392 members of the troupe have any prospect of employment.

Auto Hits Trolley Pole; 3 Suffer Minor Hurts

Two men and a woman were slightly injured last night when the auto in which they were riding ran into a trolley pole at Twenty-eighth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast. All were treated at Sibley Hospital for minor cuts and bruises.

Paul M. McMurray, 33, 1121 New Hampshire avenue northwest, was operating the car, police said. With him were Helen McCarty, 22, 2708 Ontario road northwest, and George M. Schaefer, 31, 1816 Belmont road northwest. The car's radiator and bumper were damaged.

Regalia Lost to Real Indians, Boys Disband

Nine-year-old "Chief" Vincent Bryant and his tribe of "Slewfoot" Indians, which roamed for a day the plains of northeast Washington, disbanded last night.

For Vincent, the game of "Injuns" has lost its romantic appeal. And all because a pair of real, honest-to-goodness Indians, war paint and everything, interrupted a war dance put on by the "Slewfoots" yesterday in front of Vincent's tepee, 1015 Fourth street northeast.

They came to reclaim a brightly colored war bonnet the 9-year-old found in the street near his home. The tribe dispersed without a war whoop. After considerable coaxing on the part of Vincent's mother, he was persuaded to return the headdress to the red men from the 101 Ranch.

"Shux," he said later. "I wasn't afraid. They were nice fellas."

TRAFFIC POLICEMAN JAILED IN RUM CASE

Arnold Krueger Will Serve Out Fines Totaling $500 on Liquor Charges.

Unable to pay two fines totaling $500, Arnold F. Krueger, 29-year-old traffic policeman, formerly stationed at Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, yesterday went to jail to serve two sentences of 30 days each, which were allowed to run concurrently by Judge Robert E. Mattingly.

Krueger was convicted of sale and possession of liquor. He was arrested last night in his apartment at 1475 Columbia road northwest, when a squad of waiting police received a signal from an agent who was in Krueger's apartment, that an alleged sale had been made, and that marked money had been passed to the policeman.

Only a small quantity of liquor was found in the apartment. The officer was released on $500, and was taken to court yesterday morning, hardly twelve hours after his arrest. He informed police court officers that he would waive his right to a trial by the Police Trial Board, and that he would accept dismissal from the force.

Police officials said that complaints had reached them a week ago, and that in the interim undercover agents had made at least six purchases of liquor from the officer.

SCHENCK TESTIFIES BEFORE GRAND JURY

Former Policeman, Here From Penitentiary, Interrogated on Staples Case.

Frederick A Schenck, former Washington policeman, was the last witness to appear before the District grand jury yesterday in that body's investigation of charges made by Schenck that Orville Staples, another former policeman, had been dismissed from the force on manufactured evidence, and that various attempts had been made on Staples' life at the request of high police officials.

The grand jury questioned Schenck, who is now serving twenty years in Leavenworth for robbery, at length. When he was escorted in a melodramatic fashion from the courthouse late yesterday he appeared pale and wan, and was far from the debonair and well-groomed man he used to be.

Deputy United States marshals gathered around Schenck when taken from the detention cell to the prison van. On the way two automobiles with deputy marshals in them followed the van.

Robert J. Allen, former policeman, whose zest for investigating led him into serious difficulties with other policemen, and eventually to his discharge, was a witness yesterday along with others. There was a persistent rumor about the courthouse that Schenck's charges have been found not to stand up under investigation. No one now seems able to say just when all witnesses will have been heard, and agents of the Department of Justice were busy last night rounding up others wanted for questioning.

A. Z. A. to Sail River Tonight.

BOARD HEARS GROUP REQUEST REROUTING FOR 2 INTERURBANS

Utilities Commission Meets Virginia Delegation on Terminal Problem.

SUSPENSION IS LIKELY; BUSES TO SUBSTITUTE

Crossing of Avenue at 14th Physically Impossible, Petitioners Hear.

Although another Public Utilities Commission hearing is scheduled on the problem of finding a new terminal for the two Virginia electric lines, there appeared little likelihood yesterday that the railways will continue operation after a settlement is reached with the Federal Government for vacating the Mall Triangle.

A committee of about 30 representatives of trade and civic bodies of Alexandria and Arlington and Fairfax counties appeared at an informal hearing yesterday and urged the commission to permit the rerouting of the lines across Pennsylvania Avenue at Fourteenth street.

Further Study of Problem.

When informed by Harleigh H. Hartman, acting chairman of the utilities body, that such a proposal had already been found physically impossible because of the present congestion at this intersection, members of the committee had no solution to offer. The delegation decided to study the problem and to hold another hearing if a plan could be formulated. Unless a solution is reached it is likely buses will be substituted for the electric cars.

The Virginia spokesmen were opposed to the commission's alternative proposal to end the lines at Fourteenth street and Constitution avenue. They contended that the railways would lose much of their patronage and added that the operators could not spend $150,000 for necessary track repairs in view of the Treasury Department's warning that further changes would be made on Fourteenth street within another two years.

Owner May Not Present.

R. L. May, owner of the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Railway, was not present at the hearing. He has been negotiating with the Treasury Department for removal of his tracks from the Federal Triangle. If his line is discontinued, the Arlington and Fairfax Railway will be deprived of tracks in the District.

Among the delegates at the hearing were A. K. Shipe and Robert Cottrell, of the Washington Board of Trade; William C. Gloth, commonwealth attorney of Arlington County; Representative Howard W. Smith, of Virginia; Walter U. Varney, of the Arlington Chamber of Commerce; J. William May, of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce; Carl Budwesky, Alexandria corporation counsel, and Arthur Clarendon Smith, of the Washington Chamber of Commerce.

Holdup Pair Gets $35.

James Foster, 132 Bates street northwest, reported to police yesterday that he was held up at Fourteenth and B streets northwest, by two colored men who robbed him of $35. Both men had guns, he said, and he recognized one of them. Police are searching for the bandits on descriptions furnished by Foster.

Gigolo Bird of Brazil Brought Here by Holt

He Dances for Females of His Kind and Is Just One of 3,000 Odd Specimens Captured by National Geographic Society Group.

A bird with "thumbs" on its wings, which, when only a few days old can climb back into its nest if it falls out, is among the unusual types represented in the collection of more than 3,000 specimens of feathered creatures just brought to Washington by Ernest G. Holt, who led the Brazil-Venezuela expedition of the National Geographic Society into little-known parts of northern South America.

In addition to the odd climbing bird, the hoatzin, the collection includes birds of gorgeous plumage, like the cock-of-the-rock, "most beautiful bird in the world;" tiny specimens with abnormally long bills; orioles that weave nests 5 feet long and birds proficient in "make-up," who deliberately enhance their beauty.

Only a few high lights of the large collection have so far been brought to view. At least a year of laboratory work will be necessary properly to study and classify the birds and to compare them with known types. The material has been presented by the National Geographic Society to the National Museum to enrich its collection of the feathered creatures of the Americas. Even with only the preliminary work which has been done it is known that the Brazilian-Venezuela material contains many rare specimens and it is believed that a number of them will be new to science. It is estimated that probably 50 per cent of the birds are new to the National Museum's collection.

The hoatzin was found along the Casiquiare, the unique arm of the Orinoco which flows out of that river and into the Amazon system. The nestling birds have a queer "thumb" or claw at the bend of the wings when hatched. Although the adult bird is not aquatic, it builds its nest on bushes hanging over the water. The nestling, if it falls into the water, swims out with perfect ease and climbs up the bushes back to its nest. The "thumbs" fall off when the bird becomes full grown.

Nature made the mot-mot, another of the specimens very beautiful with its greenish sheen and its head of turquoise and aquamarine, and with its long, graceful tail feathers which more than double its length. But the mot-mot is not satisfied and insists on performing a beauty operation that might be compared to the eyebrow plucking of Miss 1931. Both the male and the female mot-mots bite away a portion of their tail feathers near the ends so as to leave an elliptical bit of feather or racket on the tip of the quill like that which marks the butt of an arrow.

The cock-of-the-rock, which has been enthusiastically acclaimed by bird lovers for its beauty, is about the size of a pigeon and is feathered from bill to tail in most striking flame color. An outstanding feature of the bird is a large double crest which sweeps from the upper tip of its bill to the base of its skull. The hen is of a rich brown color and is practically the same size as the cock with a smaller crest, also of brown.

A few of the other unusual birds in the collection are the tiny manikins, the males of which dance before the females and probably represent the nearest avian approach to a gigolo; the capuchin or bald-headed calf bird, which has a hoarse cry like a calf; the smallest woodpecker in the world, smaller than many humming birds; the smallest American kingfisher, of less bulk than a house wren, which has forsaken the fishing ways of the king fisher tribe and lives wholly upon insects; jacamars, shaped like giant humming birds, and cotingas, highly colored creatures with extra wing feathers which hum as they fly. An outstanding specimen of the collection which has been identified is Heilprin's jay, a very rare bird of which only two specimens have so far been recorded, one in Philadelphia and one in Europe.

HOWARD UNIVERSITY NAMES ACTING DEAN OF DENTAL COLLEGE

Dr. Russell Dixon Takes Up Work of Suspended Dr. Donawa.

REINSTATEMENT FIGHT IS LOST BY HIS FRIENDS

Appointment Will Be Made Permanent by Trustees Next October.

The appointment of Dr. Russell A. Dixon, of Northwestern University, as acting dean of the College of Dentistry of Howard University was announced by President Mordecai W. Johnson last night. Dr. Dixon has arrived in Washington, accepted the position and taken up his official duties.

The appointment of the new acting dean brings to an end efforts by friends of Dr. Arnold Donawa, suspended head of the College of Dentistry, to have him reinstated. It is understood that in all probability Dr. Dixon will be appointed permanent dean at the next meeting of the board of trustees, which will be held in October.

Dr. Donawa was suspended, on July 17, for insubordination when he refused to allow his faculty to attend meetings of the School of Medicine, saying that such action would impair the autonomy of his college. Officials of the institution said that the autonomy of the College of Dentistry was in no way endangered, but that it was essential that the several college faculties of the School of Medicine should meet for the discussion of interlocking business and matters of mutual interest.

2 NABBED ON REPORT BY WIFE OF ATTACHE

Cuban Envoy's Home One of Two Disturbed by Pair Held by Police.

Two men were arrested last night a few minutes after Thirteenth Precinct police received complaints that suspicious-acting strangers were loitering near the homes of Senor Don Orestes Garcia, attache at the Cuban embassy, and Louis J. Fosse, general manager of the Washington Auditorium.

Senor Garcia lives at 5018 Sixteenth street northwest, Mr. Fosse at 5916 Sixteenth street.

Burton L. Holt, 24, and Earl J. Green, 26 were booked for investigation. Both said they are from Durham, N. C.

Senora Garcia was having dinner when she heard a noise at the rear door, as if some one was attempting to force entry. When she went to the door she encountered a man who explained that he was hungry and jobless and desired work about the house.

Then he ran to an auto, which had been parked in the driveway with another man at the wheel, and the machine sped away. Senora Garcia notified police.

Half an hour later, Mr. Fosse reported he observed two men whose actions near his home aroused his suspicion. Holt and Green were captured shortly afterward by Policeman G. B. Cannon, cruising in upper Sixteenth street in a scout car.

INQUEST IS ORDERED IN STUDENT'S DEATH

Police Private, Involved in Fatal Crash, to Face Coroner's Jury.

An inquest into the death of Paul Chester Smith, 23-year-old George Washington University student, which resulted from injuries received in a collision between his car and one owned and driven by Pvt. Bergeley G. Lewis, of the First Precinct, was ordered for today at 1 o'clock by Acting Coroner Joseph D. Rogers.

The young man died at Casualty Hospital early yesterday. Smith's car collided with that of the policeman at Seventh and D streets northwest, the latter's machine crashing into an electric light pole. Private Lewis was on duty, but was driving to the station to procure his raincoat.

Smith, who lived at 5817 Seventh street northwest, was returning home after escorting a family guest to her residence. The policeman was booked for the action of the coroner's jury and released in the custody of his attorney.

The dead man made his home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond C. Smith. A sister, Margaret, 21, also survives. He will be buried in the Cranford Memorial M. E. Church Cemetery at Lorton, Va., tomorrow. Preceding interment, services will be held at the Marvin Memorial M. E. Church, Tenth and B streets southwest, at 1 o'clock. Mr. Smith was a worker in the Epworth League and other activities of the Southwest church. He was employed by the Department of Agriculture

Water Leap Fails To Save Youth

Police Hold Him and Aid for Questioning on Auto Charges.

When Fred Wheeler, colored, 19, of 472 L street southwest, sees police coming toward him next time he will probably adopt an attitude of nonchalance, instead of jumping off a pier into Washington Channel, as Detective Sergts. Jacob Wolf and Hugh Robey, of the automobile squad, say he did last night.

The two detectives were cruising around the Southwest section looking for stolen cars, when they saw Wheeler and another colored youth, William Douglas, 19, of 474 L street southwest, tampering with an automobile on the L street wharf. When the youths "spotted" the detectives, Wheeler jumped into the none-too-warm channel water, swimming under the wharf in attempting to hide.

Harbor police responded to a call for a police boat, and within a few minutes Wheeler was captured and standing on the wharf shivering. They denied intent to harm or take the car, but both are being held while police do a little investigating.

Zonta Member Tells of Tour.

At the weekly meeting of the Zonta Club held at the Hay-Adams House yesterday, Miss Grace Landon, member of the club, described the trip she just completed through New England. Mrs. Amelia Gude Thomas presided.

Woman Purloins Fortunes In Supposedly Telling Them

A "dark woman" who tells "fortunes" and then, by sleight of hand, purloins fortunes of a more material sort, is again being sought by the police. Three persons, two of whom are colored, yesterday reported they had been victimized by the brunette seer.

Maggie Simpson, colored, 1608 Sixth street northwest, reported that a dark-visaged woman, about 35 years old, came to the Sixth street address and asked for a drink of water. After this the thirsty stranger asked permission to tell the fortune of the Simpson woman.

The seance included placing the colored woman's savings—$90—in the hands of the prophetess. Later it was discovered by the receiver of the "fortune" tale that slips of paper had been substituted for her money. At the same address, a similar ruse was worked on Perry Jumper, colored, who said he lost $150.

A belated report of the same trick was made by Jessie L. Sears, 201 I street, who said an incident of like description caused the loss of about $25. About two weeks ago a middle-aged white man reported he lost about $100 to a woman answering the description given by the others through the same tactics.

Pistol Tested by Police Linked to Limerick Case

A .25-caliber automatic pistol, said to have been obtained from a man acquainted with Beulah Limerick, was yesterday turned over to Lieut. John H. Fowler, police ballistics expert, for tests in connection with the slaying of the girl. The gun was handed to police by Wallace W. Rollins, of Capitol Heights, Md.

Rollins said he got the gun from a man he knew only by sight, who in turn is said to have purchased it from the man acquainted with the dead girl.

Second Cool Day Is Almost Shivery

Coatless Pedestrians Disappear as Thermometer Hovers Below 70.

Washington's second day of comfort yesterday after prolonged torrid heat came as a welcome change to thousands. The day took on outward appearances of a fall day, despite the prediction of the Weather Bureau that the thermometer would rise again.

Not since the early days in May has cool weather visited Washington as it did yesterday and Tuesday. Heavier spring or autumn clothing was seen on the streets, and gone, for at least these two days, were coatless pedestrians. Policemen donned their coats again, and indications were that there will be no more orders from police headquarters this year to "shed coats."

At 7 o'clock yesterday morning the mercury reached the unusual low level of 63, and during the day only rose to 69, recorded at 3 o'clock. Predictions for the District and nearby territory for today was "slightly warmer, cloudy, northwesterly winds."

Firing Revolver Thrice Brings Arrest of Pair

William Lark Johnson, 52, colored, and his 24-year-old nephew, Lester Johnson, were arrested last night after the older man allegedly fired three shots during an argument at his relative's home, 445 New Jersey avenue southeast. Policeman C. R. Burr said that William Johnson was holding a smoking gun when arrested.

Both prisoners were charged with disorderly conduct and the uncle also was booked for discharging firearms.

Hackman Trussed To Post by Bandits

Driver Loses Taxi and Cash; Is Left in Cemetery.

Washington and Virginia police authorities are seeking the two white bandits who early yesterday trussed up Frank Herring, taxicab driver, of 1611 Connecticut avenue northwest, in a country graveyard in Fairfax County, Va., after taking $8.50, his permit, other papers and his cigarettes at gun point and then took his taxi.

Herring reported to Fairfax and Washington police that the men hired him at Fifteenth and H streets northwest to drive them to Cherrydale, Va. At that point the bandits both produced pistols, Herring said, and forced him to drive on to Herndon, 30 miles from Washington. There they ordered him to turn back, he said, and at Andrew Chapel Cemetery they tied him to a post in the graveyard with his own belt.

The bandits, Herring said, tried to induce him to give them directions for returning to the city. After about fifteen minutes' work, he said, he got his hands loose and hurried to the nearest house, where he reported the incident to the Falls Church police station by telephone.

Man and Woman Grilled in Killing

Pair Is Held While Police Check Information in Jaynes Murder.

Concentrating on breaking the Jaynes murder mystery, members of the new homicide squad last night interrogated William Harper Dean and a woman who was arrested yesterday afternoon.

Statements by Dean were said by detectives to have led to the woman's arrest. She is Miss Edith Magruder Dodsworth, 30, 1329 M street northwest. Police continued to hold both on investigation charges.

Police said neither of the two had any direct connection with the case, but that they are being held while information revealed in the grilling is investigated.

SUMMER RESORT ITEMS.

EAST HAMPTON, L. I.—T. Lester Begonia, whose waterfront home, Glorious Vista, was wrecked by the storms last March, spends all his time walking around the grounds denouncing the insurance company that restored it for him.

The Jasonby Hostetters 4th, whose elaborate card parties were a feature of life here for years, are back to playing bridge for a twentieth of a cent a point in the chauffeur's lodge. They have rented the big house to Mr. and Mrs. Jennings L. H. Samovar, who were fortunate enough to have all their money tied up by conservators in 1929.

Col. Gregory Bluefinch, of the Baltimore Bluefinches, a well-known copper magnate, is earning his living as a life guard here this season. The colonel remembers away back when there was a market for metal.

Ramsay V. Todbutter, one of the erstwhile prominent yacht club leaders, is spending his summer defending a suit for back payments on his 256-foot yacht, Aalagazam III. "I haven't enough money left to pay for the wicker chairs," admitted Mr. Todbutter.

The rescue of Maj. Willoughby Carster-Carster, owner of the 55-acre estate known as The Ranch, who supposedly fell off a dock here the other night, was made, it has become known, by the tax collector and some of his deputies. "He can't evade us that way," they declared. The major is pretty sore.

The significance of an unlisted flag flown from the 200-foot yacht, Iphizonemia, built last summer for Gen. Felix Isinglass 3d, has been learned. The flag is a deep red one with the letters "S. N. I. C." on it. It is what is known in nautical circles as the attachment pennant, and the inscription means "Sheriff Now in Charge."

P. KINCAID ZIFFLEWIGGETT, who has closed up his big place here and is living in a furnished room over a garage, was bitten by a shark while bathing yesterday. He didn't seem to mind it, saying that after what he went through in Wall street he hardly felt it.

Something of a sensation was caused at a local dock yesterday when a very costly yacht arrived; remained long enough to take on gas and departed without any litigation.

The Philbert Mockburtons, whose pirate ball and banquet has been a feature of summer life here each season for years, will give a frankfurter roast this year instead. Guests will be required to bring their own mustard.

FARM SONG.

I.

My bank, I learn, has busted,
The mortgage now is due;
I'm feeling quite disgusted
With troubles far from few;
The Farm Board blows its bubbles,
Another drought I fear—
And now to swell my troubles
The grasshoppers are here.

II.

I'm broke and feeling beaten,
My back is to the wall;
It's three days since I've eaten
A little, if at all;
My children number twenty,
And now, alas, alack!
As if this weren't plenty,
The grasshopper is back!
